111. The Hazaribagh Central Jail received in 1896, 339 invalid prisoners from other jails, and the Bankura Jail 175. These are the principal jails selected for receiving malaria-stricken prisoners whose health is failing in other jails, and Suri is also used to a small extent for the same purpose. Surgeon-Captain A. H. Nott, Superintendent and Medical Officer of the Hazaribagh Central Jail, among the many interesting and carefully prepared notes furnished on different subjects and alluded to in other portions of this report, has forwarded a valuable report on the transfer of prisoners for the benefit of health. The principal conclusions arrived at are—the system has been in practice for four years; of the 1,050 prisoners in the jail at the date of report, over 600 have been transferred because their health was failing in other jails; the 339 prisoners transferred to Hazaribagh in 1896 for the benefit of their health were received from 15 districts of Bengal and Bihar. Their weight and condition were tested—the first on the 14th March, and the last in the first week of June. Of the 339, 111 had much improved, 121 had improved, 87 were stationary, 13 were worse, and 7 had died; 71 per cent. had gained weight, 18 per cent. had lost weight, 7 per cent. had neither gained nor lost, and 7 had died. The good effects of transfer are not immediately noticeable, but are more evident after six months' residence, especially if the two healthy months of February and March are spent at Hazaribagh. Prisoners previously in bad health, who are at Hazaribagh during February and March, survive the less healthy portions of the year generally without deterioration of health. The advantage to prisoners from malaria-stricken districts of Eastern Bengal and Midnapore is very great. The improvement among the younger Bengali prisoners received in bad health from climatic causes is very striking, and is probably due to the recuperative power of youth. In the old such results are not obtained, and it is considered satisfactory if they are kept alive. Dr. Nott quotes the case of a young prisoner from Midnapore, who, after many months in hospital at Hazaribagh, was eventually restored to health and released, weighing 102 lbs. He returned to his home and very shortly committed another offence and was again sent to the Midnapore Jail; but he had already lost 6 lbs. in weight and was suffering from dysentery. He was again sent to Hazaribagh weighing 85 lbs., and after a month in hospital discharged from hospital weighing 107 lbs. Many such cases of markedly improved health occur in the younger prisoners sent from malarious districts, especially Rangpur and Dinajpur. The advantage to prisoners from non-malarious districts in Bihar is not so marked, but prisoners sent from the Saran district, which is yearly becoming more malarious, improve very much.

The remoteness of Hazaribagh and the great distance from railway communication make it necessary to consider the effect on health of the long journey. One prisoner died of pneumonia contracted on the journey, but this was the only case of injury caused by travelling, and special arrangements are made for them on the road. Experience shows that transfers may take place under certain precautions without injury to health at any time of the year, except in the months of April and May, when the heat is excessive. Again, during a few weeks about Christmas, on account of the extreme cold. Dr. Nott points out that Hazaribagh is a healthy place, but the salubrity of the immediate neighbourhood of the jail and town has been over-estimated. For a great part of the year it is generally very healthy, but every two or three years the district is subject to very severe epidemics of influenza, which are perhaps more frequent and fatal than in other districts. This was notably the case in 1896. The district is also as subject to epidemic cholera as the endemic or partially endemic areas of the province. The healthiness of the district is not alone sufficient to warrant the transfer of prisoners from non-malarious districts, and Dr. Nott very justly remarks there must be some limit to the patients sent to him, lest their number exceeds that to which the Medical Officer and his subordinates can give sufficient individual attention. There are certainly very few medical officers who could satisfactorily manage so large a number of patients in addition to their ordinary duties, but Dr. Nott successfully does so. It gives him and his Civil Hospital Assistant immense additional work, which can only be done well by the aid of the system and organisation with which all the arrangements are conducted. The actually sick receive the individual attention they require, but much of Dr. Nott's success in improving health and reducing sickness and mortality is due, as mentioned in last year's report, to the systematic arrangements for dieting introduced and supervised, and his constant attention to the selection and cooking of wholesome food for the prisoners. The large body of invalids not actually sick are arranged in several gangs from the newly discharged from hospital receiving better, more nutritious and digestible food to those who get only the ordinary diet provided by the Jail Code diet scales, but who are, until their health is established, kept for a few days constantly under the eye of the Medical Officer. By the careful selection of prisoners for these gangs each invalid gets the special food necessary for him, while the total number on special and more expensive food is kept within such limits that the total expenditure on food is less than many jails more favourably situated. For the year 1896 the cost of diet at this jail would be much less were it not that an unexpected and large influx of prisoners in the second-half of the year raised the population much beyond the numbers for whom food had been stored, necessitating the purchase of food-grains at a very expensive season.

I desire to draw attention to the fact that in addition to the many other duties as Civil Surgeon of a large district, and as Superintendent of a central jail which carries with it many harassing duties, and as Superintendent of the largest Reformatory School in the province, Dr. Nott is Medical Officer to what may be called an infirmary containing over 600 inmates, many of whom have constantly, and all of them at one time or another have required individual medical care. No such collection of invalids I believe exists in any other institution in the province. The death-rate in this jail, principally composed of weakly and old men, is for the two years 1895-96 26·42 per mille, or considerably below the death-rate of the outside population. Many prisoners sent to Hazaribagh would undoubtedly have died had they remained in the jails of the districts in which they were convicted; but I consider the good results at Hazaribagh are as much due to the excellent arrangements and personal exertions of Dr. Nott as to the exceptional salubrity of the district. The reduction in the sickness and mortality in so sickly a population is a tribute to Dr. Nott's medical skill, and the admirable system and organisation introduced and maintained by him is the result of his keen common sense, powers of observation and conscientious performance of multitudinous and routine, but necessary, duties. The thanks of the Department are due to Surgeon-Captain A. H. Nott and his hard-working Civil Hospital Assistant, Sarat Chandra Sen, who have by saving many lives materially reduced the Provincial jail death-rate.

Surgeon-Captain C. R. M. Green has submitted a report on the 175 prisoners transferred to Bankura Jail for the benefit of their health. They were received from 10 jails in Bengal and 30 from Chapra in Bihar. One hundred and fifty-five gained weight, 9 lost weight, and 8 neither gained nor lost; 3 died. One of the three deaths was due to cholera. These results enable Surgeon-Captain Green to say that the prisoners transferred there were as a rule greatly benefited by the climate of Bankura and by their treatment in the jail.

The high mortality at Daltonganj is due principally to famine in the district in which relief works have been started. The prisoners had been exposed to privation and disease before their admission to jail. The price of common rice had risen from Rs. 2-12 in February 1896 to over Rs. 5 in September. Maize (Indian-corn) was selling at Rs. 5 a maund in February and wheat at over Rs. 6 a maund. Half the prisoners admitted were in bad or indifferent health. Number of admissions to jail increased largely. Of 640 admissions, 81 had enlarged spleen, 44 malarial cachexia, 16 were old and infirm, 9 were suffering from fever, and 2 from chronic dysentery at the time of admission to jail. The health of the prisoners was further debilitated by outbreaks of influenza and measles. The jail is a miniature jail, with a daily average population of 58. One death, therefore, gives a considerable mortality ratio. There were 8 deaths, 4 of which occurred within 20 days of their admission to jail. The reports of the Medical Officer, post-mortem and other, show to how large an extent these prisoners were suffering from malarial cachexia and advanced organic disease; under the same management there had been only two deaths in 1895.

The high death-rates at Darbhanga and Bankipore were due to outbreaks of cholera described under that head. Dinajpur is one of the most unhealthy and malarious districts in the province, and was worse than usual in 1896. A great number of admissions to jail were in a very bad state of health, suffering from chronic organic disease and emaciated in body. The reports of the Medical Officer show in what a wretched condition of health many prisoners were admitted. This is one of the jails in which, on account of the bad health of the outside population, better food is given to the prisoners. Animal food is issued five times a week to all prisoners. Dr. Sunder, at Rangpur, remarks—

One of the patients who died during the year was admitted straight into hospital from the jail gate. He was admitted to jail on the night of 14th May and died the next day. Two more prisoners were admitted to hospital and died there within a week after their admission to the jail.

There was no mortality in four of the jails of the province. At Bogra there was, exclusive of cholera, no death. The death-rate, 7·5 per mille, is a record for the Bhagalpur Central Jail, holding over 1,200 prisoners. In July 1896 Dr. Buchanan submitted a report showing to what an unusual extent cachectic diseases had been absent for the twelve months, from 30th June 1895 to 1st July 1896. There were only 3 deaths, giving a mortality ratio of 2·7 per mille, which I believe will be found to be a record for any jail in Bengal of this size. The reasons for this happy state of things, as given by Dr. Buchanan, are—

(1) The unusual healthiness of the year, malaria being practically absent.
(2) Good effects of prophylactic cinchonidine carefully administered.
(3) Great care and attention bestowed on the sick by the medical subordinates.
(4) Careful supervision in the preparation and cooking of food.

To this must be added the great care and attention given by Dr. Buchanan to every detail of jail management and to individual prisoners showing any diviation from normal health by which incipient disease is at once checked. This is perhaps the most potent cause of all in reducing sickness which, if not dealt with in an early stage, may terminate fatally. Dr. Buchanan remarks—

One case of dysentery every ten days, one case of diarrhœa per week, and a couple of cases of fever a week, and no signs of scurvy: this in a jail of over 1,200 prisoners is perhaps unprecedented. Last year I wrote:—"Banish malaria and we banish nearly all the usual jail cachectic diseases." This was a year free from malaria, and we were free from the above diseases. We had little or no malaria, therefore we had little or no dysentery, diarrhœa, or scurvy.

The Gaya Jail continues to hold its high position in this list, the mortality for the past two years being 8·4 and 12·4 per mille. This is one of the largest district jails in the province. Surgeon-Major F. S. Peck, at Muzaffarpur, has been successful in reducing mortality—1894, 4+40·3; 1895, 32·6; 1896, 13·0. Under the medical superintendence of Surgeon-Lieutenant-Colonel E. G. Russell, the Dacca Central Jail, with many disadvantages of site, bad health of surrounding population, insufficient garden ground, has become one of the healthiest jails in the province. The medical history of this jail for the year 1896 may be thus briefly summarised—

(a) The lowest death-rate ever recorded. The outside mortality was more than 2½ times that of the jail.

(b) Almost entire immunity from cholera, though prevalent in the town and district.

(c) Few cases of, and small death-rate from, dysentery.

(d) Marked reduction in anæmia and debility, a common death-dealing cause in Eastern Bengal.

Surgeon-Major D. G. Crawford, at Monghyr, has reduced the mortality year by year, and it is now at a very low figure. During 1896 four prisoners died, as compared with 10 in 1895 and 15 in 1894. He says—

I wish to remark upon one result of the minute attention paid to the health of prisoners in Bengal jails during the recent years, and that is the great inducement to prisoners to try to get admission to hospital, and the necessity of doing something to make the life of a prisoner in a jail hospital less pleasant for him.

Surgeon-Lieutenant-Colonel J. ffrench-Mullen reports of the Rampur Boalia Jail—

During the latter half of the year, which is generally much more unhealthy than the former half, only four deaths occurred, and after the 31st of July only one death. In fact, the health of the prisoners during the last five months of 1896, as judged by the mortality, was good beyond precedent.

Brigade-Surgeon-Lieutenant-Colonel W. Flood Murray at Arrah says—

The same amount of care was bestowed as in previous years, but the low death-rate and daily average sick is not due to any care regarding food or clothing, but I think solely to the dryness of the year.

Surgeon-Captain A. H. Nott, at Hazaribagh, remarks—

Only six deaths took place during the last six months of the year, the population during that period averaging considerably over one thousand.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the Week ending at 8 a.m on Saturday, November 6th, 1897.

During the whole of the week under review the weather throughout almost the whole of the Indian area has been quiet and fine. The barometer has been generally higher than usual, except on the 2nd and 3rd in North-West India and on the 6th in Southern India. Pressure has on most days been high in North-West and North-East India and low over the south of the Peninsula and the south of the Bay, but the pressure differences have been small. The winds have been generally light or moderate, and have on the whole blown from the normal directions, except in Madras, where the winds have been more northerly and westerly than is usual at this season of the year. This variation from the normal in the wind direction in this part of the country has been marked by a serious deficiency in the rainfall. Ordinarily at this season of the year the retreating south-west monsoon in its course over the Bay strikes the Madras coast as a north-east wind and occasions heavy rain in that area. In the present year the recurving of the monsoon current has apparently taken place over the centre or south of the Bay, and dry northerly and north-westerly winds with a land origin have prevailed over Madras with fine to cloudy weather and hardly any rain. These dry land winds have been accompanied, at least over the central parts of the Peninsula, with clear days and nights, so that hot days and very cool nights have been experienced. In Northern India both the day and night temperatures have been excessive. A hot wave apparently commenced in the north-west on October 31st, and thence spread slowly eastward as far as Bengal. Throughout the whole week the greatest excess of temperature has been reported from Upper Sind.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, October 31st.—The barometer was higher than usual throughout the whole country. A large area of high pressure covered the whole of North-Western and Central India, while pressure was relatively low over the Bay area, but the pressure differences were smaller than usual, pressure being in large excess over the east and centre of the Peninsula. The winds were generally light or moderate, and, except over Madras, where they were more westerly than usual, were fairly normal in direction. The mean temperature was low over the central parts of the country and high over the north-west, north-east and south. A few local showers had been received in parts of Burma and of Madras.

Monday, November 1st.—Pressure had fallen somewhat in the extreme north-west, and a small shallow low pressure area had appeared over the Punjab, but in other respects the conditions were practically unchanged. A considerable excess of pressure was reported from Madras associated with dry north-westerly and northerly winds and no rain of importance. The mean temperature remained low for the season across the central parts of the Indian region and higher than usual over North-Western, Southern and part of Eastern India. The weather remained very fine, except in parts of Burma and the south of the Peninsula, where local showers continued to be received.

Tuesday, November 2nd.—Pressure had given way throughout the whole country. The change had been rapid in the north, so that the distribution had altered somewhat. A high pressure area overlay the Central Provinces and the Deccan, while pressure was relatively low both over the Bay and over North-West India. Accompanying this change westerly and south-westerly winds had appeared over Northern India, but in other parts of the country the winds were unaltered. The area of excessive temperature in the north-west was both intensifying and extending eastward. Scattered showers were reported from North-East India and from the south of the Peninsula.

Wednesday, November 3rd.—A brisk recovery of pressure was reported from Northern India and a slight rise from other parts of the country. Pressure was more uniform than on the preceding day, it was highest and in considerable excess in the Deccan area and lowest across the centre of the Bay. The winds were generally little changed, but calms and variable breezes were reported from the Gangetic Plain. The mean temperature was low across the head of the Peninsula and in part of Bengal and was higher than usual elsewhere. The excess was very large at Jacobabad and large over Eastern Rajputana and part of the Gangetic Plain. Rain had been somewhat more general and heavier in the south of the Peninsula, and local thunderstorms had visited parts of Burma, but in all other places the weather was fine.

Thursday, November 4th.—Pressure had increased briskly to rapidly over the centre and north-west of India, and the low pressures in the latter area had wholly disappeared. Pressure was high all over North-West and Central India and was low over the south of the Bay. The winds were practically unaltered. Temperature was falling over the Peninsula and was below the normal in some places, on the other hand it had been generally steady and remained excessive over Northern India. One or two scattered showers were reported from Burma, while general light showers had been received over the extreme south of the Peninsula and Ceylon.

Friday, November 5th.—The pressure changes had been unimportant and the general conditions of pressure were unaltered, while the winds were practically the same as on the previous day. A further fall of temperature had occurred over the Peninsula, where the heat was slightly to considerably less than the normal. Over the greater part of Northern India, on the other hand, the heat remained excessive. A few trifling showers were reported from Burma and Ceylon, but all over India the weather was fine.

Saturday, November 6th.—There was still no change to record as to the general conditions of pressure and wind. In the winds the most marked feature was the abnormal north-westerly wind which held steadily on the Madras Coast. Temperature had fallen over the North-West Provinces, and the excessive heat over the Gangetic Plain was less than on the previous day. Over a large part of the Peninsula there had been no change, and the area of deficient temperature over the central districts of the Peninsula was strongly shown. Scattered showers in Burma and in the extreme south were the only falls of rain reported.

Temperature.—At the commencement of the week a broad band of relatively low temperatures stretched across the northern half of the Peninsula and across the central parts of the country from Gujarat to Lower Bengal, while in North-Western, North-Eastern and Southern India the heat was greater than usual. These conditions with some slight modifications continued until Thursday the 4th when the high temperatures in the south disappeared and the mean temperature over nearly the whole of the Peninsula fell to below the normal. These conditions of temperature continued until the close of the week, higher readings than usual being reported from Northern and Central India and lower temperatures than usual from the Peninsula. This relative coolness in the Peninsula was wholly due to the night temperatures which at several stations were very largely below the normal.

The following table gives the temperature data for the week:

On the first two days of the week the mean temperature of the whole country was about normal, but from the 2nd and until the close of the week the heat was slightly excessive. The provincial variations show a considerable excess of temperature over the North-West Provinces the Punjab, Sind and Rajputana, a slight excess in Burma, Central India and Gujarat and about normal temperatures elsewhere.

Rain.—The rainfall of the week under review has been even more scanty and more local than during the previous week. The fall has been confined practically to Burma and the south of the Peninsula, though a few showers have been received in Assam, North Bengal and Ganjam. In the case of South Madras the average actual rainfall of the division has exceeded 2 inches and in the case of Malabar has exceeded 1 inch, but in all the remaining divisions reporting rainfall the average fall has been less than 1 inch, and in the case of the Assam Valley, the hills of the North-West Provinces, Mysore and the East Coast (North and Central) has been less than 0·1 inch. In Burma the rainfall of the week occurred as showers scattered throughout the week, but in the south of the Peninsula the rainfall occurred mainly during the first five days of the week, the remaining two days being fine. The second column of the table shows that over a very considerable part of India the anticipated rainfall during the week under review is small and unimportant, but in Burma and the southern half of the Peninsula between 1 and 2 inches of rain is expected. The third column of the table shows that with the single exception of South Madras, where a heavy local fall of rain at Madura on the 2nd November raised the actual average to above the normal average for the division, the rainfall has been everywhere deficient. As over a large part of the country the anticipated fall is small, the variations are also generally small and unimportant, but in the case of the East Coast (South) there is a deficiency of 2·10 inches and in the cases of Tenasserim, Arakan, Orissa, Mysore, the East Coast (North) and the East Coast (Central) there is a deficiency of over 1 inch.

Along the East Coast at this season there prevail usually the damp north-east winds of the retreating monsoon which ordinarily deposit a considerable amount of moisture along that coast and over the inland districts of the south of the Peninsula, but during the present season these winds have not set in, but have been replaced by dry north-westerly and westerly winds, so that all the rain which has fallen has been attributable to local storms which have occasioned generally light and scattered rainfall.

The three concluding columns of table show that for the three weeks, October 17th to November 6th, the total rainfall has been in excess of the normal in parts of Burma, West Bengal and the east of the North-West Provinces and of the Central Provinces and also in Hyderabad (South), but that in nearly all other parts of the country the weather has been much drier than usual, and that over a considerable part of North-West India there has been actually or practically no rain throughout.

The prospects of winter rice and other standing crops continue favourable, except in Chittagong, where the crops were greatly injured by the recent cyclone. The sowing of the spring crops is everywhere making good progress, and the crops already sown are germinating well. The sowing of poppy has begun in parts of the Patna division. The price of rice fell in several districts during the week. Relief from the Indian Famine Charitable Relief Fund is still being given to a small extent in the following districts:—Champaran 129 (boys 64 and girls 65); Bhagalpur 143 (men 37, women 83, and children 23); Sonthal Parganas 189 (men 23, women 76, and children 90).

Locusts have re-appeared in a few districts causing slight injury only. Supplies and fodder are sufficient. Prices continue to show a tendency to fall.

Cotton is being picked in Chhindwara, Wardha, and Chanda. Sugarcane is in good condition. Locusts have again visited parts of Chhindwara, Saugor, Jubbulpore, Seoni, and Hoshangabad, but the flights have not been extensive, except in the latter district where the damage in certain villages of the Hoshangabad tahsil is reported to be 6 annas. The locusts have now spread over the whole of the Sohagpur tahsil, but the extent of damage has not yet been ascertained. Prices fluctuate, but the price of rice is falling rapidly in most districts from week to week; they have stiffened, however, in Nagpur owing to large purchases for export to the frontier. There has been a further fall of 39,000 in the numbers on relief-works which are being gradually closed and a decrease of 49,000 in the number receiving gratuitous relief. No. 5047-P.

Simla, the 15th November, 1897.

READ—

Letter from the Government of Bombay, No. 182-P., dated 19th August, 1897.
Telegram to Her Majesty's Secretary of State, No. 4766-P., dated 20th October, 1897.
Telegram from Her Majesty's Secretary of State, dated 9th November, 1897.

RESOLUTION.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to announce that Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India has sanctioned the following concessions to officers employed on duties connected with famine relief or the plague, subject to the restrictions specified below :—

2. (i) To officers who have been so employed for a period of not less than five months—

either (a) one month's extra privilege leave, or (b) full pay instead of half pay for the first two months of furlough or other leave for which half pay is ordinarily admissible.

(ii) To officers so employed for a period of not less than ten months—

either (a) two months' extra privilege leave, or (b) full pay instead of half pay for the first four months of furlough or other leave as above.

3. The grant of the above concessions is subject to the following explanations and limitations :—

(i) The concessions are admissible in the case of famine duty, in any province in which there has been famine, and in the case of plague duty in the Presidency of Bombay including Sind.

(ii) They are not admissible to any officer whose duty in connection with famine or plague has not, in the opinion of the Local Government, been so unusually arduous as to render him deserving of them, or who has been specially appointed to such duty and has been remunerated during the performance of it by special salary or allowances.

(iii) The extra privilege leave admissible under this Resolution may be taken in combination with privilege leave earned under the ordinary rules, provided that the total amount of privilege leave so taken at one time shall not exceed three months. Any balance of privilege leave which cannot be taken in consequence of the three months' limit will remain at credit to be taken under the ordinary rules.

(iv) The concessions will ordinarily cease to be admissible after the expiry of two years from the date of this Resolution, but may, with the consent of the Local Government, be carried on beyond that date in cases where the exigencies of the public service have necessitated the refusal of leave when applied for and have thus prevented the grant of the full concessions earned, within the prescribed period.

(v) Any officer eligible for the concessions may choose between the alternatives (a) and (b) of paragraph 2 at the time he applies for leave.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution be communicated to the Departments of the Government of India; to the several Local Governments and Administrations; to the Heads of Departments under the Finance Department; to the Comptroller and Auditor General; and to all Accountants General and Comptrollers.

Ordered, also, that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 13th November.—Rainfall during the week good in Ganjam, Vizagapatam littoral and Travancore. No rain in the Deccan, North Arcot and Salem; elsewhere rainfall light and deficient. The water-supply is sufficient under large irrigation systems but more rain is urgently required in areas depending on local rainfall. Agricultural operations are general. The standing crops are generally thriving though blighted in small areas. The outturn of the crops is generally middling to average. Pasture is sufficient. The supply of fodder is still short in places, but the condition of cattle is normal. Prices are generally rising especially in the Deccan. All gratuitous relief is closed except in Bhadrachalam where 6 men, 11 women, and 2 children, total 19, were relieved in villages. Weavers still relieved at their own trade in Bellary, Anantapur and Cuddapah, 605 men, 538 women; total 1,143. The condition of the country at the present moment is generally satisfactory, but prolonged delay in establishment of north-east monsoon gives cause for anxiety for the future.

Bombay.—For week ending 15th November.—No rain during the week. More rain is wanted in Poona, Ahmednagar, Sholapur and Bijapur. The standing crops are thriving generally except in two talukas and one petha of Poona, where they are withering for want of rain, and in four talukas of Ahmednagar and two of Ratnagiri, where they are affected by blight and insects. Locusts have caused damage in five talukas of Hyderabad, four of Thar and Parkar, two of the Upper Sind frontier, and in parts of Kathiawar and Baroda. Reaping of the early crops and sowings of the late crops are in progress generally. Cotton-picking has commenced in Khandesh. The condition of agricultural stock is improving in Belgaum; cattle are healthy elsewhere. Prices are falling in Ratnagiri, and are stationary in Karachi, Ahmedabad, Panch Mahals, Nasik and Surat. Prices in the affected districts are: Belgaum 15, Bijapur $13\frac{7}{16}$, Sholapur $9\frac{1}{2}$, Ahmednagar $11\frac{7}{16}$, Poona $10\frac{7}{16}$, Nasik $16\frac{7}{16}$, Satara $11\frac{3}{8}$. The average number on relief works, including dependants, was: Bijapur 1,512, Sholapur 17,336, Poona 9,02-, Satara 4,608, Belgaum 976; total 33,458, of whom 27 244 are relief workers and 6,214 dependants. On gratuitous relief: Sholapur 4,704, including 96 in poor-houses, Poona 5,505; total 10,209. Details of men, women and children are not reported.

Bengal.—For week ending 15th November.—There was general, and in some parts heavy, rain in Orissa during the week. Showers are also reported from places in Central and Eastern Bengal and Chota Nagpur. The sowing of the spring and other cold weather crops is proceeding well. In Bihar the sowing of poppy is also making good progress. Reports of the winter rice crop continue favourable from all districts except Chittagong, where, as previously reported, this crop was severely injured by the late cyclone. The harvesting of the earlier kinds of winter rice has begun in some districts. Sugarcane generally promises well. The price of common rice is reported to have fallen in many districts during the week. Cattle are in good condition, the fodder-supply being everywhere sufficient.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 17th November.—The weather is clear and seasonable. Harvesting of the autumn crops is approaching completion. Sowings for the spring crops are still going on and the seed is germinating well. Slight damage by locusts is reported from a few districts. Prospects are favourable. Supplies and fodder are sufficient. Prices continue to fall.

Punjab.—For week ending 15th November.—Rainfall nil. Harvesting of the autumn crops is finished in Karnal, Umballa, Amritsar, Sialkote and Rawalpindi. Bulrush millet and great millet are harvested in Dera Ismail Khan. Cotton-picking is in progress in Rohtak and Dera Ismail Khan; the crop is being winnowed in Rohtak and Gurgaon. Sowings of the spring crops have been finished in Delhi and continue elsewhere. Pressing of sugarcane has commenced in Sialkote. The stock of food-grain is average in Rohtak and is sufficient elsewhere. The prospects of the standing crops are reported good in Jullundur, Multan, Peshawar and Dera Ismail Khan. In Gujranwala and Lahore prospects are good on irrigated and poor on unirrigated lands. The outturn is average in Hissar, Rohtak and Amritsar. Damage has been done to the crops in parts of Ferozepore and Gujranwala by insects and in Lahore by insects and blight. Locusts appeared in Umballa but did no damage and deposited no eggs. The crops have also been injured in Peshawar by grass-hoppers. The condition of cattle has improved in Hissar, and is fair in Delhi and Gujranwala, and good elsewhere. In Sialkote cattle are said to be losing condition owing to overwork. Fodder is abundant in Hissar and Rohtak and is sufficient elsewhere, except in Gujranwala where dry fodder is scarce. Prices are generally high and are rising in Hissar, Gurgaon, Delhi, Ferozepore, Multan and Sialkote, but are falling slightly in Rohtak and Jullundur; elsewhere prices are unchanged. Wheat is selling at 10 to 12¼, gram 10 to 11¼, Bulrush millet 14 to 20, great millet 13 to 22, barley 13 to 17 and maize 14 to 20, seers per rupee.

Central Provinces —For week ending 15th November.—Weather generally clear and cold. Sowing of the winter crops is approaching completion; germination is good and the earlier sowings are coming on well. Harvesting of the autumn crops continues with good outturns. Cotton-picking has commenced in Nimar. Sugarcane is in good condition. Some damage by locusts is reported in parts of Saugor and Damoh; they are still hovering about Seoni having caused slight damage in 83 villages of that district; they also visited two villages in Nimar but did little injury. Prices of rice and juar (Sorghum vulgare) are easing appreciably from week to week but have hardened somewhat in Nagpur, Raipur and Sambalpur, owing to purchases for exports to the frontier. METEOROLOGY.

REVIEW OF THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE METEOROLOGICAL DEPARTMENT FOR 1896-97.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture, No. 3382—66-2 (Meteorology), dated Simla, the 15th November 1897.

READ—

Letter from the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India, No. 2660, dated 18th September 1897, submitting the Annual Report on the Administration of the Meteorological Department for the year 1896-97.

RESOLUTION.

The number of departmental observatories was 173, or two fewer than in the previous year. Observations continued to be received from the Seychelles Islands; and daily telegrams, between the 1st December 1896 and the end of March 1897, from the observatories at Astor and Minimurg, which were found of use in forecasting the cold weather storms of the period. Ten non-departmental observatories were established during the year, which work in co-operation with the department. One at Salonah, in Assam, was opened from the 1st September 1896, under the direction of Mr. Wilfred Fleet, a member of the Scottish Meteorological Society and Manager of the Salonah Tea Company. These are the first observations of value which the department has received to throw light upon the meteorological conditions of the central Districts of the Assam Valley, and the Department is indebted to Mr. Fleet for his assistance. In September the Kashmir Durbar sanctioned the opening of two observatories at Skardu and Dras, and weather telegrams are now regularly received from these two stations. The Jodhpore State opened an observatory at the capital on the 10th October 1896, and has since sent daily weather telegrams for incorporation in the Daily Weather Report. Arrangements were also made for the establishment of two other observatories in Rajputana at Udaipur and Kotah Owing to the good offices of Colonel Davidson two observatories were opened at Chitral and Drosh on 7th December 1896 and 18th January 1897 respectively. The observations from these stations are a valuable addition to the system, since they give information from a district the meteorology of which differs very considerably from that of Upper India, and it is anticipated that they will be found of special interest as establishing a link with the meteorology of Central Asia. Another observatory which promises to be of considerable value, as giving information of the approach of cyclonic storms to the Kathiawar Coast, was opened on the 10th December 1896 at Ghadechi near Bhaonagar. Three other observatories were opened at Cooch Behar, Muktesar near Naini Tal, and Sharig in Baluchistan. The acknowledgments of the Government of India are due to the Chiefs and gentlemen who have thus enabled them to extend their system of meteorological observation. During the year the observatories at Samana (Fort Lockhart), at Chamba, at Kachh on the North-Western Railway, and at Gnatong were closed.

2. Observations were received from Teheran and Ispahan, and temperature and wind observations from eleven stations on the Persian section of the Indo-European Telegraph Line. Telegrams transmitted free from Bushire, Jask, Teheran and Ispahan were most valuable to the department in forecasting the approach of cold weather storms from Persia to Northern India, while the Eastern Telegraph Company forwards a daily telegram from Aden without charge; and the Department is indebted to the Directors of the Telegraph Lines for these most useful concessions. By the courtesy of the Ceylon Government telegrams are now received from that island in time for incorporation in the Daily Weather Report. The scope of operations of the Department has thus been considerably extended.

3. A considerably larger number of inspections were made by the officers of the Department during the past year than in 1895-96 and the work of the observers was in most instances found to be satisfactory.

4. Very little actinometric work was done during the year in consequence of the large amount of cloud during the cold weather months.

5. Much work was done under the head of Marine Meteorology during the year, the extracts from ships' logs received being 2,157 and the number of barometric comparisons made 10,705. The arrears in the publication of the Daily Weather Charts of the Indian Monsoon area which were noticed in last year's review were worked off, and these reports are now issued with reasonable punctuality and are widely distributed.

6. Fairly complete and satisfactory information of the amount, distribution, and time of occurrence of snowfall in the Himalayan and Afghan mountain areas continued to be received, and was useful in forecasting the character of the South-West monsoon rainfall of 1897. The acknowledgments of the Government of India are due to the gentlemen who contributed information.

7. The special meteorological observations in the forests of Ajmere were discontinued from the 1st May 1896, as they were not found to be serving any useful purpose.

8. The system of rainfall registration continued without change. Seventeen rain-gauge stations were established and nineteen abolished. The accuracy of the observations has much improved of late years, and the data are now believed to be fairly reliable. The work of inspection was satisfactorily performed in Berar, Bombay, Assam, Burma, and the North-Western Provinces, but imperfectly in Bengal, Madras, the Punjab and the Central Provinces. In the last province the work of six out of the ten observatories which send daily weather telegrams is classed as bad. The Government of India again desire to draw attention to the importance of regular inspection, and they hope that arrangements will in future be made in all provinces for the systematic performance of this work.

9. Seasonal forecasts were made and published as in former years; and a special winter forecast was prepared for Madras which was almost literally fulfilled. The forecasts of the South-West monsoon and of the winter rains were in fair agreement with the events.

10. At the invitation of the International Meteorological Committee, the Meteorological Reporter made arrangements to take part in a scheme for observations of the direction of motion and the heights of clouds throughout the world, and between the years 1895 and 1897 Nephescopes were supplied to six stations. Two hundred and fifty copies of the International Cloud Atlas were also distributed; and it will shortly be sent to all observers, and the new system of cloud observations and nomenclature will be generally introduced from the 1st January 1898. Two photogrammeters have been obtained from Europe, and observations with these instruments will be taken at Calcutta and Allahabad.

11. The important work of storm and flood warnings continued to be carried on as in previous years, and the system was still further extended. Two interesting experiments were made in the shape of weather warnings to indigo-planters in Behar and to tea-planters in Assam; the former with signal success. This is believed to be the first occasion on which meteorological observations have been directly utilised in India in connection with local agriculture, and a beginning has thus been made of what may some day assume dimensions of importance. During the year the Meteorological Reporter made suggestions for the introduction of a uniform system of storm signals for the whole of the Indian Coast (with the exception of the River Hughli), and these have recently been approved.

12. The publications of the Department were issued punctually, and much useful supplementary work was done in connection with the famine for the information of Government. The first two volumes of the Trevandrum Observations were completed, and the Meteorological Reporter hopes to publish the discussion by the end of the present year.

13. The acknowledgments of the Government of India are again due to the Meteorological Reporter and his Assistants, and to the Provincial Reporters, for the excellence and practical value of their work, and to the many gentlemen who assisted the Department in various ways.

ORDER.—Ordered that the foregoing Resolution be forwarded to the several Departments of the Government of India, to Local Governments and Administrations, to the Director General, Indian Medical Service, to the Surveyor General of India and to the Meteological Reporter to the Government of India.

Ordered also that it be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

SANITARY.

The 20th November 1897.

No. 2495.—In the Notification of the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 625, dated the 20th February 1897, it was ordered under the powers conferred by section 2, sub-section (1) of the Epidemic Diseases Act (III of 1897), that the pilgrimage to the Hedjaz should be suspended for the season of 1897.

The Government of India do not think it necessary that the pilgrimage should be altogether suspended for the current season, but as plague is widely prevalent in the Bombay Presidency, they consider it essential, in view of the strong opinions of all European Governments, including Turkey, regarding the danger of plague being communicated to Europe, and in view of the danger of plague being spread by intending pilgrims from infected to non-infected portions of India, that the pilgrimage should be subjected to careful restrictions.

The Governor General in Council is therefore pleased to cancel the order contained in the Notification of the Government of India in the Home Department, No. 625, dated the 20th February 1897.

The Governor General in Council is further pleased to direct that until urther orders no person, resident permanently or temporarily in the Presidency of Bombay, with the exception of Sind, shall be permitted to embark from any port in India with the object of making a pilgrimage to Mecca.

The Governor General in Council is further pleased to direct as follows :—

(1) That no person shall be permitted to embark with the object of making a pilgrimage to Mecca, except at the ports of Karachi in Sind and Chittagong in the Lower Provinces of Bengal, and unless and until such person has been kept under observation in a place appointed for the purpose until such time as the Medical Officer in charge shall be satisfied that all risk of such person conveying the infection of plague has been completely abated; and unless such person is conveyed from the place of observation to the place of embarkation under the orders of an officer appointed for the purpose.

(2) That no passage tickets for the Hedjaz shall be sold, except at the places appointed for the detention of intending pilgrims under observation.

(3) That all persons who have entered the Bombay Presidency (excluding Sind), with the object of proceeding to the Hedjaz, shall be placed in a camp of observation until such time as the Medical Officer in charge shall satisfy himself that all risk of the occurrence of plague among them has been completely abated. They shall then be sent to their homes.

Although the Government of India have decided that the pilgrimage to the Hedjaz may be permitted subject to the safeguards enumerated above, they are nevertheless convinced that intending pilgrims will be well advised in deferring their purpose until another season, in view specially of the stringent quarantine rules imposed by the Turkish Government and the inconvenience and harassment to which it is likely they will be subjected on arriving in Arabia.

The latest information received by the Government of India shows that the Hedjaz is still in a most disturbed condition, and that the journey to Mecca is fraught with danger to life and property.

The 26th November 1897.

No. 2548.—THE following documents regarding quarantine and trade restrictions imposed in other countries in consequence of the existence of bubonic plague in India are published for general information :—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, November 13th, 1897.

Quiet and fine weather has prevailed throughout the Indian region during the week under review. During the greater part of the week pressure has been high over the north-west and centre and low over the Bay. But the low-pressure area over the Bay at no time assumed any serious proportions, remaining throughout a large shallow depression without any central area of disturbance. During Wednesday and Thursday, the 10th and 11th, the barometer fell in the north-west and a small depression appeared over the Indus Valley on the morning of the 12th, but the pressure was in large defect of the normal in the north-west; at this time the weather remained uninterruptedly fine. The depression over the Bay occasioned showery to rainy weather along the north-west coast of the Bay, but the position of the depression was such as to induce westerly and north-westerly winds along the South Madras coast, so that the usual north-east winds and heavy rain which ordinarily prevail at this season over the coast districts of Madras have been as conspicuously absent as they were last week. One result of this absence of rain in Madras has been an excess of temperature. At first the day temperatures were higher and the night temperatures lower than usual, but as the week progressed the minimum temperatures also rose above the normal, and at the close of the week the day temperatures were 4° and the night temperatures 3°·2 above the normal. In most other parts of the country owing to the steady fine weather the mean temperature has also exceeded the average.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, 7th November.—Pressure was highest over North-West India and lowest over Ceylon. The barometer read slightly above the normal except in Burma and the south of the Peninsula, where pressure was in moderate to slight defect. Variable winds and calms prevailed over a large part of North-West and Central India, northerly breezes on the Bay coasts and easterly winds on the west coast. The mean temperature was low over the Peninsula and South-West Bengal and higher than usual elsewhere. There had been no rain over India and only a shower or two over Burma and Ceylon.

Monday, 8th November.—Pressure had risen briskly over Ceylon and the South of the Peninsula, and the lowest pressures had been transferred from Ceylon to the centre of the Bay. This was the only change in the general conditions. Abnormal north-westerly winds prevailed along the Madras coast. The mean temperature was low over the central parts of the Peninsula and over Assam and Upper Burma, but was excessive elsewhere—most so over Baluchistan and the western desert. Rain had extended somewhat, and showers were reported from Orissa, Ganjam, and South-West Madras, as well as from Burma and Ceylon. The amounts, however, were small.

Tuesday, 9th November.—The barometer had been steady over Burma and fallen over India. Pressure was highest over North-West India and lowest over the Bay, the pressure difference being somewhat greater than usual. North-easterly winds prevailed from Bengal right across the central parts of the country to the west coast, while abnormal north-westerly and westerly winds were blowing along the Madras coast, and light variable winds and calms were reported from North-West India. The mean temperature was low over the Bombay Presidency and Central India, over Ganjam and Orissa, and over Assam and Upper Burma. Elsewhere the heat remained excessive. Rain had been received over Orissa and Ganjam, but there had been practically none elsewhere.

Wednesday, 10th November.—Pressure had decreased briskly over the Punjab and had changed only slightly elsewhere. The general conditions of pressure were unaltered. Pressure was highest over Rajputana, lowest over the Bay, but the pressure difference was less than on the preceding day. The winds were also little changed, but calms were more numerous in the north, and the winds in South Madras were more variable. The mean temperature remained low over Bombay, over North Madras and Orissa, and over Assam and Upper Burma, and excessive elsewhere. Rain had fallen around the north of the Bay as well as at one or two central and southern stations.

Thursday, 11th November.—Pressure had fallen practically everywhere. The fall had been greatest and brisk to rapid in the north-west. A low-pressure area was appearing over the north-west frontier, but in other respects pressure conditions were unchanged. The winds had shifted to south-west and south-east over parts of North-West India, but were otherwise little altered. The temperature conditions were also unaltered. Rain had fallen over Burma, around the north coasts of the Bay and in the extreme south of Madras.

Friday, 12th November.—The low-pressure area which was appearing in the north-west had developed somewhat, and a slight centre was shown over Jacobabad. There had been no other change. The winds were very variable and were generally light or moderate in force. The mean temperature was higher than usual, except over Assam, Upper and Central Burma and the Bombay coast. Showers had occurred over the same regions as on the preceding day.

Saturday, 13th November.—There had been no change of importance in pressure, but such small changes as had occurred had tended to make pressure more uniform throughout the country. Northerly winds prevailed along the west side of the Bay, easterly winds along the west coast, and variable breezes elsewhere. The mean temperature remained low over Burma and was low over the south of the Central Provinces, Khandesh and the Bombay Deccan. Rain had been received over Upper Burma, Cachar and a few districts in the Peninsula.

Temperature.—Owing to the generally fine weather, the mean temperature of the whole country has been between 1° and 2° above the normal average on each day of the week. In Burma, where rain fell fairly generally towards the close of the week, the mean temperature fell to 2° below the normal on the 13th, but this was the only important deficiency reported during the week.

The following table gives the temperature data for the week :—

The provincial variations show a normal temperature over Burma, Bombay, Gujarat and Central India and an excess on all the other provinces. The greatest excess was in the Punjab, Sind and Rajputana, where on some days the excess was large to very large. The highest maxima were about 96° and were registered in the north of the Bombay Presidency and in South Madras. In the latter region towards the close of the week the normal temperature was very largely exceeded.

Rain.—The rainfall during the week under review was slightly more extensive over North-East India than it was last week. All the Burma divisions received effective rain, as also did East and Central Bengal, Orissa, Chota-Nagpur and North Madras. On the contrary, in the southern half of the Peninsula, the rainfall area has been less extensive, the rain having been confined to the extreme south. Seventeen of the rainfall divisions report effective rain as compared with twelve last week. The amounts range from 2·02″ in Orissa and about 1·90″ in the East Coast, north, to 0·15″ in Central Bengal. Of these seventeen divisions, seven report more rain than usual, viz., Upper Burma, (+0·06″), the Surma division of Assam (+0·32″), Central Bengal (+0·01″), Orissa (+1·63″), Chota-Nagpur (+0·13″) and the north of the east coast (+0·92″ and +0·69″). In all the remaining divisions the rainfall has been in defect. In Northern and Central India this deficiency is small and unimportant, the anticipated rainfall being small, but in the southern half of the Peninsula the defect is both considerable and, coming after two or three weeks' dry weather, very important. The week's deficiency is as much as 2·31″ in the East Coast, south and over 1″ in Madras (south central), Mysore, the East Coast (central) and Madras (south).

The three concluding columns of the table give rainfall data for the period October 17th to November 13th. The most important features in this statement are the excess of rain in parts of North-East India and of Burma, due to the storms which occurred in the early part of the period and the deficiency over the Peninsula, due to the failure of the so-called north-east monsoon. In the central parts of Madras, in Coorg, in Mysore, and along the coast districts from Cocanada, southward, this deficiency is very large: thus Madras, Central has received 0·35″ instead of 4·15″, the East Coast Central, 1·32″ instead of 7·63″, the East Coast South 1·13″ instead of 9·24″, Madras, South Central 1·67″ instead of 6·36″, Coorg 1·63″ instead of 5·76″ and Mysore 0·41″ instead of 4·52″. Over a large part of North-West India no rain whatever has fallen during the period, but this is of very much less consequence than the deficiency over the Peninsula.

The following are the more important considerable totals recorded during the week under review:—

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 20th November.—Rainfall during the week was practically nil, except in the extreme south. The water-supply is generally sufficient under large irrigation systems, but rain is urgently required in areas depending on local rainfall. Agricultural operations are general. Wet crops are generally thriving, but dry crops and wet crops in parts are withering for want of rain. The outturn of crops is generally middling to fair. Pasture is sufficient but supply of fodder is still short in parts. The condition of cattle is normal. Prices are slightly easier in the Circars; fairly steady on west coast; risen slightly in the Deccan and south; and risen smartly in the Carnatic and Central districts. No relief operations are open except in Bhadrachalam where 17 men, 25 women, and 2 children were gratuitously relieved in villages. Prospects are favourable in Ganjam, Vizagapatam and West Coast; not wholly satisfactory in Madura and Tinnevelly; while the failure of the North-East monsoon causes much anxiety for the Deccan, Carnatic and adjoining districts

Bombay.—For week ending 22nd November.—No rain during week. More rain is wanted in Poona, Ahmednagar, Sholapur and Bijapur. The standing crops are thriving generally, except in four talukas of Poona and in parts of Ahmednagar, Bijapur and Sholapur where they are affected either by blight or excessive cold or are withering. Locusts caused damage in five talukas of Hyderabad; four of Thar and Parkar; one of Broach; slight in one of Khandesh and in parts of Kathiawar. Reaping of early crops and sowings of late crops are in progress generally. Cotton-picking continues in Khandesh. The condition of agricultural stock is improving in Belgaum, and is healthy elsewhere, except in one Taluka of Panch Mahals and Thana. Prices continue high in Karachi and Shikarpur; stationary in Ahmedabad, Nasik and Ratnagiri. Prices in affected districts were—Belgaum 14½, Bijapur 13¾, Sholapur 9¾, Poona 10½, Satara 4¾ seers per rupee. The average number on relief works including dependants was—Bijapur 1,335, Sholapur 10,662, Poona 6,611, Belgaum 833, total 19,441, of whom 15,468 are relief workers and 3,973 dependants. On gratuitous relief—Sholapur 2,888 including 97 in poor-houses, Poona 5,080, Belgaum 139, total 8,107. Total number on relief 27,548.

Bengal.—For week ending 22nd November.—There was rain in parts of the Burdwan Presidency, Dacca and Bhagalpur Divisions and also in Manbhum. The general agricultural prospects continue favourable, except in the parts of Chittagong which were swept by the late cyclone and tidal wave. The earlier kinds of winter rice are being harvested, and the later kinds are ripening. The spring and poppy crops are still being sown, and those already sown are coming up well. The price of rice continues to fall. There is plenty of fodder in all disticts, and the condition of cattle is reported to be good. Scarcity of drinking water is reported from the sea-coast tracts of Chittagong.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 24th November.—The weather continues seasonable. Harvesting of autumn crops is almost completed. Sowing for spring crops is nearly finished and the seed seems germinating well. Cane-pressing and cotton-picking in progress. Locusts appeared in three districts but did no damage. Slight shocks of earthquake were felt in Dehra and Moradabad. Supplies and fodder are sufficient. Prices continue to fall.

Punjab.—For week ending 22nd November.—Rainfall nil. The harvesting of autumn crops is finished in Gurgaon and Ferozpore. Cotton-picking continues in Jullundur, Lahore, Amritsar, and Dera Ismail Khan. Sugarcane is being pressed in Rohtak, Sialkot and Gujranwala. Sowings for spring crops are generally in progress. The prospects of standing crops are good in Rohtak, Jullundur, Peshawar, and Dera Ismail Khan; in Lahore and Gujranwala good to fair on irrigated and poor on unirrigated land. Food stocks are generally sufficient. Crops have been damaged by insects and blight in Lahore and Gujranwala; in Peshawar an insect like a grasshopper is destroying the seed sown for the spring crop. The condition of cattle is fair in Delhi and good elsewhere, except Sialkot where they are losing condition owing to overwork. Fodder is generally sufficient; in Gujranwala alone dry fodder is scarce. Prices are generally high; prices of wheat slightly rising in Rohtak, Mooltan, Lahore, Shahpur, Rawalpindi, and Peshawar; slightly falling in Gurgaon; unchanged elsewhere. Wheat is selling from 10 to 13, bulrush millet 14 to 20, great millet 14 to 22, barley 13½ to 17, maize 14½ to 20 and gram 10 to 12, seers per rupee.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 22nd November.—The weather is somewhat cloudy in Chhattisgarh; elsewhere cold and seasonable. Winter sowings are completed in most districts and are approaching completion elsewhere. Young crops are thriving. Harvesting of juar (Sorghum vulgare) and other autumn crops and picking of cotton in progress. The outturns are good throughout the provinces. Sugarcane is promising. Locusts have again appeared in the Saugor district but have caused no damage. The injury caused by them is stated to have been very slight in Seoni and to be under enquiry in Damoh. Prices of juar and rice continue falling; juar is now selling in most districts at 13 to 16 seers per rupee; the price of gram has eased considerably in Saugor, Damoh, and Jubbulpore; wheat remains firm with a slight downward tendency. There was a further fall of 20,000 in the numbers on relief works and of 38,000 in the number of recipients of gratuitous relief. The relief workers shewn against Nagpur are wholly weavers. The numbers on relief works were—Narsinghpur 1,352, Betul 1,852, Nagpur 3,537, Balaghat 3,989, and Raipur 6,190; total 16,920. Numbers on gratuitous relief—Saugor 16,398, Damoh 9,053, Jubbulpore 18,705, Mandla 21,977, Seoni 8,997, Narsinghpur 8,187, Hoshangabad 6,902, Nimar 1,987, Betul 10,030, Chhindwara 8,215, Wardha 899, Nagpur 5,466, Chanda 7,163, Bhandara 15,253, Balaghat 11,528, Raipur 18,633, and Bilaspur 25,083; total 1,94,476. Burma.—For week ending 20th November.—In Lower Burma some damage to crops from insects is reported from two townships in Pegu, but otherwise crop prospects are everywhere excellent. In Upper Burma beneficial rain has fallen during the week in several districts, and standing crops are generally in good condition. The reaping of early paddy is in general progress, and the reaping of the main wet-weather paddy crop has commenced in Thayetmyo, Minbu, Myitkyina, and the Ruby Mines districts. The cultivation of inland crops is proceeding. More rain is wanted in the Pakokku township, Myingyan township, Magwe, Myedu township of Shwebo and in the Yamethin township, where the later planted crops are likely to fail. The price of paddy has risen considerably in Shwebo; slightly in Prome, Pakokku, and Mandalay; fallen largely in Yamethin; and considerably in Akyab, Pegu, and Bassein:

elsewhere stationary. The numbers on relief works were—Myingyan 5,817. On gratuitous relief 1,474. Total number on relief 7,291. Price of rice—Myingyan 10 seers 4 chattaks per rupee.

FIELD OPERATIONS.

MALAKAND.

No. 1317.—The Right Hon'ble the Viceroy and Governor General of India in Council directs the publication of the subjoined communication from the Adjutant-General in India, submitting under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief in India a despatch from Major-General Sir Bindon Blood, K.C.B., Commanding the Malakand Field Force, detailing the operations of that force from the 6th September to the 27th October 1897.

2. The Governor General in Council concurs in His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief's expression of approval of the general conduct of these operations and of the skill and resource shown by Sir Bindon Blood. His Excellency in Council also shares with the Commander-in-Chief his appreciation of the gallantry and discipline displayed by all ranks throughout the operations.

From the Adjutant-General in India, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department,—(No. 2094-F,—"Field Operations—Malakand,"—dated Simla, the 11th November 1897).

I have the honor, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to submit, for the information of the Government of India, a despatch from Major-General Sir B. Blood, K.C.B., detailing the operations of the Malakand Field Force from the 6th September to the 27th October 1897.

2. The plan of operations which the Commander-in-Chief had in view when recommending to the Government of India the movement of this Force was that two brigades should enter the Mohmand country from the north, while a division of similar strength under Major-General E. R. Elles, C.B., was to advance into the same country from the south, and by their combined movements the Mohmand country was to be traversed in the shortest possible time and in the most complete manner.

3. The rising of the Mamunds and other tribes in South Bajaur necessitated an alteration in this plan, the 3rd Brigade only of the Malakand Field Force being employed against the Mohmands, the 1st and 2nd Brigades being fully occupied in subduing Bajaur.

4. The movements of the 3rd Brigade after its junction with the Mohmand Field Force will be found in detail in a despatch from Major-General E. R. Elles, C.B., which has already been submitted to the Government of India.

5. The Commander-in-Chief considers that Brigadier-General Jeffreys' disposition of the troops under his command on the 16th September showed that that officer had greatly underestimated the fighting power of the Mamunds as regards both numbers and strength of position. His Excellency has, however, much pleasure in endorsing Major-General Sir Bindon Blood's commendation of the subsequent operations of this brigade.

6. Sir George White desires me to express his approval of the general conduct of the operations carried out under Sir Bindon Blood's directions, and of the resource and appreciation of the situation he evinced when confronted with unexpected difficulties. He also concurs in the terms in which Major-General Sir Bindon Blood speaks of the services rendered by Brigadier-Generals W. H. Meiklejohn, C.B., C.M.G., and J. H. Wodehouse, C.B., C.M.G., the latter of whom was severely wounded in the night attack on the 3rd Brigade on the 20th September.

7. The gallantry and discipline of the troops were, in Sir George White's opinion, conspicuous throughout the operations, especially so in the night attacks made by the enemy on the 14th, 16th and 20th September, as well as during the trying incidents of the 16th September, and in the attack on the villages of Agrah and Gat on the 30th September.

The valuable reconnaissances made by the 11th Bengal Lancers under Major Beatson, when establishing connection with Major-General Elles' force, and the skilful handling of the cavalry of the Corps of Guides by Lieutenant-Colonel Adams on the 30th September, appear to the Commander-in-Chief to be specially worthy of commendation.

8. His Excellency has much pleasure in endorsing the favourable terms in which Sir Bindon Blood has mentioned Colonel A. J. F. Reid, who was responsible for a great portion of the Line of Communications and for the efficient supply of the troops at the front, as well as in commending to the favourable notice of Government the staff, departmental, and regimental officers named in the despatch.

9. The advance made in knowledge of their special duties evinced by transport officers during the operations now reported on, and the attention that has been paid to the care and treatment of the transport animals are, in Sir George White's opinion, most satisfactory and creditable.

10. In conclusion, the Commander-in-Chief desires to bring to the notice of Government the services rendered by Major-General Morton, C.B., Adjutant-General in India, and Major-General Badcock, C.B., C.S.I., Quartermaster-General in India, in the performance of the onerous duties which devolved upon them in connection with these operations.

From MAJOR-GENERAL SIR B. BLOOD, K.C.B., Commanding the Malakand Field Force, to the Adjutant-General in India,— No. 5,—"Despatches—Malakand Field Force,"—dated 27th October 1897).

I regret to find that in my report, "Despatches—Malakand Field Force" No. 3 of the 20th August 1897, I omitted to include the name of Surgeon-Captain E. V. Hugo, Indian Medical Service, amongst those of the officers recommended to the favourable consideration of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief for their services during the recent defence of Chakdara Fort. I now have great pleasure in stating that Surgeon-Captain Hugo served with distinction throughout the defence in question, and in recommending him for favourable consideration accordingly.

2. The last report I had the honour to submit ("Despatches—Malakand Field Force," No. 4 of the 30th August 1897) brought the history of the Malakand Field Force down to the 26th August, on which date the brigade of all arms which I took into Upper Swat returned to Thana in Lower Swat.

3. The period from the 27th August to the 6th September was taken up with routine work, and latterly with movements preparatory to the expedition into the Mohmand country, an account of which I will now proceed to give.

4. On the 6th September, in pursuance of orders which I had received, to march two brigades viâ the Panjkora Bridge and Nawagai to Shabkadr in the Peshawar Valley, the disposition of the Malakand Field Force was generally as follows:—

3rd Brigade, equipped with camels and a few mules, at the Panjkora Bridge and Uch.

2nd Brigade, equipped entirely with mules, at Chakdara.

1st Brigade, equipped with camels, carts, and a few mules, at Khar, the Malakand and the Line.

Divisional head-quarters, with camp offices, at Chakdara.

5. A very interesting feature in the movements by which this disposition was arrived at was the march of the 10th Field Battery under Major C. A. Anderson, R.A., first from Khar to Uch over the suspension bridge at Chakdara, which was built for pack transport only, and afterwards from Uch to the Panjkora Bridge by the mule road through the Shigu Kas dehle,—performances which show how our field artillery can overcome difficulties. The presence of this battery with its 12-pr. guns was of great value on many occasions during the operations I am about to describe.

6. Some little delay being necessitated by political arrangements with the Jandol Chiefs and others, the disposition of the force on the 12th September had only altered to the following:—

3rd Brigade, Watelai, three miles south-west of Khar, on the left bank of the Chaharmung stream.

2nd Brigade, Gosam.

1st Brigade, two battalions and the 10th Field Battery at Panjkora and Serai, the remainder on the Line.

Divisional head-quarters, with the 3rd Brigade, at Watelai.

7. On the 13th the 3rd Brigade halted, the 2nd Brigade moved to a point close to and south-west of Khar, and I personally examined the Rambat Pass, finding that the country to the south of it was very deficient in water and forage. This being so, I directed Brigadier-General P. D. Jeffreys, C.B., commanding the 2nd Brigade, to encamp on the 14th, north of Markhanai, to improve the Rambat Pass, to cross it into Butkor on the 15th with two battalions, a company of sappers and miners, a squadron, and five days' supplies, and to send the remainder of his brigade on the same day, under Colonel T. H. Goldney, 35th Sikhs, to join me at Nawagai, to which place I intended to march on the 14th with the 3rd Brigade. I further directed Brigadier-General Jeffreys to move his special force through Butkor as quickly as possible to Danish Kol, where I promised to join him, or send him further instructions. Both brigades carried with them rations for men up to the 23rd September; and I had arranged to drop my communications with the Malakand and draw my next supplies from Shabkadr, where the Mohmand Field Force, under Major-General E. R. Elles, C.B., was waiting to march on the 15th to join me in the Mohmand country south of Nawagai.

8. The movements detailed in the foregoing paragraph were duly carried out by the 2nd and 3rd Brigades, so far as the 14th was concerned; the 3rd Brigade, with divisional head-quarters, being encamped on the evening of that day about a mile south of the village of Nawagai, while Brigadier-General Jeffreys, with three battalions, a mountain battery and a squadron, was on the right bank of the Chaharmung stream, north of Markhanai, having detached the Buffs and the 4th Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, to the crest of the Rambat Pass, to prepare it for the passage of his special force next morning.

9. At about 8 P.M. on the 14th, while it was still quite dark before the moon rose, Brigadier-General Jeffreys' camp was suddenly assailed by a heavy musketry fire from the ravines close by. The attack was continued with little intermission for six hours, being directed at first chiefly against the faces of the camp held by the Guides under Major F. Campbell and the 35th Sikhs under Colonel T. H. Goldney, and afterwards against that defended by the 38th Dogras under Lieutenant-Colonel F. G. Vivian. The enemy showed no inclination to come to close quarters, and ultimately drew off about 2 A.M., doubtless having in view the desirableness of getting beyond reach of cavalry before day-light. This, however, they did not succeed in doing, as they were overtaken in the Mamund Valley about 8 A.M. on the 15th by Captain E. H. Cole and his squadron of the 11th Bengal Lancers, who killed 21 of them and dispersed the rest.

10. I regret to say that two British officers were killed* and one dangerously wounded† in this affair. The other casualties were,—killed,—two native soldiers and two followers; wounded,—one native officer, five other native ranks and two followers; ninty-eight horses and transport animals were also killed or wounded.

* Captain W. E. Tomkins and Lieutenant A. W. Bailey.
† Lieutenant H. A. Harington.

11. Meanwhile, on my arrival at Nawagai on the 14th September, I found the Khan disposed to be friendly, and to do all in his power to provide such supplies as we required. The Hadda Mullah was reported to be in the Bedmanai Pass with a small gathering, which was said to be increasing in numbers; but the tribes inhabiting the Mittai and neighbouring valleys seemed somewhat half-hearted about opposing us. The tribes south of the Rambat Pass also sent to disclaim hostile intentions; but, notwithstanding this, some of their men joined in the night attack of the 14th-15th on Brigadier-General Jeffreys' camp.

12. Early in the morning of the 15th I received a brief report by heliograph of the attack on Brigadier-General Jeffreys' camp the night before, and at once sent him orders to concentrate his force and proceed to the punishment of the tribes concerned. Later in the day I received a fuller report of what had happened, together with information from Brigadier-General Jeffreys that he had received my orders and was concentrating his brigade at Inayat Kili in the Mamund Valley, with a view to carrying them out. He had ascertained that the attack on his camp had been made by a small gathering of Mamunds, who had been reinforced by some of Umra Khan's followers from Zagai, a village in the Mamund Valley, and by a few men from the neighbouring tribes.

13. Naturally the night attack of the 14th-15th, with the consequent turning aside into the Mamund Valley of Brigadier-General Jeffreys' brigade, made a considerable change in the aspect of affairs in South Bajaur and the Mohmand country; and the strategical situation which had now developed itself was interesting. I found myself at Nawagai with a brigade of all arms ‡ in a strongly entrenched position, faced by the Hadda Mullah's gathering in the Bedmanai Pass,—a not very difficult defile some six or eight miles in length, the mouth of which is about seven miles south-west in a straight line from the site of my camp,—itself about one mile south of Nawagai village. The intervening ground is a plain of which the western half is cut up by ravines, while the rest is favourable for cavalry. East of and behind me lay the road to the camp of the 2nd Brigade at Inayat Kili running for about six miles through a net work of deep ravines, and then for the remaining six or seven over a plain. I was not strong enough to attack the Mullah's gathering in their position with a sufficient amount of odds in my favour, while I did not think it advisable to rejoin Brigadier-General Jeffreys,—first, because he was strong § enough already for immediate requirements; secondly, because it would have been most unwise to have retired through the ravines above mentioned in face of the Mullah's gathering; thirdly, because I expected that one of Major-General Elles' brigades would join me in the Nawagai Valley on the 17th or the 18th at latest, and, finally, because my support was necessary to keep the Khan of Nawagai with us,—as, if I had deserted him, he would have been compelled by the Mullah's men to throw in his lot with them, which would have been a serious matter on account of his influence in Bajaur. Accordingly, I determined to stay where I was until Major-General Elles' advance should make it possible to dispose effectually of the Mullah's gathering, and to clear out the Bedmanai Pass and the Mittai and neighbouring valleys with completeness.

14. At about 6-30 on the morning of the 16th September, Brigadier-General Jeffreys moved out from his camp at Inayat Kili, with the greater portion of his force in three columns, to deal with the villages of the Mamunds.

15. The right column under Lieutenant-Colonel Vivian, 38th Dogras, consisting of six companies and a detachment of sappers, was directed along the eastern side of the Mamund Valley on the villages of Shinkot, Chingai 1st, Damadoiah and Badam Kili; the central column under Colonel Goldney, 35th Sikhs, consisting of six companies, four guns, one squadron and a detachment of sappers, was directed against the villages of Munar, Hazarnao and Badalai; while the left column, under Major Campbell of the Guides, was composed of five companies and a detachment of sappers, and was directed along the right bank of the Watelai ravine parallel to the centre column.

16. The right column, under Lieutenant-Colonel Vivian, having advanced by the route ordered as far as Damadolah, found that place too strong and too strongly held to be reasonably attempted without artillery, and returned thence to camp, arriving at 4 P.M., with two men slightly wounded.

17. The centre column, under Colonel Goldney, 35th Sikhs, advanced some six miles up the valley without seeing anything of the enemy, who were first reported at Badam Kili, to which place a detachment under Lieutenant-Colonel A. E. Ommanney was sent to dislodge them. The remainder of the column pushed on, and at about 10-30 A.M. two companies of the 35th Sikhs, which led the advance, occupied a knoll near Shahi Tangi, upwards of nine miles from camp. In this movement, however, the two companies advanced too far from their supports, and as the enemy promptly attacked them in force, they were compelled to retire about a mile, with the loss of one British officer and one sepoy killed and sixteen non-commissioned officers and sepoys wounded. Soon afterwards the Buffs, under Lieutenant-Colonel Ommanney, coming up, the knoll was again occupied without much opposition, being the furthest point reached by the column.

18. During this advance the guns came into action,—first on the spur north of Badalai, and afterwards on that north of Chingai 2nd. They were covered in the first position by two companies of the 35th Sikhs, posted to their right; and on their moving towards the second position, one-and-a-half of these companies, under Captain W. I. Ryder, were ordered to cover the movement by climbing to the top of the high ridge to their right, and then advancing along it towards the north. Owing to subsequent orders not reaching him, Captain Ryder went further than was intended.

19. In the earlier part of the day the left column had remained far behind, being fully occupied for some considerable time in dealing with the numerous villages met with along the road shortly after leaving camp. Towards 9 A.M. it was called up by Brigadier-General Jeffreys, as the enemy began to appear in force on his left near Agrah, and it joined the centre column about noon.

20. At about 2-30 P.M., as soon as the fortified villages of Chingai 2nd and Shahi Tangi had been dismantled, Brigadier-General Jeffreys ordered the troops to return to camp. Captain Ryder was still on the high ridge above Chingai 2nd, along which he attempted to retire in a direction which diverged from the line of retreat of the main body of the force. Soon after the retirement commenced, a message was received from him stating that he was hard pressed and could not rejoin the main body, whereupon Brigadier-General Jeffreys ordered Major Campbell, with six companies of the Guides Infantry, to go to his assistance, which they did about 4 P.M., a short time being taken up in assembling the companies, which were in extended order.

21. The fact of this movement having to be undertaken so late in the afternoon was a most unfortunate occurrence, since Brigadier-General Jeffreys had to wait until the safety of the Guides and Captain Ryder's detachment was assured, and the consequent delay at that time of day made it impossible for him to reach camp before dark.

22. The Guides, under Major Campbell, most successfully and gallantly relieved and brought off Captain Ryder's detachment, which had suffered heavy losses. The combined detachments did not, however, succeed in rejoining Brigadier-General Jeffreys, being prevented by nightfall and a thunderstorm which came on about the same time. Ultimately they made their way to camp without further loss, arriving about 9 P.M.

23. Meanwhile, as soon as the safety of Captain Ryder's detachment was certain, Brigadier-General Jeffreys continued his retirement towards camp. So long as daylight lasted the enemy kept at a respectful distance from him, but as it got dark they got bold, and the ground being broken and difficult, they were able to bring a hot fire to bear on the troops, while a heavy thunderstorm, which came on at dusk, greatly increased the difficulties of the situation. Ultimately, however, by about 8-30 P.M., all the troops had arrived in camp, except Brigadier-General Jeffreys, four guns of No. 8 (Bengal) Mountain Battery, a small party of sappers and a few men of the Buffs and 35th Sikhs, who got separated from the rest in the darkness.

24. About dusk Brigadier-General Jeffreys, then about three miles and half from camp, decided to occupy a neighbouring village, called Bilot, for the night, chiefly with a view to sheltering the battery mules with him from the enemy's sharp-shooters; and while he was engaged in arranging this, the thunderstorm before referred to came on, causing sudden and complete darkness. In the consequent confusion the troops got [illegible] and only the detachments above detailed remained with Brigadier-General Jeffreys, [illegible] to occupy and entrench a re-entering angle of the village, part of which was burning, [illegible] rest was soon occupied by the enemy, who fired on the General and his detachment [illegible] walls at a few yards' range, inflicting serious losses in men and animals. This [illegible] continued, in spite of several gallant attempts to clear the village, which were [illegible] days' [illegible] Lieutenants T. C. Watson and J. M. C. Colvin, R.E., until the arrival about midnight [illegible] J. F. Worlledge, 35th Sikhs with two companies of the Guides and two of his own [illegible] After this the enemy were easily driven off and gave no further annoyance during the [illegible]

25. Major Worlledge had left camp about 5-30 P.M. in [illegible] order from Brigadier-General Jeffreys, and on joining the General about dark had [illegible] to find and support the Guides under Major Campbell. Failing to find the Guides [illegible], Major Worlledge tried to retrace his steps to the General, but only succeeded in finding him after the moon rose about midnight, although he had been close to him for some time previously without knowing it. Brigadier-General Jeffreys ultimately reached camp at 8 A.M. on the 17th, some of the troops there having been sent out to his assistance, and returning with him.

26. I regret to have to report that a large number of casualties occurred during these operations, as will be seen from the attached return, namely, killed—two British officers,* two other British ranks, 31 native non-commissioned officers and sepoys and one follower; wounded—five British officers,† nine other British ranks, three native officers, 92 other native ranks and three followers; missing—three sepoys,—being a total of 151 killed, wounded and missing. In addition, 48 horses and mules were killed, wounded or missing; and one gun was disabled through the breaking of its axle.

27. The behaviour of the troops throughout this trying day was very good. The steadiness and discipline shown by the 1st Battalion of the Buffs, under Lieutenant-Colonel Ommanney, were admirable, while Brigadier-General Jeffreys has specially commended the gallantry with which the Guides Infantry under Major Campbell brought off Captain Ryder's detachment of the 35th Sikhs, carrying the wounded on their backs under a heavy fire. He has further strongly endorsed Major Campbell's favourable mention of the courage and judgment shown by Captain G. B. Hodson and Lieutenant H. W. Codrington, of the Guides, who commanded the companies of the battalion which were chiefly in contact with the enemy; the gallantry of Surgeon-Captain J. Fisher, Indian Medical Service, who made a most determined, though unsuccessful, attempt to take medical aid to the wounded of Captain Ryder's detachment through a hot fire; of Surgeon Lieutenant E. L. Perry, Indian Medical Service, of Jemadar Sikandar Khan of the Guides, and of several non-commissioned officers and sepoys of the same corps, regarding whom I have had the honour to make a separate communication.

28. Brigadier-General Jeffreys has also described in very favourable terms the gallant and valuable work done on this day by Captain Cole and his squadron of the 11th Bengal Lancers. He has commended the conduct of Captain W. I. Ryder and Lieutenant O. G Gunning, 35th Sikhs, who were both wounded, and of Jemadar Narayan Singh, Havildar Ram Singh and Sepoy Karram Singh * of the same regiment. He has also brought to notice a gallant act of Captain A. H C Birch, R.A., Commanding No 8 (Bengal) Mountain Battery, and his Trumpeter Jiwan, in rescuing a wounded sepoy of the 35th Sikhs; as well as the distinguished gallantry of Jemadars Nawab and Ishar Singh and several non-commissioned officers and men of the same battery, in regard to which I have made separate communications to you.

* This man's case has formed the subject of a separate communication.

29. Brigadier-General Jeffreys further refers in the strongest terms of commendation to the gallant conduct of Lieutenants T. C. Watson† and J. M. C. Colvin, R.E., and of the handful of men of the Buffs and No. 4 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, who spent the night of the 16th 17th with him in the village of Bilot. The conduct of these officers and men‡ in entering the village several times in the dark, in face of a heavy fire directed upon them at close quarters, seems deserving of the highest recognition, and I have consequently made a special communication to you on the subject. Brigadier-General Jeffreys has also commended the gallant conduct of his Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General,§ Major E. O. F. Hamilton, 1st Battalion, The Queen's Royal West Surrey Regiment, and finally he has praised the courage and resolution of Lieutenant W. L. S. Churchill, 4th Hussars, the correspondent of the Pioneer newspaper with the force, who made himself useful at a critical moment.

† Twice wounded in attempting to clear the village.

‡ Of whom six were killed and 18 wounded on this occasion, out of a total strength of 54.

§ The remainder of Brigadier-General Jeffreys' staff was with the main body when it got separated from him.

30. On the 17th September, the troops of the 2nd Brigade rested, and timely arrangements were made for bringing up supplies of ammunition and food and for sending the wounded down the line. On the 18th, Brigadier-General Jeffreys resumed the punishment of the Mamunds, attacking and destroying the strongly fortified village of Damadolah, with a loss of two sepoys killed and six wounded. On this occasion the enemy lost many killed and wounded, and some 300 loads of their grain and other supplies were carried off for the use of our troops. On the 19th, Brigadier-General Jeffreys seized and destroyed the group of villages called Hazarnao without opposition. On the 20th, he captured and burned Umra Khan's strong village of Zagai, some seven miles from camp, with the loss of two British officers, nine other British ranks, and two sepoys wounded. On the 22nd, he took and destroyed the fortified village of Dag, with the loss of one sepoy killed and two wounded. On this day I arrived at Inayat Kila from Nawagai.

31. While the events above described were occurring in South Bajaur nothing of special interest happened at Nawagai until the 19th September. The Hadda Mullah's gathering was reported to be increasing, and some men belonging to it fired ineffectually at our evening patrols on the 15th and 16th from the ravines near the mouth of the Bedmanai Pass. The country was regularly reconnoitered in various directions, and the cavalry under Major S. B. Beatson, 11th Bengal Lancers, accompanied by Captain Stanton, D.S.O., R.A., Deputy Assistant Quarter-master-General for Intelligence, penetrated on the 15th as far as Ato Khel, five or six miles north of the Nahakki (or Nakki) Pass, over which the Mohmand Field Force under Major-General Elles, C.B., was daily expected to appear. On the afternoon of the 17th, some 1,500 men of the Hadda Mullah's gathering appeared close under the hills at the mouth of the Bedmanai Pass, about seven miles from camp, and I turned out part of the brigade to meet them if they should advance. Nothing happened, however, as the enemy remained where they were, too far off for me to reach them without being benighted in the ravines afterwards. On the 18th, Captain Norie, Superintendent of Signalling with my force, opened heliographic communication with a detachment of Major-General Elles' force, which had arrived at the top of the Nahakki Pass.

32. At 5-30 P.M., on the 19th, about 2,000 of the Hadda Mullah's men appeared at the mouth of the Bedmanai Pass, and seemed to be engaged for an hour or so in some kind of dance. Ultimately, about dusk, they commenced to move towards our camp, and soon afterwards I was informed by the son of the Khan of Nawagai that they meant to attack us before morning. Accordingly at about 11 P.M. some 150 men, chiefly swordsmen, made a rush at the portion of the camp defended by the 1st Battalion, Queen's West Surrey Regiment, under Lieutenant-Colonel J. S. Collins, who easily repulsed them, when, after trying other parts of the camp in a half-hearted way for a few minutes, they drew off and commenced skirmishing with the Khan of Nawagai's men, who were on outpost duty about a mile off, finally disappearing about 12·30 A.M. Our losses in the affair were, one British soldier killed and one severely wounded, besides several horses and transport animals killed or wounded. We were afterwards informed that about 1,200 men advanced against our camp on this occasion, but that the warm manner in which their first line was received stopped the rest.

33. On the 20th, I received a message from Major-General Elles, C.B., saying that he would meet me at 10 A.M. next day at Lakarai with his 1st Brigade under Brigadier-General Westmacott, C.B., D.S.O., to concert arrangements for further joint action. To this I replied that I would place my 3rd Brigade at his disposal with a view to his attacking the Hadda Mullah's gathering as soon as possible, and that I intended to join my 2nd Brigade at Inayat Kili in the Mamund Valley on the 22nd. In the afternoon I made a reconnaissance in force towards Kuz Chinarai, at the mouth of the Bedmanai Pass, whereupon the enemy appeared at the adjoining mouth of the Mittai Valley in considerable force; but as they remained at such a distance that I could not deal with them without being benighted during my return to camp, I did not attack them. Ultimately when I retired they advanced at a very respectful distance, and when last seen before dark they were about two miles from camp. On this occasion also I was warned by the Khan of Nawagai that the enemy meant to attack before morning, and I was informed, besides, that some fresh contingents had joined them.

34. Accordingly, at about 9 P.M., we were vigorously attacked by a force probably not less than 3,000 strong, with about 100 Martini-Henry and several Lee-Metford rifles, besides many other fire-arms.

The attack was well carried out by rushes of swordsmen covered by a smart fire of small arms; and the firing, with rushes at intervals, sometimes against three sides of the camp at the same time, went on till about 2 A.M., when the enemy drew off. They were nowhere to be seen at daylight when I sent the cavalry out in pursuit.

The steadiness of the troops during this somewhat trying action was quite perfect, and the safety of the camp was never in the slightest degree doubtful, although the enemy's swordsmen were so determined that many of them were shot down close to the entrenchment. The fire discipline of the infantry was shown to be excellent, especially that of the 1st Battalion, Queen's, under Lieutenant-Colonel Collins, who are in all respects an example of what a battalion of infantry should be. The star shell fired by the mountain battery were most useful, and shrapnel and case were also fired at different times with great effect, all under the direction of Lieutenant-Colonel W. Aitken, C.B., Commanding the Royal Artillery with my force. In short, the affair was a most satisfactory one, as proving the admirable discipline, confidence, and steady shooting of our troops, as well as the efficiency of the simple defensive arrangements which had been made.

35. I regret to have to report that Brigadier General J. H. Wodehouse, C.B., C.M.G., was severely wounded in this action. The other casualties were one British soldier killed; one British officer,* three other British ranks, one native officer, 19 other native ranks, and six followers wounded. In addition, 115 horses and transport animals were killed or wounded. Since the action it has been ascertained that besides the 3,000 men who had actually attacked us, some 2,000 more were at a little distance awaiting events, and that their losses were at least 330 in killed alone.

* Veterinary-Captain H. T. W. Mann, Army Veterinary Department.

36. On the 21st, I met Major-General Elles at Lakarai and made the arrangements with him which I have already detailed. Next morning, the 22nd September, my 3rd Brigade, the command of which had devolved on Lieutenant-Colonel B. C. Graves, 39th Garhwalis, after Brigadier-General Wodehouse was wounded, marched to Kuz Chinarai to join Major General Elles, while I proceeded to Inayat Kili, in the Mamund Valley, and joined my 2nd Brigade under Brigadier-General Jeffreys.

37. Next day, the 23rd September, my 3rd Brigade took part in the seizure of the Bedmana Pass, one British soldier being wounded in the operations. On the 24th the brigade attacked and destroyed the fortified villages in the Mittai Valley, two men of the 1st Battalion of the Queen's being wounded in the skirmishing which took place; and on the 25th a similar operation was carried out in the Suran Valley, without loss, by a column detached from the brigade, under Lieutenant-Colonel Collins, of the Queen's. On the 26th, the brigade marched to Lakarai, and thence viâ the Gandab Valley to Peshawar, where it was broken up and its troops merged into the Tirah Expeditionary Force.

38. On my arrival at Inayat Kili, on the 22nd, I found that about 170 sick and wounded were with the 2nd Brigade, and that arrangements were in progress to send all the serious cases down the line, starting on the 26th. On the 22nd, Brigadier-General Jeffreys destroyed the fortified village of Dag, as already related in paragraph 30, ante.

39. On the 23rd September, Brigadier-General Jeffreys proceeded to deal with the village of Tangai, near Dag. The opposition on this day was slight, and the casualties were one officer, Major R. S. H. Moody, of the Buffs, and one sepoy wounded.

40. For some days different individuals and sections of the Mamunds had been asking for time to enable their jirgas to meet, with a view to submission; and on the 23rd, as there really seemed a prospect of a settlement being arrived at, I granted a cessation of hostilities for two days which I afterwards increased to three. On the evening of the third day a jirga came in, and as after this some days were required for discussion of terms, and I wished to be at the end of the telegraph line for a day or two, I started for Panjkora Bridge on the 27th with a force which Brigadier-General Meiklejohn had brought to Jhar on the 24th as escort to a convoy.

41. Brigadier-General Meiklejohn, with the head-quarters of the 1st Brigade, had arrived at Panjkora Bridge on the 11th September, and in accordance with the arrangements mentioned at the conclusion of paragraph 7 above, under which I dropped my communications with the Malakand when my 2nd Brigade left Gosam on the 13th, he withdrew on the 15th to Sarai. Then, however, as the task of dealing with the Mamunds seemed likely to last for some days, it became necessary for the communications viâ the Panjkora Bridge to be restored, and Brigadier-General Meiklejohn, having returned on the 17th September to that post, carried out the important work of pushing supplies forward to Brigadier-General Jeffreys' brigade at Inayat Kili, which is about 23 miles from the Panjkora Bridge.

42. At this time I was under orders with the 1st and 2nd Brigades of my force to join the Tirah Expeditionary Force, then being formed, but on my arrival at Panjkora Bridge on the 28th September I received instructions to remain on in command of the Malakand Field Force, with a view to settling affairs in Bajaur and to maintaining order there and in the neighbouring districts during the progress of the Tirah operations.

43. As various matters of details had to be arranged in connection with these orders, I halted at Panjkora Bridge until the 2nd October, on which date I rejoined Brigadier-General Jeffreys at Inayat Kili. At the same time I moved up Brigadier-General Meiklejohn and the head-quarters of his brigade, with four field guns under Major C. A. Anderson, R.A., and four mountain guns under Captain A. H. C Birch, R.A. These additions raised the force at Inayat Kili by the 4th October, to a total of two brigades of three and two-and-a-half battalions, respectively, with fourteen guns, three squadrons, and two companies of sappers. The battalions were much below strength, averaging only about 550 men each.

44. Meanwhile the negotiations with the Mamunds, which I mentioned in paragraph 40, had come to nothing, chiefly, I think, because the tribesmen became aware of the orders for my force to join the Tirah Force, and thought they had only to hold out a few days to get rid of us. In consequence of this action on their part, Brigadier-General Jeffreys recommenced operations against them on the 29th September, visiting several villages in the valley near Inayat Kili on that day, and bringing in large quantities of supplies without opposition.

45. On the 30th September, Brigadier-General Jeffreys attacked and took the villages of Agrah and Gat, about seven miles north of Inayat Kili. These villages are strongly placed for mutual support on the southern face of a spur which runs eastwards from the high range of mountains whose crest forms the Afghan boundary. There are minor spurs on the east and west of the two villages, that to the eastward being rather far off; a third spur, crowned by huge boulders runs up between the others to a small peak below Gat, and adds greatly to the strength of the position. On the 30th September, the enemy held Agrah and Gat in considerable force, and departing from their usual tactics vigorously opposed the advance of our troops: but after some fighting at close quarters the villages were carried by the 1st Battalion, Royal West Kent Regiment, under Major C. W. H. Evans,—the Guides Infantry, under Major F. Campbell, seizing and occupying the spurs on the left, and the 31st Punjab Infantry the rugged central spurs; while No. 7 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery, under Major M. F. Fegan, covered the advance, with their fire; and the Guides Cavalry, under Lieutenant-Colonel R. B. Adams, held in check in the most bold and brilliant manner a considerable force of the enemy who advanced from the westward towards our left flank. Lieutenant-Colonel J. L. O'Bryen, 31st Punjab Infantry, was mortally wounded while gallantly leading his battalion, and our other casualties were—killed, Second-Lieutenant W. C. Browne-Clayton, 1st Battalion, Royal West Kent Regiment, three British and seven native soldiers; wounded, six British officers, twenty-one British and twenty-two native soldiers,—total 61 casualties. The enemy suffered severely in this action, and did not display their usual enterprise in following our infantry to the level ground, on their withdrawal and return to camp.

46. The next operation of interest was on the 3rd October, when Brigadier-General Jeffreys, whose force had now been increased by half a battalion and four mountain guns, seized and destroyed the village of Badalai without opposition. During his return to camp, however, the enemy showed in great force at the upper end of the valley, and advanced among the ravines to within 1,000 to 1,200 yards of the troops covering his withdrawal. They were kept in check without any difficulty, but as they had many Martini-Henry rifles and expended a great quantity of ammunition, they caused a loss on our side of two killed and sixteen wounded, in spite of the long ranges at which they fired.

47. On the 4th October, the arrival of four guns of the 10th Field Battery, under Major Anderson, R.A., and of the 2nd Battalion, Highland Light Infantry, under Lieutenant-Colonel R. D. B Rutherford, brought the force at my disposal at Inayat Kili up to the strength detailed in paragraph 43. Major H. A. Deane, C.S.I., the Political Agent of Dir, Swat and Chitral, arrived the same day, and as he recommended a cessation of hostilities for a few days to enable the Khan of Nawagai, and his brothers, the Khans of Khar and Jhar, to recommence negotiations with the tribes, who were reported to be again anxious to make terms, I discontinued operations with the exception of the daily foraging.

48. Ultimately the Mamund jirga came in and made submission on the 11th October, and on the following day the force marched to Jhar, advancing on the 13th to a position about three miles up the Salarzai Valley. Here the force halted until the 19th October while negotiations were carried on by the political officers with the Salarzai tribe, who were required to surrender some rifles and other fire-arms as a punishment for joining in the attack on Chakadara Fort in July and August last. These negotiations having been successfully concluded, the force moved back to Jhar on the 20th October, where the Shamozai section of the Utman Khels who had also taken part in the attack on Chakdara Fort, were in like manner called upon to surrender arms; and after they had done so the force started on the 22nd for the Swat Valley, where they were all assembled on the 27th October.

49. It will have been observed, of course, that there was much more difficulty in dealing with the Mamunds than was experienced with the Swatis, the Masazai Mohmands, or with the Mamund's neighbours, the Salarzai and Shamozai.

50. Much of this difficulty was due to the fact that our invasion of the Mamund Valley was not preceded by a decisive action like that at the Malakand on the 2nd August, at Landakai on the 17th August, at Nawagai on the night of the 20th September, or as in the case of the Salarzai and Shamozai, by such an object lesson as our operations against the Mamunds themselves.

51. Besides this, however, the special physical features of the Mamund Valley gave the tribe great advantages, which they utilized with considerable tactical skill. It will be seen from the accompanying map that the valley consists of a broad and gently sloping plateau, cut up by ravines, especially towards the top, and with hills rising somewhat suddenly on all sides. This plateau is well cultivated for rain crops, but is practically waterless at this season; the only good water above a point near Inayat Kili being in the ravines on the sides of the hills, where many of the most important villages are consequently situated, those on the level depending for their water-supply on tanks, or, in one or two cases, on doubtful wells. Thus, as soon as the lower villages had been dealt with, which was done without opposition, it was necessary for our troops to attack those on the sides of the hills, on ground very difficult for assailants and extremely favourable for defenders.

52. The tribesmen were further much assisted by the circumstances that a great part of their best lands lie in Afghanistan, on the north-western side of the high range of mountains whose crest forms the Afghan frontier in that direction. Thus, much of their property was beyond our reach, while they had a secure refuge to which they could send their moveables from our side of the frontier, and betake themselves if pressed. They showed commendable skill and patience in adhering to the only tactics which could give them any measure of success, always retiring* before our troops so long as they advanced, and then following them up in skirmishing order as far as the open ground on their withdrawal to their camp, which had to remain low down the valley on account of the difficulty about water higher up. The more credit is due to the Mamunds for holding out so well, as they suffered† severely in every encounter with us, besides undergoing much loss of property and destruction of their defences, whose speedy reconstruction, though costly and difficult for them, is necessary to their existence.

* There was an exception at Agrah and Gat on the 30th September.

† It is now known that 220 of the tribes were killed, besides about 150 of their friends who came to help them.

53. Both in the Nawagai and Mamund Valleys a considerable number of Martini-Henry and other rifles were used against us with apparently unlimited supplies of ammunition.

54. The conduct and discipline of the troops in the operations under reference was in the highest degree satisfactory. The operations, which extended over seven weeks, were carried on without tents and on a very low scale of baggage, while the rations, though abundant and excellent in all respects, were necessarily open to the objection of sameness. Notwithstanding these inconveniences, the troops remained uniformly cheerful, especially when active hostilities were going on.

55. I have already alluded to the steadiness and gallant bearing of the infantry in the several engagements that took place during the operations under reference, and I would now wish to invite attention to the invaluable nature of the services rendered by the cavalry. At Nawagai three squadrons of the 11th Bengal Lancers, under Major S. B. Beatson, swept the country everywhere that cavalry could go, carrying out reconnaissances, protecting signalling parties, and watching every movement of the enemy. In the Mamund Valley a squadron of the same regiment, under Captain E. H. Cole, took part in every engagement that occurred while they were there, establishing such a reputation that the enemy even when in greatly superior numbers never dared to face them in the open. Afterwards, when Captain Cole and his men left the Mamund Valley, the Guides Cavalry, under Lieutenant-Colonel Adams, being in greater strength, acted still more effectually in the same manner, showing tactical skill of a high order, combined with conspicuous gallantry.

56. A very interesting feature of the operations was the presence of field artillery in the Mamund and Salarzai Valleys, where, although active operations did not go on after their arrival, their presence produced a great effect, while it was amply proved that they could have been brought into most useful action with comparative ease.

57. The health of the force was remarkably good throughout, only seven British and five native soldiers and eight followers having died from disease between the 6th September and 27th October, out of a force (including Communications and Base Hospitals) which for nearly a month of that time included three brigades of infantry, besides a considerable proportion of the other arms.

58. The commissariat arrangements under Major H. Wharry, D.S.O., were most successful. The rations were always abundant and of uniformly good quality; and I may here observe that in five previous campaigns I have never seen the supply of bread anything like so continuously good as it has been throughout the operations of the Malakand Field Force. No doubt the excellence of the commissariat arrangements has had a great deal to do with the good state of health of the troops which I have remarked upon.

59. The transport was most efficient throughout the operations under reference, and its management under the direction of Captain C. G. K. Thackwell, Divisional Transport Officer, who was most ably and energetically assisted by Veterinary-Captain H. T. W. Mann, Senior Veterinary officer, was most successful. In proof of this I will cite a report just made to me by Brigadier-General Jeffreys, commanding the 2nd Brigade of my force, that this morning, on inspecting 1,265 mules attached to his brigade, which have just returned from seven weeks in the field, he found fourteen sore backs, and four animals otherwise unfit for work, or a total of only 18 disabled animals in all.

60. The medical service was carried out in a very satisfactory manner. Some difficulties arose on the transfer of officers and material to the Tirah Expeditionary Force on its formation, especially as large convoys of sick and wounded were on the line of this force at the time, but these difficulties were successfully overcome by Colonel A. J. F. Reid, commanding the Malakand Brigade, who was in charge of the Line, and matters were ultimately restored to smooth working on the arrival of Surgeon-Colonel J. C. G. Carmichael, Indian Medical Service, who is now Principal Medical Officer of the Force.

61. The telegraph arrangements were well carried out by Lieutenant W. Robertson, R.E., under the direction of Mr. C. E. Pitman, C.I.E. The postal service under Mr. H. C. Sheridan was also satisfactory.

62. The working of the several departments of the head-quarters staff was most satisfactory and successful. The heads of departments were—

Major H. H. Burney, Gordon Highlanders, Assistant Adjutant-General.
Lieutenant-Colonel A. Masters, 2nd Regiment, Central India Horse, Assistant Quartermaster-General.
Captain H. E. Stanton, D.S.O., R.A., Deputy or Assistant or Quartermaster-General (Intelligence).
Captain E. W. M. Norie, Middlesex Regiment, Superintendent, Army Signalling.
Surgeon-Colonel J. C. G Carmichael, Indian Medical Service, Principal Medical Officer.
Lieutenant-Colonel W. Aitken, C.B., R.A., Commanding Royal Artillery.
Colonel J. E. Broadbent, R.E., Commanding Royal Engineer,—relieved early in October by Lieutenant-Colonel W. Peacocke, C.M.G., R.E.
Captain W. E. Banbury, 25th Madras Infantry, Field Treasure Chest Officer.
Captain W. W. Cookson, R.A., Ordnance Officer.
Major H. Wharry, D.S.O., Staff Corps, Chief Commissariat Officer.
Captain C. G. K. Thackwell, Staff Corps, Divisional Transport Officer.
Veterinary-Captain H. T. W. Mann, * Army Veterinary Department, Senior Veterinary Officer.
* Wounded in action, 20th September 1897.
Captain C. L. Robertson, R. E., Survey Officer.
Captain C. G. F. Edwards, 5th Punjab Cavalry, Provost Marshal.
The Revd. L. Klogh, Chaplain.
Lieutenant W. Robertson, R. E., in charge of Telegraphs.

63. I am under great obligations to my personal staff—Captain A. B. Dunsterville, 1st Battalion, East Surrey Regiment, Aide-de-Camp; Captain A. R. Dick, 2nd Punjab Cavalry, and Lieutenant Viscount Fincastle, 16th (The Queen's) Lancers.

64. It will have been gathered from the foregoing narrative that the three brigades of the force were ably commanded by Brigadier-Generals W. H. Meiklejohn, C.B., C.M.G., 1st Brigade, P. D. Jeffreys,* C.B., 2nd Brigade, and J. H. Wodehouse, C.B., C.M.G.,† 3rd Brigade, who were efficiently seconded by their staffs. The Line of Communications and the Base were also most efficiently managed by Colonel A. J. F. Reid, Commanding the Malakand Brigade, and by Lieutenant-Colonel A. V. Schalch, 11th Bengal Infantry, the Base Commandant, and their respective staffs.

* Wounded in action, 16th September 1897.
† Wounded in action, 20th September 1897

65. In my final report on the conclusion of the operations of the Force, I shall have the honour to bring the services of the officers above briefly referred to more fully to the notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

66. Major H. A. Deane, C.S.I., Political Agent, Dir, Chitral and Swat, was in separate and independent charge of the political arrangements connected with the operations I have described, as far as Nawagai. He accompanied my head-quarters to Gosam, where I left him on the 12th September, and rejoined me at Inayat Kili on the 4th October. He gave much assistance in arranging for the collection of local supplies.

67. Mr. W. S. Davis was my political officer throughout the operations beyond Nawagai and in the Mamund Valley prior to Major Deane's return to my head-quarters on the 4th October. He carried out his duties to my complete satisfaction. His native assistant, Khan Bahadur Ibrahim Khan, also made himself very useful.

68. I attach a map of the country in which the operations I have described took place, together with a list of casualties.

B. BLOOD, Major-General,
Commanding Malakand Field Force.

MALAKAND;
The 27th October 1897.

MOHMAND.

No. 1318.—The Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council directs the publication of the subjoined communication from the Adjutant General in India, submitting, under the orders of the Commander-in-Chief in India, a despatch from Major-General E. R. Elles, C.B., on the operations of the Mohmand Field Force, under his command.

2. His Excellency in Council concurs in the opinion expressed by the Commander-in-Chief that the operations of the Mohmand Field Force were conducted in a skilful and highly commendable manner by Major-General Elles, and the Governor General in Council shares with His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief his admiration of the manner in which all ranks acquitted themselves throughout the operations.

3. His Excellency in Council also concurs with the Commander-in-Chief in his approbation of the excellent work done by the Imperial Service Troops and of the services rendered by His Highness the Maharaja of Patiala and Maharaj Sir Pertab Singh of Jodhpur.

From MAJOR-GENERAL G. DEC. MORTON, C. B., Adjutant-General in India, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department,—(No. 2080-F, dated Simla, the 10th November 1897).

I have the honour, by direction of the Commander-in Chief, to forward, for the information of the Government of India, the accompanying despatch from Major-General E. R. Elles, C. B., describing the operations of the Mohmand Field Force under his command.

2. Early in August last the hostile gathering of Mohmands and other tribesmen who had raided into British territory was attacked near Shabkadar and repulsed with loss by a small force under the personal direction of Major-General Elles. In order to punish those who had participated in this unprovoked raid, and to impose such terms as appeared necessary to deter the tribesmen from future acts of aggression, a British force was detailed to enter the Mohmand country.

3. Between the 15th September and the 7th October 1897, the Mohmand country was visited throughout; the armed gathering headed by the Hadda Mullah on the Bedmanai Pass was encountered and dispersed; British troops penetrated to the Hadda Mullah's head-quarters in the precipitous Jarobi glen, and punishment was dealt out to such of the tribesmen as refused to accept the terms offered by the British Government.

4. The physical difficulties of the country traversed were very great, and severely tested the endurance of the troops. His Excellency would draw attention to the admirable manner in which all ranks acquitted themselves, often under very trying circumstances, and to the dash, the gallantry, and the good discipline displayed in presence of the enemy at the Bedmanai Pass and on every occasion.

5. The Commander-in-Chief desires to record it as his opinion that the expedition has been conducted in a skilful and highly commendable manner by Major General Elles, and he would recommend the services of that officer and of those mentioned by him in his despatch to the special consideration of Government.

6. His Excellency has read with very great satisfaction the complimentary terms in which Major-General Elles has alluded to the work done by the Imperial Service Troops, and he is confident that the Government of India will cordially endorse what is said in the despatch, not only as regards them, but also as regards the services of the two Native Princes who shared with their British and Native comrades the dangers and hardships of the campaign.

From MAJOR-GENERAL E. R. ELLES, C. B., Commanding the Mohmand Field Force, to the Adjutant-General in India, Simla, (No 520, dated Peshawar, the 13th October 1897).

I have the honour to submit the following report on the operations of the Mohmand Field Force.

2. The object for which these operations were ordered was to punish the Mohmands for an unprovoked attack on British territory, to destroy the Hadda Mullah's power, disperse his hostile gathering, and clear any hostile force from the Mohmand country.

3. The force, the composition of which is given in the margin, was at first ordered to concentrate at Shabkadar on the 11th September, in view to advancing on the 13th, but under orders from Army Head-Quarters the advance was postponed for two days, and I consequently ordered the concentration for the 13th, with the intention of advancing on the 15th September.

4. On the 15th September the advance across the border commenced. Opposition was expected, as the Hadda Mulah was reported to have arrived in Gandab.

The 1st Brigade, with No. 3 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery, the 28th Bombay Pioneers and No. 5 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, advanced prepared for action followed by part of the 2nd Brigade with baggage and supplies.

The leading brigade met with no resistance and succeeded in reaching Gandab that day notwithstanding the difficulty of the road, but the Pioneers and Sappers and the 2nd Brigade, with all camel transport, were halted some miles short at Dund and Medmiana. The road for the last seven miles into Gandab was in parts very difficult for mules, and quite impossible for plain camels. As all my supplies were on camels, I had to wait at Galanai until the road was made practicable. On the 16th the force halted, and every effort was made to improve the road.

On the 17th, the 13th Bengal Lancers were brought through to Galanai from Shabkadar, and Brigadier-General Westmacott, with the 20th Punjab Infantry, No. 3 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery, and two Maxims, was pushed on to the foot of the Nahakki Pass, seven or eight miles further on. On this date a letter was received from Major General Sir Bindon Blood, stating that the Hadda Mullah was at Bedmanai with a large gathering.

On the 18th, thanks to the excellent work done by the 28th Bombay Pioneers and No. 5 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, under the superintendence of Captain Kelly, R.E., Field Engineer, the road to Galanai had been made practicable for camels, and I was relieved of all anxiety about supplies.

On the 19th, the Pioneers and Sappers were pushed on at daybreak and worked all day at the Nahakki Pass, and, thanks to their unremitting labour, I concentrated the 1st Brigade, No. 3 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery, two Maxims, the 13th Bengal Lancers, the 28th Pioneers, and No. 5 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, at Nahakki on the 20th.

5. Helio communication had been established with Major-General Blood from the 19th, and daily letters were also received from him. General Blood had ordered me to join him at Nawagai as soon as possible, in view to attacking the Mullah, for, owing to Brigadier-General Jeffreys' brigade having been detached to punish the Mamunds, Brigadier-General Wodehouse's brigade was not strong enough alone to force the very strong position of the Bedmanai Pass. A telegram from the Adjutant-General in India absolved me from acting under Major-General Blood's orders, but further events in the Mohmand country convinced me that it was desirable to act up to his wishes, and I consequently informed him that I would move on Nawagai as he desired, and place myself under his orders.

It may at first sight appear that the best way of dealing with the Mullah's gathering would have been for Brigadier-General Wodehouse's brigade to have attacked from the north, whilst Brigadier-General Westmacott's brigade moved against it vid Kung and Torakhwa from the south, but the effect of such a movement would probably have caused the gathering to disperse without fighting and without suffering any loss, as no Pathan lashkar would stand with their rear threatened, and the main object was to inflict punishment on them. Another reason was that the country vid Kung was very waterless, and was unknown beyond that point. Further, the increasing force of the enemy in the Bajaur Valley seemed to indicate that a general rising was quite possible, in which case the concentration of a strong force seemed essential.

6. On the 21st September, I moved the 1st Brigade, with No. 3 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery, four guns of No. 5 (Bombay) Mountain Battery, two Maxims, three squadrons of the 13th Bengal Lancers and half No. 5 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, to Lakarai in the Nawagai Valley, about six miles from Brigadier-General Wodehouse's camp, and I met Major-General Blood He informed me of the attack on the 3rd Brigade camp on the previous night, and that he proposed to place the 3rd Brigade, Malakand Field Force, at my disposal, in view to forcing the Bedmanai Pass and punishing the Mittai and Suran valleys.

I must acknowledge my great obligations to Sir Bindon Blood for placing the combined force under my command.

On the 22nd, the whole force moved into a combined camp at Kuz Chinari, facing the Bedmanai Pass, where a few shots were fired into the 3rd Brigade camp at night.

On the morning of the 23rd, at 7-15 A. M., I moved to the attack of the pass with the force as per margin, leaving the baggage loaded and massed at Kuz Chinari, with one company per corps, three squadrons of the 13th Bengal Lancers and one squadron of the 11th Bengal Lancers, the whole under Lieutenant-Colonel G W. Deane, 13th Bengal Lancers. My plan of attack was to advance up the long spur on the left (east) of the pass with the 1st Brigade, supported by one battery, whilst the 3rd Brigade moved up the centre of the pass and covered the right flank, supported by ten guns between the brigades with an escort of the Somersetshire Light Infantry. The Garhwalis moved to occupy the detached hill covering both entrances to the Pass, viz., that from Nawagai and that from the Mittai Valley. Their advance was covered by the cavalry, and they were fired on by a party of 200 of the enemy.

At 8·15 the 20th Punjab Infantry advanced up the wooded spur south of Khalil Kor village, driving in the enemy's piquets concealed amongst trees and rocks. The 20th was accompanied by two Maxims under Lieutenant B. Logan, Devonshire Regiment, and followed by the 2-1st Gurkhas and 28th Bombay Pioneers. The enemy were never in very great strength, and information goes to show that there were not more than 700 or 800 men, with whom both the Hadda Mullah and the Sufi Mullah were present, but the former left at the beginning of the action. There was, however, considerable opposition to the advance of the 20th Punjab Infantry and 2-1st Gurkhas, but the enemy were driven from ridge to ridge by the 20th, the firing line being led most energetically by Captain P. G. Walker. The leading regiment was well supported by the Maxims, which kept up with the firing line. No. 3 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery, had very bad ground to contend with, but gave great assistance to the infantry.

By 10-30 the 20th Punjab Infantry had, without a check, pushed on to a hill with a sungar on it (5,500 feet) and 2,700 feet above the Bedmanai Pass, which it completely commanded, and the enemy had retired in different directions, mainly to a higher peak with a strong sungar. In the mean time the batteries in the gorge had been shelling and clearing the heights on the right of the pass and its summit. The enemy had been seen coming up to the top of the pass in some strength, but did not stand before artillery fire. By 11 A.M. the 20th Punjab Infantry and 2-1st Gurkhas had seized the key of the position, a peak on the east of the pass (6,760 feet) nearly 4,000 feet above Kuz Chinari, the Maxims were firing on the retreating enemy, and the Pioneers and No. 3 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery, were on the 5,500 feet peak.

The casualties were—

20th Punjab Infantry, 2 sepoys wounded.
2-1st Gurkhas { 1 sepoy killed. / 1 „ wounded.

The pass was now occupied by the Queen's and 22nd Punjab Infantry, and I ordered up all mule baggage; but, as the road was bad, decided not to bring up camels that day. Camp was placed in the village of Karmanzai, about one mile beyond the pass, and was not disturbed at night.

The position was a very strong one, and necessitated the crowning of the 6,960 peak, nearly 3,000 feet above the pass itself; had a determined defence been made by a strong body of the enemy, the losses of the attacking force must have been very great. That the resistance was so slight was due to the heavy losses incurred by the enemy in their attack on the 3rd Brigade camp on the night of the 20th, which caused a large part of the Mullah's gathering to disperse, and also to the fact that the enemy were uncertain up to the last movement whether we meant to attack the Bedmanai Pass or the Mittai Valley on the 23rd. The effect of the advance of the Mohmand Field Force appears to have been first felt on the 20th, when I occupied Nahakki in force. No doubt the fear of being cut off and the approach of a strong force influenced the Mullah's gathering to make a supreme effort, and led them to attack the 3rd Brigade camp on the night of the 20th.

On the 24th the 1st Brigade moved on to Sarfaraz Kili in the Bohai Dag, and the whole of the baggage and supplies were brought through from Kuz Chinari.

The 3rd Brigade, Malakand Field Force, had returned to Kuz Chinari on the 23rd, and aided by the 1st Patiala Regiment, were engaged in punishing the Mittai and Suran valleys on the 24th and 25th.

On the 25th the force marched to Jarobi. The route led for six or seven miles up a stony valley running under the Ilazai mountain. The Jarobi glen, called the Shindara in its lower part, runs down from the back of Ilazai and is 400 to 500 yards at the mouth, gradually narrowing as you get into the hills, with steep rocky mountain ridges and cliffs on each side. The cavalry were fired at near the entrance by parties of the enemy. Seeing that it would be impossible to take the force up to Jarobi and camp there, I ordered camp to be formed near the entrance, as much in the open as possible, and decided to move up and punish the glen during the afternoon, returning before dark. The distance to the Mullah's mosque was about four miles, and the gorge took a sharp turn at 2¼ miles.

The Somersetshire Light Infantry, 28th Pioneers and No. 5 (Bombay) Mountain Battery were left in position at the mouth of the gorge to cover the retirement; the 2-1st Gurkhas (four companies) crowned the rocky hill on the left (west), commanding the turn in the glen. Four companies of the 20th Punjab Infantry and No. 3 Mountain Battery, Royal Artillery, pushed up the gorge with half No. 5 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, to the turn. Here the main village of Tola Kili was seen filling up the gorge on a small hill three-quarters of a mile in front.

No. 3 Mountain Battery was here brought into action and four companies of Gurkhas brought up, whilst the 20th Punjab Infantry pushed on up the gorge to the Mullah's mosque about half a mile beyond the village. Four companies of Gurkhas were pushed on to Tola Kili in support, and the 28th Pioneers ordered up on firing taking place. The advance of the 20th was unopposed until they reached the Mullah's mosque, which Lieutenant-Colonel Woon describes as being little more than a cowshed, when fire was opened from both sides and from the front, and about a dozen ghazis charged from the mosque on to the leading party of the 20th. Six of these men were shot down and the rest bolted. This was about 3 P.M. No. 3 Mountain Battery was in action covering the 20th by fire on to the hills to the left. As the whole gorge from its winding character, narrowness and the precipitous hills on each side formed a regular trap, I sent an order by Lieutenant Elles, Aide-de-Camp, at 3 P.M., to retire without fail at 3-30, as I was determined to get all troops clear of the gorge by dark. There is no Jarobi village, but the village of Tola Kili, the chief one, and three fort villages in the gorge had been destroyed, and there was nothing to gain by remaining. Orders had been given before the expedition that all mosques were to be respected.

Lieutenant-Colonel Woon carried out the retirement very steadily, and suffered no more casualties, and was supported by the Gurkhas; the Pioneers in turn covered them when they had passed through and had a few casualties, but any following up ceased two and a quarter miles before the entrance was reached, being checked by the 2-1st Gurkhas on the hill to the left.

The whole retirement was most steadily carried out by the troops under Brigadier-General Westmacott's orders in one of the nastiest gorges I ever saw. The steepness of the hills may be judged by the fact that the top of the Ilazai Mount is only two miles distant horizontally from the Mullah's mosque, the drop being 4,400 feet in that distance. The enemy were chiefly Musa Khel from Mittai, for the Jarobi glen is only separated by a low pass from the Mittai valley. Ten of the enemy are known to have been killed; it is not known whether they had further loss.

Our casualties were—

20th Punjab Infantry, 1 sepoy killed.
1 havildar and 3 sepoys, wounded.

No. 5 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners—
Subadar Fateh Ali slightly wounded.
1 naik, 1 sapper severely wounded.

28th Bombay Pioneers—
1 havildar, 1 naik and 8 privates wounded.

On the 26th I moved in two columns, down the two valleys forming the head of the Bohai Dag, and thoroughly punished the Baizai; the columns joined hands and camped at Khawarina.

On the 27th Brigadier-General Westmacott, with the force in the margin, punished the Kuda Khel, whose fortified villages are situated close to the Durand boundary, and a small column visited Torakhwa, a reserve remaining in a central position. Brigadier-General Westmacott's column found the Kuda Khel forts occupied by the enemy, as well as the heights above the village. The forts were cleared by the fire of No. 5 (Bombay) Mountain Battery, Captain Knapp's horse being shot whilst coming into action.

4 guns, No. 5 (Bombay), Mountain Battery.
Oxfordshire Light Infantry.
1 Squadron, 13th Bengal Lancers.
2-1st Gurkhas.
4 Companies, 28th Bombay Pioneers.
½ No. 5 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners.

The 2-1st Gurkhas were sent to clear the heights, from which a galling fire was kept up, and the heights were shelled by the battery in various directions. The Gurkhas crowned the ridge forming the Durand line and looked down into the Dakka plain. The work of destroying the forts and towers was completed, and the force was carefully withdrawn by Brigadier-General Westmacott, covered by the Oxfordshire Light Infantry.

The casualties were—

2-1st Gurkhas,—1 rifleman dangerously and 4 severely wounded.

There is no information as to the enemy's losses, but three or four dead bodies were found on the heights. The force encamped at Kung, at which place the 13th Bengal Lancers and Oxfordshire Light Infantry from Nahakki had camped the previous day.

On the 29th the force returned to Nahakki, two battalions and a battery being detached to the Sam Ghakke pass in consequence of a cavalry reconnaissance being opposed.

On the 30th September I moved with the 2nd Brigade under Brigadier-General C. R. Macgregor to Yakhdand, Pipal and Danish Kul, the districts inhabited by the Dawezai, Utmanzai and Isa Khel, returning to Nahakki on the 3rd October, after detaching a small column* under Lieutenant-Colonel H. O. Woodhouse to move into the Peshawar Valley by the Alikandi route, through the Burhan Khel country, the district of Pindiali.

* 9th Gurkha Rifles.
2 guns, No. 5 Mountain Battery.
½ Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners.

The evacuation of the country was now carried out without incident, and the last of my troops reached Peshawar on the 7th October.

7. The expedition proved productive of little fighting, but the splendid force under my command would, I believe, have made little of any possible opposition. I cannot speak too highly of the 20th Punjab Infantry and 2-1st Gurkhas, on whom the brunt of the work fell. I would wish for no better regiments for hill fighting under their respective commanders.

The work done during the expedition by the 28th Bombay Pioneers and No. 5 Company, Bengal Sappers and Miners, is worthy of the highest commendation. The 28th Pioneers also did excellent work in reserve to the 1st Brigade in the attack at Bedmanai, and at Jarobi covered the retirement, showing high soldierly qualities in both instances.

The main difficulties to contend with were the passes, over which roads had always to be made, and anxiety regarding water, as in the western Mohmand country; the supply is almost entirely from tanks, the dams of which had been cut by the Mohmands, and they often only contained a little dirty water.

8. The Imperial Service Troops under my command proved their fitnes to fight in the first line, and were utilised exactly the same as the regular Native troops. The cavalry escorts of the Patiala and Jodhpore Cavalry did good reconnaissance work on more than one occasion and came under fire. The 1st Patiala Regiment was employed under Lieutenant-Colonel Graves in the operations in the Mittai and Suran valleys, and covered the retirement of the brigade under fire; their good service was brought to my notice by the General Officer Commanding the 3rd Brigade. The Nabha Regiment, owing to its having been added to my force late in September, had to be kept on the Line of Communications.

9. I trust the objects of the expedition were fully carried out, thanks to the fine body of troops I had the honour of commanding and to the hearty co-operation of my staff and of all ranks in the force, in attaining the objects in view.

10. In conclusion, I would venture to bring to the notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief the following officers :—

Major G. H. W. O'Sullivan, R.E., Assistant Quarter Master-General. An invaluable and highly trained staff officer.

Major C. L. Woollcombe, King's Own Scottish Broderers, Assistant Adjutant General. An officer of great tact and a thoroughly reliable staff officer.

I am much indebted to both the above officers.

TELEGRAPH.

The 3rd December, 1897.

No. 495.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 4 of the Electricity Act, 1887 (XIII of 1887), and in supersession of the rules issued under the Notification of the Government of India in the Public Works Department, No. 134 Telegraph, dated the 3rd May, 1889, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules, the draft of which was published under Government of India, Public Works Department, Notification No. 525 Telegraph, dated the 19th August, 1897 :—

PRELIMINARY.

1. In these rules, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context,—

Definition.

(1) the expression "electric supply-line" means a wire or wires, conductor, or other means used for the purpose of conveying, transmitting or distributing electricity for light or power, with any casing, coating, covering, tube, pipe or insulator enclosing, surrounding or supporting the same or any part thereof, or any apparatus connected therewith for the purpose of conveying, transmitting or distributing electricity or electric currents for light or power;

(4) the expression "cut-off" means any appliance for confining the flow of electricity to conductors capable of safely carrying it when its amount rises accidentally above the normal;

(5) the expressions "transformer," "transformed" and "transforming" are used in relation to any appliance by means of which electricity of high potential is converted to electricity of lower potential, or vice versâ;

(6) the expression "undertakers" means the person or persons undertaking the business of supplying electricity or intending to use electricity for any public purpose or in any place such as is referred to in section 3 of the Act;

(7) the expression "consumer's wires" means any electric supply-lines on a consumer's premises which are connected with the service-lines of the undertakers at the consumer's terminals;

(8) the expression "aërial line" means any electric supply-line which is placed above ground and in the open air;

earth in such manner as will ensure at all times an immediate and safe discharge of electrical energy; and

(14) the expression "street" includes any way, road, lane, square, court, alley, passage or open space, whether a thoroughfare or not, over which the public have a right of way, and also the road-way and foot-way over any public bridge or causeway.

Protection of person and property.

Entry and Inspection.

2. Whenever notice has been given by the undertakers under section 3 of the Act, the District Magistrate, or Commissioner of Police, as the case may be, receiving such notice, shall forthwith report the circumstance to the Local Government and the Local Government may thereupon authorise any officer, either by name or in virtue of his office, to enter, inspect and examine any place, carriage or vessel in which the officer has reason to believe any appliances or apparatus used in the generation or supply of electricity are, and any building or place to and in which electricity is, to be supplied and used.

Overhead electric supply-lines.

3. The Local Government shall, if necessary, instruct the District Magistrate, or, in a Presidency-town, the Commissioner of Police, as to the roads or public places in which overhead electric supply-lines are not to be allowed, and the undertakers shall attend to any orders of such officer in this respect.

Testing appliances, etc.

4. The undertakers shall provide all means for testing the appliances or apparatus used in the generation or the supply and use of electricity.

Pressure of supply to consumers.

5. The pressure of a supply delivered to any one consumer shall not exceed 250 volts at any pair of terminals, except with the express approval of the Local Government, which shall be given only for special purposes, on the joint application of the consumer and the undertakers, and subject to such further conditions as the Local Government may prescribe.

Pressure of supply to transforming apparatus.

6. The pressure of a supply delivered to a transforming station or to transforming apparatus on a consumer's premises may exceed 250 volts, but shall not exceed the limits of high pressure.

Limitations of extra high-pressure supply.

7. An extra high pressure supply shall not be delivered, except to distributing stations or other premises in the sole occupation of the undertakers, and then only with the written consent of the Local Government and subject to such further conditions as that Government may prescribe.

Maximum current in conductors.

8. The maximum working current in a conductor shall not be sufficient to raise the temperature of the conductor or any part thereof to such an extent as to materially alter the physical condition or specific resistance of the insulating covering (if any) or in any case to raise such temperature to a greater extent than 35° F. The cross-sectional area and conductivity at joints shall be sufficient to avoid local heating, and the joints shall be protected against corrosion.

Minimum size of conductors.

9. The sectional area of the conductor in an electric supply-line laid or erected in any street after the commencement of these Rules shall not be less than the area of a circle of one-tenth of an inch diameter, and, where the conductor is formed of a strand of wires, each separate wire shall be at least as large as No. 20 standard wire gauge.

Specification and protection of insulating material.

10. All material used for insulating electric supply-lines or apparatus shall be of the best quality and thoroughly durable and efficient with regard to the conditions of its use. Suitable provision shall be made for the protection of the insulating material against injury or removal, and, if a protection so provided is wholly or partly metallic, it shall be efficiently connected with earth.

Insulation test of mains.

11. Every main shall be tested for insulation after having been placed in position and before it is used for the purposes of supply, the testing pressure being at least 200 volts, and the undertakers shall duly record the results of the tests of each main or section of a main.

Maintenance of insulation.

12. The insulation of every complete circuit used for the supply of energy, including all machinery, apparatus and devices forming part of, or connected with, such circuit, shall be so maintained that the leakage current shall not under any conditions exceed one-thousandth part of the maximum supply current. Suitable means shall be provided for the immediate indication and localisation of leakage, and every leakage shall be remedied without delay. Every such circuit shall be tested for insulation at least once in every week and the undertakers shall duly record the results of the testings :

Provided that, where the Local Government has approved of any part of any electric circuit being connected with earth, the provisions of this rule shall not apply to that circuit so long as such connection exists.

High pressure conductors to be covered.

13. Every high pressure conductor laid after the commencement of these Rules shall be continuously covered with insulating material to a thickness of not less than one-tenth part of an inch, and, in cases where the extreme difference of potential in the circuit exceeds 2,000 volts, the thickness of insulating material shall not be less in inches or parts of an inch than the number obtained by dividing the number expressing the volts by 20,000.

Testing of insulation of all parts of any high pressure circuit.

14. (1) No high pressure circuit shall be brought into use unless the insulation of every part thereof has withstood the continuous application, during one hour, of pressure exceeding the maximum pressure to which it is intended to be subjected in use : that is to say, in the case of every electric supply-line, a pressure twice the said maximum pressure, and, in the case of every machine, device or apparatus, a pressure 50 per cent. greater than the said maximum pressure.

(2) The undertakers shall duly record the results of each test.

Quick-acting cut-off for high-pressure electric supply-lines, etc.

15. Every high pressure electric supply-line, conductor or other apparatus shall be protected by a suitable automatic quick-acting cut-off :

Provided that it shall not be incumbent upon the undertakers to provide such a cut-off for the outer conductor of a concentric main which is, with the approval of the Local Government, efficiently connected with earth.

Transformers.

16. In every case in which a high pressure supply is transformed for the purpose of supply to one or more consumers, some suitable automatic and quick-acting means shall be provided to protect the consumer's wires from any accidental contract with, or leakage from, the high pressure system, either within or without the transforming apparatus.

Limit of power in high-pressure electric supply-line.

17. A high pressure electric supply-line shall not be used for the transmission of more than 300,000 watts, or, in the case of an aërial line, 50,000 watts, except with the consent in writing of the Local Government, and efficient means shall be provided to prevent this limit being at any time exceeded.

Protection from lightning.

18. Where any portion of an electric supply-line or any support for an electric supply-line is exposed in such a position as to be liable to injury from lightning, it shall be efficiently protected against such injury.

Accidents to be reported.

19. Where any accident by explosion or fire, or any other accident of such kind as to have caused or to be likely to have caused loss of life or personal injury has occurred at any part of an electric supply-line or work, the undertakers shall give immediate notice thereof to the Local Government.

Aërial Lines.

Maximum intervals between supports.

20. Every aërial line shall be attached to supports at intervals not exceeding 200 feet, where the direction of the line is straight, and 150 feet, where the direction is curved or where the line makes a horizontal angle at the point of support.

Construction and erection of supports.

21. Every support of an aërial line shall be of a durable material, and properly stayed against forces due to wind-pressure, change of direction of the line or unequal lengths of span. The factor of safety shall be for aërial lines and suspending wires at least six, and for all other parts of the structure at least twelve, the maximum possible wind-pressure being taken at 50lb per square foot. No addition need be made for a possible accumulation of snow.

Attachment of aërial lines.

22. Aërial lines shall be attached to insulators, and shall be so guarded that they cannot fall away from the support. Conductors covered with insulating material shall not be attached to the insulators by un-insulated metal binders.

Height from ground and distance from buildings, etc.

23. (1) An aërial line shall not in any part thereof be at a less height from the ground than 18 feet, or, where it crosses a street, 30 feet, or within 5 feet measured horizontally or 7 feet measured vertically from any building or erection other than a support for the line, except where brought into a building for the purpose of supply.

(2) Except with the approval of the Local Government and of the telegraph authority, only one side of a street may be occupied by aërial lines.

Service-lines from aërial lines.

24. Service-lines from aërial lines shall be led as directly as possible to insulators firmly attached to some portion of the consumer's premises which is not accessible to any person without the use of a ladder or other special appliance, and from this point of attachment they shall be enclosed and protected in accordance with the subsequent rules as to electric supply-lines on the consumer's premises. Every portion of a service-line which is outside, but is within 7 feet of, a building, shall be completely enclosed in stout India-rubber tubing.

Angle of crossing thoroughfares.

25. Where an aërial line crosses a street, the angle between the line and the direction of the street at the place of crossing shall not be less than 60° and the spans shall be as short as possible.

Crossing wire, etc.

26. Where an aërial line crosses, or is in proximity to, any metallic substance, precautions shall be taken by the undertakers against the possibility of the line coming into contact with the metallic substance or of the metallic substance coming into contact with the line by breakage or otherwise.

Suspending wires.

27. Every high pressure aërial line shall be efficiently suspended by means of insulating ligaments to suspending wires, so that the weight of the line may not produce any sensible stress in the direction of its length. All suspending wires, if of iron or steel, shall be galvanised.

Discharge of pressure in case of fire.

28. In the case of any high pressure aërial line exceeding one-half mile in length, means shall be provided whereby the pressure may be discharged from any portion of the line erected over, or alongside of any building or buildings without loss of time in case of fire or other emergency.

Maintenance.

29. Every aërial line, including its supports and all the structural parts and electrical appliances and devices belonging to, or connected with, the line, shall be duly and efficiently supervised and maintained as regards both electrical and mechanical conditions.

Unused aërial lines to be removed.

30. An aërial line shall not be permitted to remain erected after it has ceased to be used for the supply of energy, unless the undertakers intend within a reasonable time again to take it into use.

Electric Supply-lines other than Aërial Lines.

Construction of receptacles for electric supply-lines.

31. All conduits, pipes, casings and street-boxes used as receptacles for electric supply-lines shall be constructed of durable material, and, where laid under carriage-ways, shall be of sufficient strength to prevent damage from heavy traffic; and reasonable means shall be taken by the undertakers to prevent the accumulation of gas in such receptacles.

Crossing pipes, etc.

32. Where an electric supply-line crosses, or is in proximity to, any metallic substance, special precautions shall be taken by the undertakers against the possibility of any electrical discharge to the metallic substance from the line or from any metal conduit, pipe or casing enclosing the line.

Electric continuity of metal conduits, pipes or casings.

33. All metal conduits, pipes or casings containing any electric supply-line shall be efficiently connected with earth, and shall be so jointed and connected across all street-boxes and other openings as to make good electrical connection throughout their whole length.

Precautions against charging of short lengths of pipes, etc.

34. Where isolated lengths of metal conduits, pipes, or casings are used for the protection of any electric supply-line at road-crossings or similar positions, special precautions shall be taken to prevent the possibility of any electrical charging thereof.

Precautions to be taken when bare conductors are used.

35. (1) Where the conductors of electric supply-lines placed in any conduit are not continuously covered with insulating material they shall be secured in position, and no unfixed uninsulated material of a conducting nature shall be contained in the conduit. No such conductor shall be at a higher potential than 300 volts.

(2) Adequate precautions shall also be taken to ensure that no accumulation of water shall take place in any part of the conduit and to prevent any dangerous access of moisture to the conductors or the insulators.

(3) In the case of any such electric supply-lines laid in conduits after the commencement of these Rules, the insulators shall be so disposed that they can be readily inspected.

High pressure electric supply-lines laid above ground.

36. Every portion of an high pressure electric supply-line placed above the surface of the ground, or in any subway not in the sole occupation of the undertakers, shall be completely enclosed, either in a tube of highly insulating material embedded in brickwork, masonry or cement concrete, or in a strong metal casing efficiently connected with earth.

High pressure electric supply-lines laid in proximity to other electric supply-lines or to the surface of the ground.

37. Where an high pressure electric supply-line is laid beneath the surface of the ground, efficient means shall be taken to render it impossible that the surface of the ground or any neighbouring electric supply-line or conductor shall become charged by leakage therefrom.

Street-Boxes.

Street-boxes.

38. In addition to the provisions contained in rule 31 as to the construction of receptacles for electric supply-lines, the following rules shall be observed with respect to the construction of street-boxes:

(a) The cover of every street-box shall be so secured that it cannot be opened except by means of a special appliance.

(b) The covers of all street-boxes containing high pressure apparatus other than cables shall be connected with strips of metal laid immediately underneath the adjacent roadway, and efficient means shall be taken to render it impossible that the covers or other exposed parts of such boxes, or any adjacent material forming the surface of the street, shall become electrically charged, whether by reason of leakage, defect or otherwise.

(c) Where street-boxes are used as transformer chambers, reasonable means shall be taken to prevent, as far as possible, any influx of water, either from the adjacent soil or by means of pipes; and, in the case of any such street-box exceeding one cubic-yard in capacity, ample provision shall be made, by ventilation or otherwise, for the immediate escape of any gas which may by accident have obtained access to the box, and for the prevention of danger from sparking.

(d) Every street-box shall be regularly inspected for the presence of gas, and, if any influx or accumulation is discovered, the undertakers shall give immediate notice to the authority or company whose gas mains are laid in the neighbourhood thereof.

Transforming Stations.

Transforming stations.

39. Transforming stations, or points, which are in a system of distribution wherein a high pressure supply is transformed for the purpose of supply to consumers, and which are not on the consumer's premises, shall be established in suitable places in the sole occupation and charge of the undertakers.

Consumer's Premises.

Responsibility of Undertakers for their lines, etc., on consumer's premises.

40. The undertakers shall be responsible for all electric supply-lines, fittings and apparatus belonging to them or under their control, which may be upon a consumer's premises, being maintained in a safe condition and in all respects fit for supplying energy.

Fire risk.

41. In delivering the energy to a consumer's terminals the undertakers shall exercise all due precautions so as to avoid risk of causing fire on the consumer's premises.

Main fuses or disconnectors to be provided in locked receptacles.

42. A suitable safety fuse or other automatic disconnector shall be inserted in each service-line within a consumer's premises as close as possible to the point of entry and contained within a suitable locked or sealed receptacle of fireproof construction, except in cases where the service-line is protected by fuses in a street-box.

Treatment of electric lines and apparatus on consumer's premises.

43. All electric supply-lines and apparatus placed on a consumer's premises shall be highly insulated and thoroughly protected against injury to the insulation or access of moisture, and any metal forming part of the electric circuit shall not, unless efficiently connected with earth, be exposed so that it can be touched. All electric supply-lines shall be so fixed and protected as to prevent the possibility of electrical discharge to any adjacent metallic substance.

Transformers and high pressure apparatus to be enclosed in metal.

44. Where the general supply of energy is a high pressure supply and transforming apparatus is installed on a consumer's premises, the whole of the high pressure service-lines, conductors and apparatus, including the transforming apparatus itself, so far as they are on the consumer's premises, shall be completely enclosed in solid walls or in a strong metal casing efficiently connected with earth, and shall be securely fastened throughout.

Connection to consumers not to be made where leakage would result.

45. The undertakers shall not connect the wires and fittings on a consumer's premises with their mains unless they are reasonably satisfied that the connection will not cause a leakage from those wires and fittings exceeding one ten-thousandth part of the maximum supply current to the consumer's premises; and, where the undertakers decline to make such a connection, they shall serve upon the consumer a notice stating their reasons for so declining.

Discontinuance of supply on discovery of leakage on consumer's premises.

46. (1) If the undertakers are reasonably satisfied, after making all proper examination by testing or otherwise, that a leakage exists at some part of a circuit of such extent as to be a source of danger, and that such leakage does not exist at any part of a circuit belonging to the undertakers, then and in such case any person authorized in writing by the undertakers in that behalf, or, on the application of the undertakers, an officer authorized under rule 2, may, for the purpose of discovering whether the leakage exists at any part of a circuit within or upon any consumer's premises, after giving the consumer reasonable notice in writing, inspect and test the wires and fittings belonging to the consumer and forming part of the circuit.

(2) In any case in which the undertakers obtain the services of an officer under this rule they shall pay him such fee as the Local Government may fix in that behalf.

(3) If, on such testing, such person or officer as aforesaid discovers a leakage from the consumer's wires exceeding one ten-thousandth part of the maximum supply current to the premises, or if the consumer does not give all due facilities for inspection and testing, the undertakers shall forthwith discontinue the supply of energy to the premises in question, giving immediate notice of the discontinuance to the consumer, and shall not re-commence the supply until they are reasonably satisfied that the leakage has been stopped.

Appeal to electric inspector.

47. (1) If any consumer is dissatisfied with the action of the undertakers in refusing to give or in discontinuing or in not re-commencing the supply of energy to his premises, the wires and fittings of such consumer may, on his application and on payment of the prescribed fee, be tested for the existence of leakage by an officer authorized under rule 2.

(2) This rule shall be endorsed on every notice given under the provisions of either of the two last foregoing rules.

Arc Lighting.

Arc lamps to be guarded.

48. All arc lamps shall be so guarded as to prevent pieces of ignited carbon or broken glass falling from them, and shall not be used in situations where there is any danger of the presence of explosive dust or gas.

Height from ground.

49. Arc lamps used in any street for public lighting shall be so fixed as not to be in any part at a less height than ten feet from the ground.

Cut-off switch.

50. Arc lamps used in any street for private lighting shall be fixed so as not to be anywhere at a less height than eight feet from the ground, and shall be so screened as to prevent risk of contact with persons. A cut-off switch, fixed in a suitable locked receptacle, shall be provided for every high pressure arc lamp, and the switch shall be of such pattern and construction as will provide—

(a) that the lamp can by its means be entirely disconnected from the supply circuit;

(b) that the switch itself can be safely worked in the dark without special precautions; and

(c) that there shall be no danger of any injurious electrical arcing, sparking or heating being caused by the operation switch.

Telegraph lines.

Undertakings to be worked with due regard to telegraph lines.

51. The undertakers shall construct their electric supply-lines and other works of all descriptions, and shall work their undertaking, in all respects with due regard to the telegraph lines established by, or by license from, the Governor General in Council and to the currents in such telegraph lines, and shall use every reasonable means in the construction of their electric supply-lines and other works of all descriptions and in the working of their undertaking to prevent injurious affection, whether by induction, or otherwise, to such telegraph lines or the currents therein. If any question arises as to whether the undertakers have constructed their electric supply-lines or other works, or worked their undertaking in contravention of this rule, such question shall be determined by the Local Government, and the undertakers shall be bound to make any alterations in, or additions to, their system which may be directed by that Government.

Undertakers to be liable for injury to telegraph lines.

52. If any telegraph line is injuriously affected by the construction by the undertakers of their electric supply-lines and works or by the working of the undertaking by the undertakers, the undertakers shall pay the expense of all such alterations in such telegraph lines as may be necessary to remedy such injurious affection.

Explanation.—A telegraph line shall be deemed to be injuriously affected by an act or work, if telegraphic communication by means of such line is, whether through induction or otherwise, in any manner affected by such act or work, or by any use made of such work.

Notice to telegraph authority in certain cases and compliance with telegraph requirements.

53. Before any electric supply-line is laid down or any act or work in connection therewith is done within ten yards of any part of a telegraph line (other than repairs or the laying of lines crossing such telegraph line at right angles at the point of shortest distance and so continuing for a distance of six feet on each side of such point), the undertakers shall, not more than twenty-eight nor less than fourteen days before commencing the work, give notice in writing to the telegraph authority, specifying the course of the line and the nature of the work, including the gauge of any wire, and the undertakers shall conform with such reasonable requirements (either general or special) as may from time to time be made by the telegraph authority for the purpose of preventing any telegraph line from being injuriously affected by the said act or work.

Settlement of differences between telegraph authority and undertakers.

54. Any difference between the telegraph authority and the undertakers with respect to any requirements of the telegraph authority shall be referred to the Local Government for decision and the orders of that Government thereon shall be final.

Exemption in case of emergency.

55. Nothing in the four last foregoing rules shall apply to any case in which the undertakers can show that the immediate doing of the act or execution of the work was required to avoid an accident, or otherwise was a work of emergency, and that they forthwith served on the officer in charge of the Central Government Telegraph Office at the town or station where the act or work was done a notice in writing of the execution thereof, stating the reason for doing or executing the same without previous notice.

No. 496—The Governor General in Council is pleased to order the following reversions in the Superior Establishment of the Indian Telegraph Department, with effect from the dates specified :—

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India

BY DR. GEO. WATT, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III, & IV of the Dictionary are ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the Index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross-references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal 8vo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L; and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which consists of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI), but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, November 20th, 1897.

Very quiet settled weather has prevailed throughout the greater part of India during the week under review. Pressure has been steadily highest over North-Western and Central India, and steadily lowest over the Bay. The amount of the pressure difference between those two areas has varied slightly from day to day, but in general the pressure changes have been slight and the general pressure conditions very steady. On the morning of Friday, 19th November, a small but apparently deep depression appeared within the low-pressure area over the east of the Bay. The centre apparently lay between Diamond Island and the north of the Andamans and the east-north-east wind at Diamond Island was blowing at the rate of 60 miles per hour at 8 A.M. By the next morning the storm had moved out into the centre of the Bay and the observations around the coast gave no definite information as to its continued existence. The fact of the lowest pressures being reported from the east of the Bay has resulted in abnormal north-westerly and northerly winds being reported from the Madras coast districts, and as these winds come from a dry region hardly any rain has been received over this area where in normal years damp north-east winds and moderate rain are usually experienced. A few showers have been received during the week over the south of the Peninsula, over Ceylon and over Burma, but with these exceptions the weather has been rainless and as a consequence generally warmer than usual. In Burma where rainfall has occurred on most days, the heat has been steadily less than usual, but over India with one or two exceptions the mean temperature has been steadily above the average.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, 14th November.—Pressure had increased everywhere. The barometer was highest over Assam and Upper Burma, but a large area of high and uniform readings overlay North-Western and Central India while pressure was low over the Bay. The differences were small. North-westerly to north-easterly winds prevailed over the Bay, easterly winds on the west coast and variable airs and calms elsewhere. The mean temperature was lower than usual over Burma and the extreme north-east of India as well as over the central parts of the Peninsula, while elsewhere the heat was greater than usual. The excess was between 4° and 6° over North-West India and over the south of the Peninsula. Scattered showers of rain had been received over Upper Burma, Assam, the south of the Peninsula and Ceylon.

Monday, 15th November.—The barometer was still rising over the greater part of the country. The high readings in the north-east had, however, given way and pressure ranged from a high-pressure area in the north-west and centre to a low-pressure area over the Bay. The winds were practically unchanged. The mean temperature was unusually low over Upper Burma, Assam and East Bengal as well as over part of the west and south of the Peninsula. Elsewhere the heat was excessive. Rain had again fallen over the same regions as on the 14th.

Tuesday, 16th November.—Pressure had decreased almost everywhere. The fall had been greater in part of North-West India than elsewhere but the general conditions were unaltered. Westerly and south-westerly winds had appeared over the Gangetic Plain, but with this exception the winds were generally similar to those reported on the 15th. Rain had been received over Upper Burma and Assam and locally at Trivandrum and Trincomalee.

Wednesday, 17th November.—The fall of pressure noticed on the preceding day had ceased and the barometer was rising everywhere. High and uniform pressures continued to be reported from North-Western and Central India and relatively high pressures from Assam and Upper Burma, while the barometer remained low over the Bay. Pressure was in defect of the normal over Burma and generally about normal elsewhere. The winds were little changed. The distribution of the mean temperature relatively to the normal was generally the same as on the 16th, but a remarkable increase of heat had occurred at the hill stations in the north-west. There had been practically no rain.

Thursday, 18th November.—There had been no change of importance in the pressure conditions over India and the winds were also unaltered. The mean temperature remained considerably below the normal over Burma and slightly below over Assam and parts of Bengal as well as over the west of the Peninsula. Elsewhere the heat was excessive. Only two stations reported any rain.

Friday, 19th November.—The pressure changes had been slight but, except along the foot of the Himalayas and in Burma, generally downward. The only change in the distribution was the appearance of a small but deep depression between Diamond Island and the Andamans. This storm was occasioning a severe east-north-east gale at Diamond Island and a strong north-east wind at Rangoon. Elsewhere there had been no important changes. The general conditions of temperature relative to the normal were the same as on the preceding day. Some showers had fallen in Lower Burma.

Saturday, 20th November.—The barometric changes were again slight and unimportant. East-north-easterly gales, but of less force than on the previous day, continued to prevail over Lower Burma. Elsewhere there had been no important changes. Temperature was very low over deltaic Burma and Tenasserim where showers had been received.

Temperature.—The weather as mentioned above has been practically rainless over the greater part of the country and the general temperature has been excessive. The greatest excess was reported from the north-west and was large over Baluchistan and part of the western desert. In Burma, on the contrary, showers have been moderately frequent, and the mean temperature of that province along with the neighbouring parts of Assam and of Bengal has been lower than usual.

The following table gives temperature data for the week:—

The mean temperature of the whole country was higher than usual on each day, but the amount of the excess decreased as the week progressed. The provincial variations show that there was a steady defect of temperature over

Burma and a fairly steady excess in the other provinces. The excess was over 2° in the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab and Sind and Rajputana. A great excess of temperature was reported from the hill stations in the north-west from the 17th to the close of the week.

Rain.—The rainfall during the week under review has been confined to Burma, Assam, a few districts of Bengal and the south of the Peninsula and even in these regions has not been heavy, though in some instances exceeding the small amount of rain which is ordinarily anticipated. Where rain was received it fell almost wholly during the first two or three days of the week, the middle and close of the week having been fine and practically rainless throughout the whole country. The concluding table shows that rain in appreciable quantity, i.e., of one-tenth of an inch or more, fell in only sixteen of the rainfall divisions, viz., all the Burma divisions except Central Burma, all the Assam divisions, Eastern, deltaic and Central Bengal, Malabar, South Central, Madras, the East Coast (North, Central and South) and Madras (South) in addition the divisions of Central Burma, Orissa, and North Bihar have received rain during the week, but the average actual rainfall of each of these divisions has been less than one-tenth of an inch. In all the remaining divisions the rainfall has been nil. The third column of the concluding table shows that the week's rainfall has been about half an inch in excess of the normal average in Tenasserim and in Upper Burma and has been in trifling excess in Assam and in East deltaic and Central Bengal and in North Bihar. In all other parts of the country where rain is anticipated during the week under review the fall has been less than usual. In most cases the deficiency has been small and unimportant, but over the south-west of the Peninsula the fall has been in defect by over half an inch, in the central division of the East Coast by three-quarters of an inch and in the south divisions of the East Coast and of Madras by over one inch.

The three last columns of the table which give rainfall data from October 17th to November 20th show that for that period there has been fair to good rain in Burma and Assam, heavy rain in West Bengal and the East of the North-Western Provinces and Central Provinces and deficient rain almost everywhere else. Over North-West India there has been no rain throughout, but the most serious deficiency is shown over the Madras coast districts and the central districts of Madras, thus Madras (central) has received only 0·35″ instead of 4·39″, the East Coast (central) 1·49″ instead of 8·57″, the East Coast (south) 1·64″ instead of 11·06″ and Madras (south central) 1·92″ instead of 7·22″.

There have been no heavy totals reported this week, but Bhimavaram (Cocanada) has received 3·16″, Vedaranyam (Tanjore) 2·69″; Musiri (Trichinopoly) 2·05″; Srivilliputtur (Tinnevelly) 2·75″; and Periyakulam (Madura) 2·42″.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 27th November.—Rainfall during the week was fair in Cuddapah, Nellore, Chingleput, Salem, Coimbatore, Trichinopoly and Madura; elsewhere there was practically no rain. The water-supply is generally sufficient under large irrigation systems, but more rain is urgently required in areas depending on local rainfall. Agricultural operations are general; wet crops are generally thriving, but dry crops and wet crops in parts are suffering for want of rain. Early dry crops give a reduced outturn owing to drought, and later dry crops show signs of withering. The outturn of crops is generally middling to fair. Pasture is sufficient, but the supply of fodder is short in parts. The condition of cattle is normal. Prices have risen except in Ganjam, Kistna, and the West Coast; the rise is sharp in the Carnatic, Central and some of the southern districts. No relief operations are in progress except in Bhadrachelam, where 6 men, 21 women, and 2 children, total 29, were gratuitously relieved in villages. There has been more rain along the coast since the close of the week, and prospects are brighter though they are not yet assured. In parts of the Carnatic and adjoining districts the outlook, though by no means hopeless, is not altogether encouraging.

Bombay.—For week ending 29th November.—No rain fell during the week, except slight showers in one taluka of Kanara. More rain is wanted in Poona, Ahmednagar, Sholapur, and Bijapur. The standing crops are thriving generally, except in parts of Poona, Ahmednagar, Sholapur and Bijapur, where they are affected by blight or excessive cold or are withering. Locusts have caused damage in two talukas of Hyderabad and Thar and Parkar and in one of Karachi. Reaping of early crops and sowings of late crops are almost completed. Cotton-picking continues in Khandesh. The condition of agricultural stock is improving in Belgaum; and is healthy elsewhere, except in two talukas of Kanara. Prices continue high in Shikarpur and are stationary in Karachi, Ahmedabad, Nasik and Ratnagiri. Prices in affected districts were—Belgaum 14¼, Bijapur 13¾, Sholapur 9¾, Poona 11, seers per rupee. The average number on relief works, including dependants, was—Bijapur 959, Sholapur 9,482, Poona 1,967, Belgaum 782; total 13,190, of whom 11,852 are relief workers and 1,338 dependants. On gratuitous relief—Sholapur 2,216 including 94 in poor-houses, Poona 3,116, Belgaum 139, total 5,471. Total number on relief 18,661.

Bengal.—For week ending 29th November.—There was slight rain in parts of Orissa and of South-West and East Bengal during the week. The general prospects of the crops continue favourable except in the sea-board tracts of Chittagong, where the crops were much damaged by the recent tidal wave. The harvesting of winter rice is progressing. The spring and poppy crops are still being sown. In Champaran it is reported that unseasonably warm weather has necessitated a considerable re-sowing of poppy. The fodder-supply is generally sufficient, and cattle are in good condition. The price of rice continues to fall. New winter rice is beginning to come into the market in some districts.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 1st December.—The weather is clear. The autumn crops have been practically harvested. Spring sowings are nearly completed and seed is coming on well. Poppy is being sown in places. Irrigation is in progress. Slight damage has been caused by locusts in Pilibhit. The markets are well stocked. Fodder is abundant. Prices are generally falling.

Punjab.—For week ending 29th November.—Rainfall nil. Rain is wanted in most districts. The harvesting of autumn crops is nearly over. Sugarcanepressing and cotton-picking continue in most districts. Sowings for spring crops are generally in progress. The condition of the standing spring crops is generally good. The outturn is reported average in Rohtak and Dera Ismail Khan. Insects and blight have damaged the cotton in Lahore and Gujranwala and are also injuring other crops in the former district. In Peshawar insects have attacked the seeds recently sown. The condition of cattle is fair in Delhi and Gujranwala and good elsewhere, except in Sialkot where they are losing condition owing to over work. Fodder is generally sufficient except in Sialkot where it is becoming scarce; in Gujranwala dry fodder is reported to be scarce. Prices are generally high; they are slightly falling in Umballa, Sialkot and Shahpur; slightly rising in Jullundur and Mooltan and are unchanged elsewhere. Wheat is selling from 10 to 12, barley 13 to 17, maize 14½ to 21, gram 10 to 11, bulrush millet 15 to 21, and great millet 14 to 21, seers per rupee.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 29th November.—The weather is clear and cold. The reaping and threshing of autumn crops and picking of cotton continue with good results. The winter sowings have been practically completed. The young crops are thriving. The sugarcane crop is in good condition. Locusts have again appeared in Saugor but have caused very slight damage. Prices of wheat are steady or falling slightly; that of juar (Sorghum vulgare) has fallen to 21 seers in Nimar and is easy in most districts, except in Nagpur where it remains rather high. The rate for rice is generally lower and rules at 16 to 20 seers in Bilaspur and Sambalpur. There has been a further fall of 8,200 in the numbers on relief works and of 32,000 in those receiving gratuitous relief. The number of relief workers returned against Nagpur consists wholly of weavers. The numbers on relief works were—Narsinghpur 1,225, Betul 795, Nagpur 2,828, and Balaghat 3,821; total 8,669. The numbers on gratuitous relief were—Saugor 12,569, Damoh 7,435, Jubbulpore 17,428, Mandla 20,885, Seoni 13,714, Narsinghpur 6,809, Hoshangabad 6,356, Nimar 1,862, Betul 9,626, Chhindwara 7,085, Wardha 823, Nagpur 5,282, Chanda 3,114, Bhandara 11,969, Balaghat 10,720, Raipur 11,833, and Bilaspur 14,760; total 162,-70. Total number on relief 170,939. There were also 8,489 persons employed on railway and other private works. Details of relief workers—men 2,980, women 3,330, and children 2,359. Dependants—men 5, women 12, and children 574, with 352 unclassed. Poor-houses—men 1,337, women 1,307, and children 4,149. Otherwise relieved—men 21,266, women 46,186, and children 50,275, with 36,807 unclassed. Wage prices—Narsinghpur 16½, Balaghat 11¼, and Betul 9, seers per rupee.

Burma.—For week ending 27th November.—In Lower Burma the reaping of early paddy is in general progress. The crop prospects continue excellent. In Upper Burma the reaping of early wet-weather paddy is nearly completed. Cultivation of island and cold-weather crops is in progress. The standing crops are generally in good condition. The price of paddy has risen slightly in Pakokku, fallen largely in Shwebo, considerably in Akyab, and slightly in Myaungmya; elsewhere it is stationary.

Assam.—For week ending 30th November.—The weather is seasonable. Reaping of late rice and sowing of mustard and pulses are in progress. The prospects of the late rice are generally good. Sugarcane is bad in places owing to excessive rains during the season. The manufacture of tea is nearly finished. Prices of common rice—Silchar 10½, Sylhet 13, Dhubri and Tezpur 9½, Gauhati and Dibrugarh 10, and Sibsagar 12, seers per rupee.

Mysore and Coorg.—For week ending 29th November.—MYSORE: Fifteen cents rain in Civil and Military Station and slight rain in parts of Kolar, Tumkur, and Chitaldrug. Prospects are favourable. Prices have slightly risen in Bangalore, Tumkur, Mysore and Hassan, and have fallen in Kadur. Ragi (Eleusine coracana) has been harvested in parts of Bangalore, Mysore and Kadur.

COORG: Rainfall 10 cents. The rice crop is maturing. Picking of cardamoms has been completed and picking of coffee continues. The prices of food grains are stationary. Water and fodder for cattle are sufficient.

Berar and Hyderabad.—For week ending 29th November.—BERAR: The weather is cold. No rainfall during the week. Cotton-picking and cutting of jowar (Sorghum vulgare) continue. The winter crops are reported to be in a satisfactory condition. Ploughing operations have stopped throughout the province. Sowings continue in Ellichpur and Melghat talukas only. The fodder and water-supply are ample. The price of jowar has fallen considerably being due to the excellent monsoon harvest. Occupants of poor-houses—Buldana 17. Prices—jowar—Akola 16, Amraoti 12, Basim 18, Buldana 15, Ellichpur 11, and Wun 15, seers per rupee.

HYDERABAD: No rain during week. Agricultural prospects are on the whole favourable, but rain is required in parts for the spring crops. Prices are rising in some places. Prices—wheat 5⅛, coarse rise 6⅛ and jowari 12, seers per current sicca rupee.

Central India.—For week ending 29th November.—No rain fell in Central India during the week. Agricultural operations are in progress in all agencies. The crops are in good condition, but have been damaged by locusts in some States in Bundelkhand and in parts of Bhopawar. The agricultural stock and pasturage are good in all agencies. Prices are falling slightly. The prospects of opium are fair in Malwa; poppy sowing continues in Bhopawar. In Bundelkhand 3,840 persons were employed on famine relief works and 1,911 were relieved gratuitously. Total number on relief 5,751. Prices—10 to 20 seers per rupee.

Rajputana.—For week ending 1st December.—Harvesting of autumn crops and sowing of spring crops continue. The standing crops and prospects are good. Agricultural operations are progressing. Locusts have nearly left Jaisulmere but after doing considerable damage. The agricultural stock is in good condition. Pasturage or fodder is sufficient. Prices are steady in Sirohi, Jeypore, Dholepore and Ulwar; and are falling elsewhere. The number of persons on gratuitous relief in Dholepore was 28.

Kashmir.—For week ending 30th November.—The weather is fine. Spring sowings are still going on in some places. Prices are a little below normal.

Nepal.—For week ending 27th November.—No rain. Weather has been cloudy lately, but is now clear though cold. Nights are beginning to be frosty. Wheat and barley are being sown.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. Saturday, November 27th, 1897.

Over the Bay area the weather has been slightly unsettled during the week under review. The low pressure area which for some considerable time past has been established over the east of the Bay has, during the present week, been transferred westward to the Madras coast. Within this low pressure area a small centre apparently formed on Wednesday, the 24th, and this small storm passed inland close to but to the north of Madras on the morning of the 25th. It occasioned over three inches of rain at Madras and was followed by a period of showery weather over the southern half of the Madras Presidency which lasted until the close of the week. In all other parts of the Indian region the weather has been very quiet and fine. Pressure has been steadily highest over the north-west and centre and relatively high over the north-east, while slight to moderate gradients have prevailed between these two areas of high pressure and the low pressure area over the Bay. Abnormal southerly and south-westerly winds have been reported from the South Madras coast, and in Lower Burma the wind directions have been more easterly than usual, but elsewhere the winds have been fairly normal. In Burma on all days and in Bombay on most days the weather has been cooler than usual, but in all other parts of the country the mean temperature of the week has been more or less excessive.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, 21st November.—The barometric changes had been everywhere slight or small. Pressure was highest in North-West India, relatively high in North-East India, and low over the Bay. The distribution was nearly normal. Calms prevailed over Northern and Central India, easterly winds on the Burma coasts, and northerly winds in other parts of the Bay area and easterly winds over the west of the Peninsula. The force had decreased at Diamond Island and increased at the Circars stations. The mean temperature had been higher than usual over North-West India and the central parts of India and of the Peninsula, and below the normal average elsewhere. There had been practically no rain.

Monday, 22nd November.—The barometric changes continued slight, but were generally upward. The distribution of pressure was the same as on the 21st. The winds were also practically unaltered. The variations of temperature from the normal were generally small, but there had been a moderate to large excess over the Gangetic Plain, a moderate excess in the North Punjab and part of Madras and of Orissa, and a moderate deficiency over Upper Burma, Cachar and East Bengal. There had been no rain anywhere.

Tuesday, 23rd November.—The barometer had risen briskly over the West Punjab and changed slightly elsewhere. Pressure was high over North-West and North-East India, while a small area of low pressure was appearing off the mid-Madras coast, where pressure was in moderate defect of the normal. The winds had backed to north-west all along the Madras coast, but elsewhere the directions were practically unchanged. The mean temperature was higher than usual over the Gangetic Plain and Bihar as well as over Orissa and the Circars, and was lower than usual on the Konkan coast and over part of North-East India, while elsewhere the variations from the normal were small. A few drops of rain had fallen in Orissa and Ganjam, where the weather was cloudy.

Wednesday, 24th November.—The barometric changes were again slight, but in Madras pressure was giving way. Pressure remained high over North-West and North-East India, but the low pressure area over the Bay had been transferred westward and was shown off the Madras coast. In this region pressure was in slight defect of the normal, while over North-East India it was in moderate excess. At Madras the wind was south-south-westerly and at Cuddalore and Negapatam nearly westerly, while at Cocanada the direction was north-easterly and the wind was blowing a gale. Elsewhere the winds were practically unchanged. There was a considerable excess of temperature over Bihar and over Madras. Light showers had been received over Upper Burma, Cachar, Lower Bengal, Ganjam and the east of the Central Provinces.

Thursday, 25th November.—Pressure had increased in most places, but at Madras there had been a slight fall. The lowest pressures had been established over the south-west of the Bay, while pressure remained high in the north-west and north-east. A small storm crossed the coast close to but to the northward of Madras soon after 8 A.M., and strong southerly winds and heavy rain (3″) were reported from Madras. North-easterly winds continued at Cocanada and generally the winds were the same as those reported on the 24th. The mean temperature remained high over the Gangetic Plain and Madras. At Cuddapah the excess was over 7°. In addition to the rain at Madras about half an inch had been received at Nellore.

Friday, 26th November.—A local increase of pressure was reported from Madras, but elsewhere the barometer was generally falling. Pressure was highest over North-West India and lowest over the south-west of the Bay. The wind had shifted to north-west along the Madras coast from Madras southward, but elsewhere the directions were generally unchanged. The mean temperature was high over the greater part of Madras (Kurnool +7°·6), relatively high over the Gangetic Plain and over the western desert, low in Lower Burma and approximately normal elsewhere. Showers had been received over the southern half of Madras and over Mysore.

Saturday, 27th November.—The barometer had continued to fall almost everywhere, but there had been no important change in the distribution. Pressure was lower than usual over the Bay area, and was about normal elsewhere. A westerly wind had appeared down the Gangetic Plain, but elsewhere the directions were generally unaltered. The temperature variations were irregular, but the heat was generally considerably less than usual over Lower Burma and the central parts of the country, and considerably greater than usual over the greater part of the Peninsula and over the western desert and Baluchistan. Fairly general showers had been received over the southern half of the Peninsula.

Temperature.—The principal features in the temperature conditions have been the excess of heat which has prevailed during the week over the Gangetic Plain and southward over the eastern half of the Peninsula, and the low temperatures which have prevailed over Assam and Burma. These conditions were most marked on the 26th and 27th, when the variations were +7°·6 at Kurnool and −4°·6 at Moulmein and +6°·3 at Kurnool and −7°·9 at Tavoy.

The following table gives temperature data for the week :—

The mean temperature of the whole country was thus nearly normal on each day of the week. The provincial variations show that in Burma for the week the heat was less than usual; in Bengal, Bombay, the Central Provinces, Central India, Gujarat, Sind and Rajputana it was normal, and in the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab and Madras it was excessive.

Rain.—The rainfall has been lighter and more restricted even than last week. It has, however, fallen over much the same districts. Effective rain, that is, rain exceeding one-tenth of an inch, has fallen in eleven divisions, viz., Central Burma, Arakan, Assam (Surma and Hills), Orissa, Malabar, South Central Madras, Central Madras, South Madras and the East Coast, (Central and South), while light rain averaging less than one-tenth of an inch has been received in Upper Burma, East Bengal, the Brahmaputra Valley, Deltaic Bengal, Central Bengal, Coorg, Mysore and the East Coast (North). In all the other divisions there has been no rain. Among the divisions reporting effective rainfall the following are the principal amounts:—Arakan 1·10″, the East Coast (Central) 0·82″, the East Coast (South) 0·87″ and Madras (South) 0·76″. In North-East India the rainfall occurred as light showers falling at different times during the week, while the rainfall over the south of the Peninsula all occurred during the last three days of the week.

The third column of the table shows that in Arakan no rain is expected during the week under review, and hence that the whole of the amount received, 1·10″, was in excess of the normal. It also shows that in parts of Assam and of Lower Bengal as well as in South Madras the rainfall of the week was in trifling excess of the average, but that in all other parts of the country the falls were less than the small anticipated amounts. In parts of the east and south of the Peninsula the deficiencies were between half and three-quarters of an inch, but elsewhere the deficiency was unimportant.

The three concluding columns of the rainfall table exhibiting the state of the seasonal rainfall show an even more unfavourable condition than was the case last week. In parts of Burma, of Assam, of Bengal, and of the east of the Central Provinces and the North-Western Provinces the rainfall since October 17th has been heavier than usual, but elsewhere there has been general deficiency. This deficiency is absolutely largest and is most important in Madras, where the autumn rains have very largely failed, thus Madras (Central) has received for the whole period an average of only 0·63″ instead of 4·83″, the East Coast (Central) 2·31″ instead of 10·03″, the East Coast (South) 2·51″ instead of 12·70″, Madras (South) 5·45″ instead of 9·02″, Malabar 4·06″ instead of 8·89″, Madras (South-Central) 2·04″ instead of 7·78″, Coorg 1·66″ instead of 7·06″ and Mysore 0·46″ instead of 5·14″.

Though the general rainfall during the week under review has been scanty in Madras certain stations in the south have received moderate local falls, thus Chitvel (Cuddapah) has received a total of 3·13″, Gudur (Nellore) 4·54″, Madras 3·58″, Kalahasti (North Arcot) 2·59″, Mannargudi (Tanjore) 2·68″, Tinnevelly 2·45″, and Sivagunga (Madura) 6·44″.

Asst. Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

DENZIL IBBETSON,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 4th December.—Rainfall nil or inappreciable in the Circars and the Deccan; elsewhere it was generally normal or better, except in the extreme north of the Carnatic group. The water-supply is sufficient under the Godavari, Kistna and Tinnevelly irrigation systems, but is in some defect elsewhere. More rain is urgently required in the latter areas, especially for dry crops. Agricultural operations are general. Wet crops are still in good condition, but dry crops are generally suffering, and wet crops in parts are also suffering for want of rain. The outturn of crops is generally middling to fair. Pasture is sufficient, but the supply of fodder is short in parts. The condition of cattle is normal. Prices are on the whole somewhat easier. Relief operations have been closed in Bhadrachalam. One test work has been opened in the Nellore district with 150 workers. The recent rainfall has much improved matters, but prospects are not yet assured. The present outlook in North Nellore is not encouraging.

Bombay.—For week ending 6th December.—Rain is wanted in the Deccan and Karnatak for the spring crops which are withering in parts of Ahmednagar, Sholapur, and Bijapur. Spring Jowari (Sorghum vulgare) has been blighted in parts of Poona and Ahmednagar and crops have been generally damaged by locusts in parts of Hyderabad and Thar and Parkar. The standing crops are otherwise good. The harvesting of autumn and the sowing of spring crops continue in several districts. Supplies of fodder, water, and food-grains are sufficient. The agricultural stock is healthy. Prices are generally falling. In affected districts prices were—Belgaum $14\frac{6}{7}$, Bijapur $14\frac{1}{10}$, Sholapur $9\frac{1}{4}$, Poona $11\frac{3}{8}$, seers per rupee. The average number on relief works, including dependants, was—Bijapur 909, Sholapur 7,943, Poona 6 059, Belgaum 860; total 15,771, of whom 13,810 are relief workers and 1,961 dependants. Of relief workers—4,649 are men, 6,481 women, and 2,680 children. Of dependants—16 are men, 263 women, and 1 682 children. On gratuitous relief — Sholapur 2,147, including 71 in poor-houses, Poona 3,739; total 5,885, of whom 2,086 are men, 2,127 women, and 1,673 children. Total number on relief 21,657.

Bengal.—For week ending 6th December.—There was no rain during the week; prospects remained unchanged. The harvesting of winter rice is everywhere in progress. The spring poppy, sugarcane, and other standing crops promise well. A flight of locusts is reported to have passed over Deoghur on the 2nd instant. The fodder-supply is everywhere reported sufficient except at Kurigram in Rangpur and at Sirajganj in Pabna. The price of common rice is falling with the appearance of the new grain in the market.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 8th December.—The weather continues clear. Rain is needed in places to forward the crops which so far are reported to be in good condition. Irrigation is being resorted to where possible. Prospects are favourable. Locusts have appeared in Dehra and Almora and have caused slight damage in the former district. Supplies and fodder are abundant. Prices are falling.

Punjab.—For week ending 6th December.—Rainfall nil. Rain is generally wanted. The harvesting of autumn crops is almost over. Cotton-picking and sugarcane-pressing continue in most districts. Sowing for spring crops is generally in progress. The condition of the standing spring crops is generally good. The outturn is reported good in Hissar and Rohtak on canal irrigated lands. The yield of cotton is average in Sialkot and Dera Ismail Khan and below average in Lahore. Blight and insects are damaging the crops in Lahore and Gujranwala. Grasshoppers are destroying seedlings in Peshawar and white ants are injuring the spring crops in parts of Sialkot. Cattle are losing condition in Sialkot owing to overwork but are in good condition elsewhere. Fodder is scarce in Amritsar; is becoming scarce in Sialkot; and is sufficient elsewhere. In Gujranwala dry fodder is reported to be scarce. Prices are generally high; they have risen in Dera Ismail Khan, fallen in Umballa, and are unchanged elsewhere. Wheat is selling from 10 to 13, barley 14 to 18, maize 14½ to 21, gram 10 to 12, bulrush millet 14 to 20, and great millet 14 to 25, seers per rupee.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, December 4th, 1897.

The general weather of the week under review has been almost precisely the same as that recorded during the past few weeks. Pressure has been steadily high over North-Western and Central India, relatively high over North-East India and low over the south-east of the Arabian Sea and over the south of the Bay. Accompanying this distribution of pressure there have been light to fresh easterly winds in Burma and in the centre and west of the Peninsula, dry northerly to north-westerly winds along the Orissa and Madras coasts and variable light winds and calms in other parts of the country. The rainfall has been confined to Burma, Assam, the north and west coasts of the Bay and the south-west of the Peninsula, and has been very light and generally below the normal over these areas. Elsewhere the weather has been absolutely rainless and has been in general somewhat warmer than the average.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, 28th November.—Pressure had fallen in Burma and risen in almost all other places. The changes were generally slight or small. Pressure was highest in the north-west and centre of India, relatively high in North East India and low over the south-east of the Arabian Sea and the south of the Bay. Gradients were slightly steeper than usual. The winds were westerly down the Gangetic Plain, easterly in Burma and over the centre and west of the Peninsula, northerly along the Madras coast and variable elsewhere. Temperature was lower than usual over the central parts of the country and Rajputana as well as over Burma. The principal variations in these two areas were $-4^{\circ}\cdot2$ at Malegaon and $-7^{\circ}\cdot6$ at Tavoy. Elsewhere the heat was somewhat greater than usual. Showers had been received over the southern half of the Peninsula, the largest amounts being $\frac{3}{4}$th of an inch at Nellore and Madras.

Monday, 29th November.—Pressure had fallen briskly over Northern India and changed slightly elsewhere. The pressure differences were smaller than on the preceding day, but the general conditions were unaltered The barometer read lower than usual almost everywhere—more particularly so along the foot of the Himalayas. The winds were practically unchanged. The mean temperature remained abnormally low over the central parts of India and over Lower Burma, but the amount of the deficiency was less than on the preceding day. Showers continued to be received from the southern half of the Peninsula. The amounts were larger than on the 28th, Madras reporting 2·45″, Calicut 1·40″, Cuddalore 0·93″ and Cuddapah 0·54″.

Tuesday, 30th November.—Pressure had continued to fall briskly in the North-West, but elsewhere the barometric changes were slight or small. The barometer was highest over Rajputana and the Central Provinces, lowest off the Malabar coast, but the pressure differences had still further decreased. The barometer read everywhere below the normal—most so in the Punjab. Westerly winds continued to blow down the Gangetic Plain, northerly winds over the Bay area, easterly winds over the centre and west of the Peninsula, and variable breezes elsewhere. Temperature was low over the central parts of India and Lower Burma, higher than usual elsewhere, but except in Tenasserim the variations from the normal were not large. Light showers had been received over South Madras and at one or two stations in the north-east.

Wednesday, 1st December.—The barometer had fallen briskly over Baluchistan and Upper Sind, while it had risen briskly along the foot of the North-West Himalayas and over Upper Burma, but elsewhere the changes had been slight. Shallow low-pressure areas were shown over the south-east of the Arabian Sea and over Upper Sind, but over India generally pressure was high and uniform. The barometer read below the normal—most so in the depression area in the north-west. The winds were more easterly in Burma, but otherwise were unaltered. The mean temperature was considerably higher than usual in the Indus Valley districts, slightly higher in Upper Burma and the Peninsula, while elsewhere it was lower than usual. The principal variations were +6°·6 at Hyderabad (Sind) and —4°·8 at Tavoy. A few showers had been received in the extreme north-east and extreme south.

Thursday, 2nd December.—The barometer had generally risen except in Kashmir. The change had been greater in the north than in the south and gradients were consequently steeper. Pressure was highest over the Central Provinces and lowest over the south of the Bay. The winds were unaltered. The mean temperature was abnormally low over Lower Burma and North-East India, but was generally higher than usual elsewhere. The greatest excess was 7°·7 at Jacobabad, the greatest defect 4°·7 at Diamond Island. Showers had been received in Burma, Ceylon and Travancore.

Friday, 3rd December.—The pressure charges had been everywhere slight and unimportant and the general conditions of pressure were unchanged. The winds were unaltered. Light airs and calms prevailed over the greater part of Northern and Central India. A rapid fall of temperature had occurred over Lower Burma where the mean temperature was in very large defect of the normal. The heat was generally greater than usual over Western, and less than usual over Eastern, India. Light showers had been received in parts of Burma and of Southern India, but elsewhere the weather was rainless.

Saturday, 4th December—Pressure had again been almost steady, and the general conditions were the same as on the two preceding days. Calms and light variable airs continued over Northern and Central India, northerly winds over the Bay area and easterly winds over the west coast districts and in Deltaic Burma. The mean temperature remained low over the eastern and high over the western half of India. Over the Bay area the deficiency was considerable to large. The weather was fine with the exception of a few drops of rain at Moulmein and Bhamo.

Temperature.—On the first two days of the week the mean temperature was low over the central parts of the country, but with this exception the mean temperature throughout the week has been generally higher than usual over the western and central parts of the country. On the contrary over the eastern half of India, with the exception of Upper Burma, the mean temperature has been generally lower than usual. The greatest deficiency within this area has been reported from Lower Burma where the depression of temperature has been very remarkable. Thus at Tavoy on the 28th November the mean was 7°·6, on the 29th 5°·6, on the 30th 6°·7, on 1st December 4°·8, on the 2nd 6°·9 on the 3rd 4°·5 and on the 4th 6°·2 lower than the normal. On the 2nd the day temperatures at Rangoon and Moulmein were over 16° below the normal average.

The following table gives temperature data for the week :—

Owing to the excess in the west and the defect in the eastern half of India the mean temperature of the whole country was very nearly normal on each day of the week. The provincial variations exhibit some excess over Sind, Rajputana, the Punjab and Madras and some defect in Burma, but in the remaining provinces the heat was very nearly normal.

Rain.—The week under review has been one of very restricted rainfall. In parts of Burma and the upper districts of the Assam Valley, there have been fair showers, in the Bengal Hills one light shower and in the south of the Peninsula light to moderate rain. In all, eleven divisions report effective rain, and three more report light rain giving an average fall of less than one-tenth of an inch. The eleven divisions reporting effective rainfall are Tenasserim, Deltaic Burma, Upper Burma, the Assam Valley, Malabar, Madras (South-Central and South), Coorg, Mysore, and the East Coast (Central and South). In all other parts of the country the weather has been actually or practically rainless. In the East Coast (South) and Madras (South) the average actual rainfall has exceeded 1″, in Coorg it has been $\frac{3}{4}$″, and in Tenasserim, Upper Burma and Malabar about $\frac{1}{2}$″. These are the largest amounts reported. In five divisions, viz., Tenasserim, Upper Burma, the Assam Valley, Malabar and Coorg, the actual rainfall has slightly exceeded the normal, but in all the remaining divisions it has been in defect.

The three concluding columns of the rainfall table show that from October 17th to date the rainfall has been heavier than usual in eight divisions, viz., Tenasserim, Central Burma, Arakan, Chota Nagpur, Bihar (North and South), the North-Western Provinces (East) and the Central Provinces (East), it has been normal in nine divisions, viz., Upper Burma, East Bengal, Assam (Surma Hills and Brahmaputra), Central Bengal, Orissa, the North-Western Provinces (East Submontane) and Hyderabad (South) and been lighter than usual in all the remaining divisions. As pointed out last week the deficiency in most parts of the country is not very important as the anticipated rainfall at this season is not large, but in parts of the Peninsula the deficiency is large and important and in the extreme north-west of India it is becoming important. Thus the Punjab (Hills) has received no rain instead of 0·78″, the Punjab (North) no rain instead of 0·92″, Malabar 4·64″ instead of 9·14″, Madras (South Central) 2·35″ instead of 8·52″, Coorg 2·42″ instead of 7·64″, Mysore 0·59″ instead of 5·34″, the East Coast (North) 4·67″ instead of 7·96″, Madras (Central) 0·70″ instead of 5·13″, the East Coast (Central) 2·63″ instead of 11·24″, the East Coast (South) 3·97″ instead of 14·53″ and Madras (South) 6·47″ instead of 10·41″.

There have been a few moderate falls of rain during the week under review in the south of the Peninsula. Thus Poonamallee (Chingleput) reports 5·40″, Chidambaram (Cuddalore) 4·64″ and Kulasegarapatnam (Tinnevelly) 3·18″.

SIMLA, the 9th December 1897.

DENZIL IBBETSON,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 11th December.—There was no rain during the week. The water-supply is generally insufficient except in Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Godavari, Bellary, Anantapur and Cuddapah. More rain is required everywhere. Agricultural operations are general. The wet crops are generally still in good condition, but the dry crops generally and the wet crops in parts are suffering for want of rain. The outturn of crops is middling to fair. Pasture is sufficient. Fodder is available. The condition of cattle is normal. Prices are fluctuating; they are slightly easier in the northern half of the presidency and are rising slightly in the south. The Nellore test work employs 438 coolies. There is no improvement in prospects.

Bombay.—For week ending 13th December.—There was slight rain in four districts of Sind; more rain is urgently wanted in the Deccan and Karnatak for the late jowari (Sorghum vulgare) crops which are withering in parts of four districts. The standing crops have been blighted in parts of Poona, Ahmednagar and Satara and have been damaged by locusts in three talukas of Sind and one of Broach. The harvesting of early crops continues in five and sowing of late crops in nine districts. Fodder is sufficient. Agricultural stock is healthy. Prices have fallen in some districts and are almost stationary elsewhere. Prices in affected districts were—Belgaum 17¼, Bijapur 14¾, Sholapur 9⅗, Poona 11⅝ seers per rupee. The average number on relief works, including dependants, was—Bijapur 364, Sholapur 8,690, Poona 5,608, Belgaum 897; total 15,649, of whom 14,732 are relief workers and 1,517 dependants. Of relief workers—4,953 are men, 6,926 women, and 2,853 children. Of dependants—18 are men, 165 women, and 1,334 children. On gratuitous relief—Sholapur 2,131, including 59 in poor-houses, Poona 2,574; total 4,705, of whom 1,625 are men, 1,735 women, and 1,285 children. Total number on relief, 20,354.

Bengal.—For week ending 13th December.—There was slight rain in Darjeeling, but none elsewhere. The harvesting of winter rice is making rapid progress, and a good outturn is everywhere expected, except in the flooded tracts of Chittagong. All cold-weather crops, including poppy, tobacco and sugarcane, are doing well. Locusts appeared in parts of Birbhum on the 4th, 5th and 6th instant. The price of rice continues to fall as new winter rice is coming into the market. There is plenty of fodder everywhere except in the Kurigram sub-division of Rungpur. Cattle are reported to be in good condition.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 15th December.—With the exception of a slight shower in Muzaffarnagar and Bijnor the weather has been clear. A fall of rain would be very beneficial. The irrigation of spring crops is being actively carried on. Poppy has germinated well and is flourishing. Prospects continue favourable. Slight damage has been done by locusts in Almora. Supplies and fodder are abundant. Prices are falling in some districts but are generally stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 13th December.—Rain has fallen in all districts except Hissar and Delhi. Sugarcane-pressing and cotton-picking continue. Sowings of spring crops are in progress. The condition and prospects of standing crops are reported to be good. The recent rain has benefited the spring crops. More rain is still generally required. The outturn of autumn crops is reported to be good. The yield of cotton is said to be average in Peshawar and Dera Ismail Khan. The rape seed crop has been damaged by caterpillars in parts of Ferozepore. Locusts passed over one tahsil of Rawalpindi but did no damage. Cattle are generally in good condition but are losing condition in Sialkot owing to overwork. Fodder is scarce in Ferozepore and in parts of Dera Ismail Khan; but is sufficient elsewhere. Prices are mostly unchanged; they are slightly falling in Delhi, Ferozepore, Mooltan, Sialkot and Rawalpindi. Wheat is selling from 10 to 12½, barley 14, gram 10 to 12, bulrush millet 14 to 21, maize 15 to 22, great millet 15, and rice 9 to 10, seers per rupee.

A little rain is required in Damoh, Hoshangabad, and Betul for the young spring crops; elsewhere these crops are reported to be in excellent condition. The harvesting of autumn crops and picking of cotton continue and are approaching completion in some districts. In Mandla the outturn of the autumn crops is estimated at 16 and in Raipur from 12 to 16 annas; in Bhandara the outturn of rice is estimated at from 16 to 18 annas. in 1877 from what were virtually experiments in relief, was all that was available, and the Commission had to formulate a policy and to evolve general principles for guidance in the actual presence of famine. But this was, perhaps, the least important portion of their duties. They were also bidden to consider and advise upon measures of the widest possible nature, such as might "diminish the severity of famines, or place the people in a better condition for enduring them." The programme that was laid down by them accordingly under the head of "Measures of protection and prevention" has since then been actively prosecuted; and though much still remains and always will remain to be done, the omissions and defects are fully recognised, and are gradually being dealt with as opportunity offers, and no further general inquiry of this nature is either necessary or advisable. So, too, the experience of the past year has shown that the general lines of policy laid down in 1878 stand in no need of reconsideration. It is the details of the scheme of relief that require to be revised. But in such a matter details are hardly less important than principles.

5. The duties of the Commission will therefore be—to examine the manner in which the provisions of the Famine Codes of the several provinces differ from one another, and in which their prescriptions have been departed from;

to inquire into the degree of success which has in each case attended the measures adopted, considered primarily with regard to the relief of distress and the saving of human life, and secondarily with regard to economy;

to advise as to the measures and methods of working which seem likely to prove most effective in these two respects; and to make any inquiries and record any recommendations or opinions which it is thought will prove useful in the case of future famines.

It is to be understood that the object of the inquiry is to furnish guidance for the future; and that it is concerned with the past, only in so far as may be necessary to that end.

6. The President of the Commission will be Sir James Broadwood Lyall, G.C.I.E., K.C.S.I., late Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab. The Members of the Commission will be Surgeon-Colonel Richardson, lately Inspector General of Civil Hospitals, North-Western Provinces and Oudh; Mr. T. W. Holderness, I.C.S., lately Deputy Secretary to the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture (Famine); Mr. T. Higham, C.I.E., Inspector General of Irrigation and Joint Secretary to the Government of India in the Public Works Department; and Rai Bahadur Bipin Krishna Bose, M.A., B.L., Government Advocate, Nagpur, and Secretary to the Provincial Committee of the Famine Charitable Relief Fund. Mr. H. J. McIntosh, I.C.S., will be Secretary to the Commission. The representation upon a small Commission of each province affected by the late famine is impossible; but the Government of India desire that each Local Government should nominate, to be attached to the Commission as a temporary Member while they are actually making inquiries within the province, one of its own officers who is personally acquainted with the practical working of the system of relief adopted, and whose presence will ensure that material points are not overlooked or misunderstood.

7. The Commission will be formally constituted on the arrival of Sir James Lyall and Dr. Richardson from England. They will probably wish to visit Bombay, Madras, Bengal, the Central Provinces, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and possibly Berar, and to make inquiries upon the spot; but the Governor General in Council desires to leave the matter of method and procedure in the investigation with which they are charged entirely to their discretion. The general conduct of the inquiry and the regulation of the course of business before the Commission will be entrusted to the President in communication with the Members. The Commission, through their Secretary acting under the instructions of the President, will correspond direct with Local Governments and Departments of the Government of India, and with any local authorities with whom direct communications may be authorised by Local Governments as a matter of convenience and in order to save time; and it is requested that all communications or requisitions for information emanating from them may be treated as urgent and complied with promptly, and that in the event of the Commission visiting a province, they may be afforded every facility for their inquiries.

ORDER.—Ordered, that copies of this Resolution be forwarded to the Local Governments noted in the margin, to the Secretary to the Famine Commission, and to the Foreign, Public Works, Home, and Finance Departments of the Government of India for information.

No. 1417.—The Right Hon'ble the Governor-General in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the subjoined letter from the Adjutant-General in India, submitting despatches from Major-General A. G. Yeatman-Biggs, C.B., Commanding the Kurram-Kohat Force, describing the operations which took place on the Samana Range and in the Kurram Valley in August and September last.

2. The Governor-General in Council concurs with His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in his appreciation of the conduct of these operations, and of the behaviour of the troops engaged.

3. The Governor-General in Council desires especially to express his admiration of the brilliant defence of Fort Gulistan by the 36th Sikhs, and of the post of Saragarhi by a party of twenty men of the same regiment under the command of Havildar Ishar Singh, who died fighting to the last, displaying a heroic devotion which has never been surpassed in the annals of the Indian Army.

From MAJOR-GENERAL G. DEC. MORTON, C.B., Adjutant-General in India, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department,—(No. 2485-F, dated Simla, the 8th December 1897).

I have the honour, by direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to forward, for the information of the Government of India, despatches* from Major-General Yeatman-Biggs, C.B., commanding the troops in Kohat-Kurram, which describe the measures taken by that officer to repel attacks made by the Afridis and Orakzais on our frontier posts on the Samana Range in August and September 1897, and also the attack on Sadda camp on the night of the 16th-17th September 1897.

* Received with Lieutenant-General Commanding the Forces, Punjab, Nos. 705-K and 706-K, dated 8th and 15th November 1897, respectively.

2. His Excellency is of opinion that the operations in question were well planned and skilfully carried out. The march to the relief of Gulistan was performed under very trying circumstances, owing to the heat and to a great scarcity of water en route, but the force successfully accomplished its object with the same gallantry and cheerfulness as have been evinced on every occasion by our troops during the various operations which have recently taken place on the North-West Frontier.

3 The Commander-in-Chief wishes to draw attention to the admirable conduct and steadiness of the 36th Sikhs, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Haughton, during the attack on the various posts held by that regiment on the Samana range.

At Sangar, the small garrison made a sortie and gallantly captured a standard from the enemy, while the brilliant defence of Fort Gulistan by the detachment under the command of Major Des Vœux, reflects the greatest credit on that officer and the garrison of the post.

The Government of India will, His Excellency is assured, appreciate fully the intrepid manner in which the late Havildar Kala Sing led the sortie from the Gulistan fort, and also the conduct of Havildar Sundar Singh, who assisted his comrades at a critical moment.

4. The Commander-in-Chief deeply regrets the loss of the garrison of Saragarhi, a post held by 21 men of the 36th Sikhs, and he wishes to record his admiration of the heroism shewn by those gallant soldiers. Fighting against overwhelming numbers they died at their post, thus proving their loyalty and devotion to their Sovereign while upholding to the last the traditional bravery of the Sikh nation.

5. The creditable manner in which the attack of the enemy on the post at Sadda was repulsed is due, in His Excellency's opinion, not only to the steadiness and good discipline of the garrison, but also to the satisfactory arrangements for the protection of his camp which were made by Colonel G. L. R. Richardson, C.I.E.

6. In conclusion, the Commander-in-Chief recommends to the favourable consideration of Government the services of Major-General Yeatman-Biggs, C.B., and those mentioned by him in his despatch. Among the names brought specially to notice is that of Miss Theresa McGrath, whose heroism is described in terms which His Excellency cordially endorses.

From LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR G. B. WOLSELEY, K.C.B., Commanding the Forces, Punjab, to the Adjutant-General in India, Simla,—(No. 705-K, dated Camp Rawal Pindi, 8th November 1897).

With reference to your letter No. 1637-F, of the 15th October 1897, I have the honour to forward, for the information of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India, the accompanying despatch of Major-General Yeatman-Biggs, C.B., on the operations on the Samana from the 9th to the 14th September.

2. These operations seem to have been well planned and carried out. The heroic defence of Saragarhi is, in my opinion, worthy of the highest praise, and I deeply lament the loss of the garrison.

3. I fully endorse the Major-General's commendation on the defence of Fort Gulistan and the behavour of all ranks. Major Des Vœux proved himself a gallant and skilful leader, and the Major-General's remarks on this officer's conduct appear to be fully deserved.

4. I have much pleasure in recommending for the Order of Merit all the non-commissioned officers and men the Major-General has brought to notice.

From MAJOR-GENERAL A. G. YEATMAN-BIGGS, C.B., Commanding the Kohat Field Force, to the Deputy Adjutant-General, Punjab —(dated Fort Lockhart, the 21st September 1897.)

I have the honour to report, for the information of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, that news was received by me from reliable sources at Hangu on the 8th instant, to the effect that the Afridis had decided to come and assist the Orakzais in attacks on Hangu and on the Samana posts on Friday, the 10th instant.

Having on the same day received reports that the necessary amount of transport and supplies for putting thirty days' supplies into the Samana posts had been collected, I gave orders to start that night with a column, strength as per margin. The ammunition supply had, ten days previously, been sent up by me to the Samana, making up the total number of rounds to four hundred per rifle, 36th Sikhs.

4 guns, 9th Field Battery, R. A. } To Pat Darband only.
2 squadrons, 3rd Bengal Cavalry. }
1 squadron, 3rd Punjab Cavalry. }
4 companies, Royal Irish Regt., 300.
1-2nd Gurkhas, 500.
1-3rd Gurkhas, 500.
2nd Punjab Infantry, 500.
Half company, No. 4 Co., Bombay S. and M.
Sect. No. 8 British Field Hospital.
Sect. No. 42 Native Field Hospital.

Concentrating at Pat Darband at 1 30 A.M. on the 9th instant, the 1-2nd Gurkhas moved up the road as advanced guard, and occupied the plateau on which Dhar is situated, before daylight. At 4 A.M. the remainder of the column started. No enemy were reported in sight, and the road was found too bad for guns. So I sent the cavalry and artillery back to Hangu, and the convoy proceeded up the road, arriving at Fort Lockhart about mid-day.

On the 10th I sent the half company of the Bombay Sappers and Miners to improve the pefences of Gulistan.

At 7-30 P.M. Major Bewicke-Copley reported that he had seen clouds of smoke north of the Sampagha pass, and that the Afridis were coming over the pass.

The distribution of troops on the Samana on the morning of the 11th is given in Appendix "A."

Hearing that the whole of the Afridi lashkar had arrived at Karappa during the night, I sent a few scouts of the 1-3rd Gurkhas down the spurs towards the Khanki valley, to ascertain if the information was correct, as Karappa cannot be seen from the Samana plateau. These scouts were supported by the 1-3rd Gurkhas and two companies of the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Irish Regiment.

About 10 A.M. large numbers of the enemy could be seen marching down the Khanki valley. I at once recalled the troops by heliograph. Just before receiving the order to retire the 1-3rd Gurkhas fired a few long range volleys into a party of the enemy, and three were seen to drop. At 1 P.M. Major Bewicke-Copley reported to me from Crag Picquet that 22 standards and about 10,000 men had passed down the valley.

It seemed probable that the tribesmen intended to carry out their threat of attacking Hangu, or perhaps Shahu Khel, a small post guarding the Khanki valley, about four miles north-west of the point where it is crossed by the Kohat-Hangu road.

This post had been reinforced by me with one company of the Royal Irish and 61 rifles of the 15th Sikhs, under command of Major Forster, Royal Irish Regiment.

I ordered the 2nd Punjab Infantry to seize Gogra Hill, supported by the 1-2nd Gurkhas.

The Commandant of the Border Militia Police, Mr. D. Donald, informed me that a large number of the enemy were making for the Darband Kotal, and the officer commanding the 1-2nd Gurkhas reported to me (7 P.M.) that seven standards and a considerable number were retracing their steps up the valley.

A convoy with two days' supplies had been ordered out from Hangu to meet me at the Pat Darband Kotal, where I found them when I advanced with the remainder of the column. The supplies had been sent up on 51 camels, as no mules were available.

The advanced guard and main column halted for the night at 9 P.M., on the hill marked in the accompanying sketch. A few shots were fired at the rear guard from Gogra Hill, and the whole of the sarwans, except one, bolted, and the camels, being left without drivers and without nose-strings, stampeded. The rear guard, consisting of a wing of the 1-3rd Gurkhas, under Lieutenant-Colonel Pulley, and two companies of the 1-2nd Gurkhas, under Captain Robinson, withstood several determined attacks, and did their utmost to save the convoy. At midnight I sent out two companies of the 2nd Punjab Infantry, under Lieutenant Elsmie, accompanied by Captain Scudamore, Deputy-Assistant Quarter Master-General, to assist in bringing the camels in. All but two were found to have thrown their loads, so it was useless, and by 2 A.M. the rear guard had taken up the position assigned to them in the bivouac. The enemy consisted of Sheikhans, Mishtis, Mallakhels and Alikhels, and they admit to their losses being over 100 killed and wounded. A leading malik of the Sheikhans was wounded, and five leading Mallakhels killed.

When morning broke (12th), I sent out Colonel Lawrence, Royal Irish Regiment, with two companies of his battalion and five companies of each of the remaining corps, to endeavour to recover the camels and stores, but only thirteen camels were recovered, and of these only two had loads. The Royal Irish fired long range volleys to keep the tribesmen at a respectful distance. On the return of Colonel Lawrence's reconnaissance, I set the column once more in motion towards Lakka, as being the best position from which both Hangu and Shahu Khel could be protected. I arrived there at 1 P.M., but finding no water, and having lost our food, I issued orders to commence the march to Hangu at 3 P.M. At 3-30 P.M. I received a message by helio. from Fort Lockhart that Saragarhi was hard pressed, and at 4-30 P.M. it was helioed that Saragarhi had fallen, and that Gulistan was hard pressed.

Four riflemen of the 1-2nd Gurkhas who had been reported missing the previous evening, rejoined, having made their way by the Darband Kotal. Our casualties are given in Appendix "B."

The troops after their hard day without food or water had earned a rest, but about 3-30 P. M. on the 13th, a letter was brought me from Major Des Vœux, 36th Sikhs, commanding at Gulistan, urgently asking for help. I immediately despatched two guns of the 9th Field Battery, and the 3rd Bengal Cavalry with their signallers to gallop along the road at the foot of the hills as far towards Gulistan as they could go, and sent a wire to Doaba to despatch two more guns of the 9th Field Battery and the squadron of the 3rd Punjab Cavalry to join in the demonstration.

The guns from Hangu were accompanied by Mr. D. Donald, who knows the country well, and he was able to show them a position from which they could fire a few rounds to encourage the garrison, and Major Middleton, commanding the 3rd Bengal Cavalry, sent through by helio., just before sunset, a message to assure the garrison that they would be relieved by mid-day on the 14th.

The four guns of the Derajat Mountain Battery had reached Hangu the previous day, having marched 35 miles in under thirteen hours, so they were added to our column, and we set out at midnight for Lakka.

At 4 A.M., on the 14th instant, I arrived at Lakka, and sent on two companies of the 1-3rd Gurkhas to occupy the hill on which we had bivouacked on the night of the 11th.

At 5 A.M. we marched for Gulistan. On arrival opposite Tsalai (7 A.M.) the advanced guard of the 1-3rd Gurkhas was assailed with a heavy fire. I brought up the guns and shelled the enemy's marksmen out of Tsalai tower at a range of 900 yards, and at once ordered the 1-3rd Gurkhas to attack the enemy's position on Gogra, the 1-2nd Gurkhas following in support. Gogra Hill was quickly taken, under cover of the fire of the guns, and one company of the Royal Irish fired long-range volleys at the Orakzais retreating down the Sarmela spur. The strength of the enemy was estimated at about 4,000.

The 2nd Punjab Infantry pressed on, followed by the guns, and the Gurkhas held the position until they had passed through.

As we neared Sangar the garrison of that post displayed a white standard which they had captured from the enemy. Sangar and Dhar had been attacked all night, but a sortie had been made from the first-named as soon as our guns opened fire, and Lieutenant-Colonel Haughton, commanding the 36th Sikhs, had joined the party with 12 men of the Royal Irish and 35 Sikhs, and had poured long-range volleys into the foe as they retreated down the Sarmela.

At 10 A.M. I reached Fort Lockhart and reconnoitred the enemy's position from a bastion of the fort, and found about 8,000 to 10,000 Afridis holding a strong position, which was skilfully occupied with lines of sangars on Saragarhi ridge.

I ordered up the guns, and by 10-30 A.M., they were playing on the enemy's position with shrapnel, whilst the 36th Sikhs from Fort Lockhart advanced to turn the Afridi right, and the 2nd Punjab Infantry made a frontal attack on their position, supported by the two Gurkha battalions as they arrived on the ground. The Afridis did not wait for the infantry, but fled from their position and made for the Khanki valley. I pressed on with all possible speed, as I did not know whether Gulistan was holding out or not. On reaching the high ground overlooking Gulistan, I found that the fort was invested by about 6,000 Orakzais, but they did not wait for the attack of the 2nd Punjab Infantry and 36th Sikhs, which was made under an accurate fire of the guns of the mountain battery, and by 1 P.M. they were in full retreat down the Khandartang spur, and Gulistan was relieved, after having been hard pressed by some 7,000 to 8,000 Afridis and Orakzais since the 12th instant.

I attach Appendices "B" and "C," giving the lists of casualties and the expenditure of ammunition. The enemy's casualties are reported over 400 killed.

I wish to bring to the notice of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief for special recognition the names of—

Major C. H. Des Vœux, 36th Sikhs, who was the life and soul of the defence of Gulistan. He did all that could be done, with the slender means at his disposal, to frustrate each device of the enemy whose attack was a most determined one, with riflemen ready, on ridges and terraces within fifteen yards of the fort, to open a heavy fire on any one who exposed himself in the slightest degree. His judgment in permitting the sortie was, in my opinion, good, as the success attending it encouraged the garrison and made the enemy move away from the walls.

Second-Lieutenant H. R. E. Pratt, 36th Sikhs, who, though suffering from dysentery, was always ready for any emergency, and is very highly spoken of by Major Des Vœux.

Surgeon-Captain C. B. Prall, Indian Medical Service, whose care of the wounded was unremitting, and who was often under heavy fire.

Miss Theresa McGrath, who had been previously attached to the hospital by my orders, who rendered most valuable assistance to the medical officer. Her conduct is spoken of most enthusiastically by all ranks.

No. 755, Havildar Sundar Singh, 36th Sikhs, who is reported to have been conspicuous for his gallantry throughout the siege, and who, of his own accord, sprang over the wall of the horn-work, carrying with him those who happened to be near him, to the succour of his comrades who had made a sortie to capture a standard, and were in imminent peril of being killed to a man.

Havildar Bishen Singh, 36th Sikhs, who was in command at Sangar, and kept the enemy at bay against heavy odds, and who led a successful sortie, capturing a standard.

The rank and file named below, who took part in the sortie made by the 36th Sikhs from Gulistan :—

No. 2509, Rifleman Dhanbir Sahai, 1-2nd Gurkhas, for helping in a wounded naick of the same battalion on the night of the 11-12th instant, under heavy fire.

I should also have brought forward the names of Havildar Kala Singh, 36th Sikhs, who volunteered to command the sortie from Gulistan, and Sepoy Gurmukh Singh, 36th Sikhs, for special recognition, but the former has, I regret to say, succumbed to his wounds, and the latter was last seen signalling from Saragarhi just before the enemy swarmed in. I trust that in the cases of those brave soldiers who lost their lives at Saragarhi and Gulistan their wives and families may be considered for pension as if they had survived to receive the rewards they so justly deserved.

My thanks are due to the various members of my staff, Majors Bewicke-Copley, King's Royal Rifles, and E. F. H. McSwiney, D.S.O., 1st Lancers, Hyderabad Contingent, and Captains C. P. Scudamore, D.S.O., Royal Scots Fusiliers, and E. St. A. Wake, 10th Bengal Lancers, who, without even the organization of a brigade staff to help them, performed the duties of divisional staff to a force larger than a division, scattered over a wide area, to my entire satisfaction. My thanks are also due to His Highness the Maharaja of Cooch Behar, G.C.I.E., Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel, 6th Bengal Cavalry, who accompanied me throughout as orderly officer, and to Brigade-Surgeon-Lieutenant-Colonel W. R. Murphy, D.S.O., Indian Medical Service, Captain C. F. T. Murray, Staff Corps, Commissariat Department, and Captain P. H. Rogers, Yorkshire Light Infantry, Transport Officer, who organised their respective departments under circumstances of exceptional difficulty.

I wish also to favourably mention the following officers :—

Colonel W. W. Lawrence, Royal Irish Regiment, commanding the Column

Lieutenant-Colonel E. A. Travers, commanding the 1-2nd Gurkhas.

Lieutenant-Colonel C. Pulley, commanding the 1-3rd Gurkhas.

Lieutenant-Colonel R. R. N. Sturt, commanding the 2nd Punjab Infantry.

Major B. J. C. Doran, Royal Irish Regiment, Staff Officer to the Column.

Captain J. L. Parker, R. A., commanding No. 2 (Derajat) Mountain Battery.

Captain J. G. Robinson, 1-2nd Gurkhas, for coolness and gallantry on the occasion of the rear guard action, 11-12th instant.

Lieutenant A. M. S. Elsmie, Adjutant, 2nd Punjab Infantry, for coolness displayed in assisting to bring in the camels on the night of 11-12th instant.

Lieutenant G. W. M. West, 1-3rd Gurkhas, for conspicuous gallantry on the occasion of the rear guard action, 11-12th instant.

Jemadar Harakbir Gurung, 1-3rd Gurkhas, for conspicuous gallantry on the occasion of the rear guard action, 11-12th instant.

I am also indebted to Mr. D. Donald, Commandant, Border Militia Police, whose unrivalled knowledge of the country and the people has been of the greatest service to me.

FORT LOCKHART:
The 20th September 1897.

A. G. YEATMAN-BIGGS, Major-General,
Commanding Kohat Field Force.

From Major-General A. G. YEATMAN-BIGGS, C.B., Commanding the Kurram-Kohat Force, to the Deputy-Adjutant General, Punjab Command—(dated Fort Lockhart, the 30th September 1897).

I have the honour to report, for the information of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India, that the camp at Sadda was attacked on the night of the 16th and 17th September.

Colonel G. L. R. Richardson, C.I.E., commanding the Flying Column, had established himself in a well intrenched camp and high ground overlooking Sadda. About 10-30 P.M. on the 16th a lashkar, consisting of Massuzais and Chamkannis, numbering about 2,000, collected in the Khurmanadarra and attacked a picquet of the 5th Punjab Infantry about a hundred yards outside the south-east corner of the camp. The picquet had to abandon their sangar and retire into camp, losing the havildar in so doing. The moon was obscured by passing clouds, and the noise of the water rushing in the nullah prevented the patrols of the 5th Punjab Infantry and 1-5th Gurkhas hearing or seeing the approaching enemy.

The enemy's attack was pushed to within twenty or thirty yards of the stone wall with which the camp was surrounded with a certain amount of resolution up to midnight, after which it slackened off considerably. In no case did the enemy come to close quarters, though two standards were brought up to within fifty yards of the camp. They seemed to have lost heart at the last moment in the face of the steady fire which was brought to bear on them.

The expenditure of ammunition was as follows:—

Rifles.	Rounds.
15th Sikhs	525
5th Punjab Infantry	1,200
1-5th Gurkhas	373
TOTAL	2,098

The usual casualty returns have been already forwarded.

From Major-General A. G. YEATMAN-BIGGS, C.B., Commanding the Kurram-Kohat Force, to the Adjutant-General in India—(dated Fort Lockhart, the 30th September 1897).

I have the honour to report that on the 27th August last a large gathering of Orakzais appeared on the Samana Suk, and heavy firing was heard in the direction of Shinawari, which was held by the Border Police. This was reported to me at Kohat.

Reconnaissances were made from Gulistan towards the Samana Suk, and from Hangu to Shinawari.

The enemy was found to be about 4,000 in number, strongly posted on the Samana Suk. In this reconnaissance, I regret to say, Lieutenant A. K. Blair, 36th Sikhs, was wounded in the chest. Reinforcements were sent from Fort Lockhart, but soon after their arrival at Gulistan information was received that the enemy's lashkar was assembling to the east of Fort Lockhart, so Lieutenant-Colonel Haughton, 36th Sikhs, commanding on the Samana, decided to return to Fort Lockhart.

The officer commanding the reconnaissance made by a squadron of the 18th Bengal Lancers to Shinawari returned the same day to Hangu, and reported all well. This was the second reconnaissance made from Hangu to Shinawari (a distance of over twenty miles) within the last few days.

The following day the enemy were discovered to be holding the Chagru Kotal as well as the Samana Suk on the west of the Samana Range, and the Sarmela spur on the east end of the range, and during the day they burnt the posts of Gogra and Tsalai, which had been evacuated by the Border Police.

In order to anticipate the enemy, should a second attack be made on Shinawari, I ordered two companies of Gurkhas to march to reinforce the garrison there. One squadron of cavalry accompanied them, with orders to return to Hangu as soon as the Gurkhas had reached the post. Reliable reports were received on the morning of the 29th August that Shinawari had been evacuated by the Border Police, and the post burnt by the tribesmen the previous evening, so the troops en route to reinforce the garrison were recalled.

The Orakzais held a jirga this day, and decided that the Alikhel, Mamuzai, Alisherzai and Akhel should attack Gulistan on Friday, September 3rd, whilst the Mishti, Sheikhan, Mallakhel and Rabiakhel attacked Hangu.

During the night of the 29th the post of Sangar was fired into, and a sepoy of the Border Police deserted from the adjacent post of Dhar with his rifle and ammunition. This post was therefore reinforced by one Native officer and 37 sepoys of the 36th Sikhs, so that all posts on the Samana should be held by Sikhs.

The three following days the enemy remained on the east and west ends of the Samana, but made no further move.

On the 3rd September a bhisti from Dhar was murdered by the enemy, and his three mules stolen. Mr. D. Donald, Commandant of the Border Police, proceeded to Dhar to make inquiries into the circumstances, and he and his escort were fired on.

As the tribesmen were reported to be advancing on Gulistan and Saragarhi in force, these posts were reinforced from Fort Lockhart. Towards evening the enemy, in considerable force, established himself in and about Picquet Hill, 400 yards west of Gulistan, and set fire to the thorn hedge which had been placed as an obstacle a few yards outside the horn work of the place. The fire was extinguished by volunteers, whose names have been brought to notice by me in a separate letter. At 8 P.M. the bonfire, which had been previously prepared between the horn-work and Picquet Hill was lit by volunteers, whose names have also been mentioned in the marginally-noted despatch.

Despatch of the 31st September.

The enemy kept up a hot fire until midnight, when they finally retired.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. Haughton and Lieutenant and Adjutant R. G. Munn, of the 36th Sikhs, strove hard, with their little handful of men from Fort Lockhart, to succour the many small posts scattered over the Samana Range that were beset on all sides by overwhelming numbers of the enemy.

I attach the usual casualty return on Army Form B-103. The expenditure of ammunition between the 27th August and the 3rd September on the Samana was—

Rifles.	Rounds expended
410	3,649

I have not considered it necessary to attach any sketch, as the whole ground is so well known, and has already been mapped by the Survey Department.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT—GENERAL.

Calcutta, the 23rd December 1897.

Reorganization of the Public Works Department Secretariat of the Government of India.

Read—

Public Works Department Resolution No. 204 R. E., dated the 23rd March 1888.
Despatch to Secretary of State, No. 219 Financial, dated the 11th August 1897.
Despatch from Secretary of State, No. 29 P. W., dated the 14th October 1897.

RESOLUTION.—The Government of India have had under consideration the question of change of organisation in their Public Works Department Secretariat necessary to meet the development of the Indian railway system and the increased work in the Railway Branch. They therefore placed before Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India certain proposals having for their object a saving of labour and economy of power in the despatch of business. These proposals have now received His Lordship's sanction.

2. Hitherto the business of the Department has been distributed as follows:—

(1) The Railway Branch.
(2) The Civil Works Branch, including Irrigation, Collieries, and the Telegraph Department.
(3) The General Branch, which deals with all Establishment questions affecting Civil Works, and State and Companies' Railways.
(4) The Accounts Branch which deals with all Account matters affecting the Railways, Civil Works of all kinds, and the Telegraph Department.

3. The staff of the Secretariat for the disposal of the above business has consisted of the following officers:—

A Secretary in charge of the whole Department;
An Inspector General of Irrigation who was also Deputy Secretary, with an Under Secretary; in charge, under the Secretary, of all Civil Works other than Railways, and the Telegraph Department;
The Director General of Railways, who was also a Deputy Secretary, with an Under Secretary and three Assistant Secretaries; in charge, under the Secretary, of all Railway business;
An Under Secretary; in charge, under the Secretary, of all Establishment questions connected with both Civil Works and Railways;
An Accountant General, who is also Deputy Secretary, with a Deputy Accountant General, who is also Under Secretary, and other graded officers of the Superior Accounts Establishment.

In addition to the above there have been three sanctioned posts for Railway Officers outside the Secretariat; namely,—

The Consulting Engineer for State Railways (in abeyance since August 1896), a Deputy Consulting Engineer, and an Assistant Engineer, assisting the latter in Technical questions.

4. In future the Department will be organised as follows:—

The Railway Branch will be completely separated from the Civil Works Branch, which will conduct all business other than that connected with Railways; except as regards certain general questions of Account and Establishment organisation, and some others, in which both Branches are concerned.

5. The Railway work will be placed under the Secretary, under whom will be two Directors, one for Construction and the other for Traffic. The former will also be ex-officio Director of Stores, and the latter of Railway Statistics; these officers will also be Deputy Secretaries, Railway Branch. Under each Deputy Secretary there will be an Under Secretary; and there will be two Railway Assistant Secretaries.

6. The General or Civil Works business will be under a Joint Secretary to Government, who will also be Inspector General of Irrigation. He will deal finally as a Secretary with all Works, Accounts, and Establishment cases, with which the Railway Branch is not concerned.

7. Cases in which both Branches are concerned will be dealt with by the Railway Secretary and the Joint Secretary in consultation

8. The appointment of Director General of Railways will be now merged in that of the Secretary who will be the chief adviser of the Government in Railway matters. The functions and responsibilities at present attaching to the Director General of Railways, in his position as administrative head of the State Railways, will, to a greater extent than hitherto, devolve upon the Managers and Engineers-in-Chief of the several lines. This devolution will, however, be a gradual process; and for the present the duties that have been hitherto performed and the powers that have been exercised by the Director General of Railways, as an administrative head, will be carried on and exercised by the Director of Construction and the Director of Traffic, each in his own branch of business. Any subsidiary instructions in regard to the delegation of increased powers to Managers and Engineers-in-Chief, as well as the respective functions of the Directors of Construction and Traffic that further experience may show to be required will be issued hereafter as occasion may arise.

9. The duties hitherto discharged by the Consulting Engineer to the Government of India for State Railways will be combined with those of the Director of Construction and Deputy Secretary, Railways, whose appointment is referred to in paragraph 5.

10. The Deputy Consulting Engineer, whose post has hitherto been outside the Secretariat, will now become the Under Secretary for Construction in the new post, also referred to in paragraph 5.

11. Of the three Railway Assistant Secretaries, who have also been hitherto Assistants to the Director General of Railways, one will be now employed solely on Establishment work, being attached for that purpose to the General (Establishment) Branch under the officer who has hitherto been in sole charge of that Branch as Under Secretary. The remaining two will continue in the Railway Branch.

12. The post of Assistant Engineer under the Consulting Engineer for State Railways is abolished.

13. The posts of Deputy and Under Secretaries, Accounts Branch, and Under Secretaries, General (Establishment) and Works Branches, will continue as hitherto. The officers of the Accounts and General (Establishment) Branches will continue to carry on the business in respect of their own Branch of duties for both Railway and Civil Works Branches, under the orders of the Railway Secretary and the Joint Secretary, respectively. The Under Secretary, Civil Works Branch, including the Telegraph Department, will continue to carry on the work of that Branch directly under the Joint Secretary and Inspector General of Irrigation.

14. The appointment of Director General of Railways having merged in that of the Secretary, the Governor General in Council directs that all correspondence hitherto addressed to that officer in connection with State or Companies' lines shall be addressed to the Directors of Construction and Traffic, respectively, each in his own branch.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution be communicated to all the Departments of the Government of India and to the Local Governments, Administrations and Officers, noted on the margin. Also that it be published in the Gazette of India.

MEMON BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that he be substituted for the Hon'ble Sir John Woodburn as a member of the Select Committee on the Bill to render it permissive to the members of the Memon Community to declare themselves subject to Muhammadan Law, and that the Hon'ble Mr. James be added to the Committee. He said:—"The Bill was introduced in this Council by the Hon'ble Sir John Woodburn on the 19th March, 1896, and subsequently referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Sir John Woodburn, the Hon'ble Mr. Chalmers, the Hon'ble Mr. Stevens, the Hon'ble the Nawab of Loharu and the Hon'ble Mr. Sayani. The Bill is still under consideration in the Committee, but meanwhile the number of its members has been reduced to three owing to the Nawab of Loharu having vacated his seat in the Council and the Hon'ble Sir John Woodburn's absence. I beg therefore to make the motion standing in my name."

The motion was put and agreed to.

STAGE-CARRIAGES ACT (1861) AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. RIVAZ moved that the Bill to further amend the Stage-Carriages Act, 1861, be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Chalmers, the Hon'ble Pandit Bishambar Nath, the Hon'ble Babu Joy Gobind Law, the Hon'ble Mr. Nicholson and the mover. He said that the Bill was introduced in the Council by the Hon'ble Sir John Woodburn on the 2nd September last and was circulated for opinions. The replies had been received and some of the questions raised in them would require consideration.

The motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN PENAL CODE AMENDMENT BILL AND CRIMINAL PROCEDURE BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS said:—"Before I make the motions which stand in my name for referring the Indian Penal Code Amendment Bill and the Criminal Procedure Code Bill to Select Committees, I should like, with Your Excellency's permission, to make a few remarks on some amendments which the Government intend to propose for consideration during the Committee stage of those measures.

"As the Council are aware, recent events in India have called prominent attention to the law relating to seditious utterances and writings. We have had anxiously to consider the state of the law regarding these matters and to decide whether, and in what respects, it required amendment. We determined that we would do nothing hastily, and that the course we adopted should be the result of cool and deliberate consideration.

"Two different lines of action were open to us. The first was to re-enact a Press Law similar to the Vernacular Press Act of 1878. The second was to amend the general law relating to sedition and cognate offences, so as to make it efficient for its purpose. We have come to the conclusion that the second course is the right one for us to take.

"But, as we have been strongly urged by many whose opinion is of great weight to re-enact a Press Law, perhaps I may be allowed to state briefly our grounds of objection to that course. The essential feature of the Act of 1878 was executive control over the writings of the Vernacular Press. That principle appears to us to be objectionable on two grounds. In the first place, we see no reason for drawing any distinction between the Vernacular Press and any other Press. As regards liberty of speech there should be one and the same law for all subjects of Her Majesty, without reference to the particular language in which they may express their opinions. In the second place, we have no quarrel with the Press, and no desire to control it. We welcome all fair, candid and honest criticism, and, speaking for ourselves, we care very little as to the terms or language in which such criticism may be expressed. The essential principle of English law is this. Every man is free to speak, write and print whatever he pleases, without asking the leave or permission of any authority. But, if he speaks, writes or prints anything which contravenes the law of the land, he is liable to be proceeded against and punished. As long as a man keeps within the law no one can interfere with him. But, if he breaks the law, he is liable to punishment by a Court of Justice in the ordinary course of law. This seems to us a sound and healthy guiding principle, and we have determined to adhere to it. But we are also determined that the law shall not be a dead-letter, and that offenders against the law of the land shall be capable of being promptly brought to book.

"Having come to this conclusion we had to decide what amendments in the general law were necessary. I am glad to say they are but few.

"The first question for consideration was whether we should amend section 124A of the Indian Penal Code, which deals with the offence of exciting disaffection against the Government, or, as it is called in England, sedition. I cannot say that that section strikes me as a model of clear drafting. The section was introduced into the Penal Code by Sir Fitzjames Stephen in 1870. In introducing the Bill I believe he stated that his intention was to assimilate the law of India to the law of England as regards the offence of sedition. The interpretation of the section has recently been discussed before the Calcutta, Bombay and Allahabad High Courts, and it has been interpreted in accordance with English law. The result of the cases is to establish that it is a criminal offence to stir up feelings of contempt or hatred for the Government, and that such conduct is none the less an offence because resort to actual violence is not advocated. But no one can read the able arguments addressed to the Courts by counsel for the accused in the Bangobasi and Tilak cases without coming to the conclusion that the law might be expressed in clearer and less equivocal terms. When law is codified, the codes should be as explicit as possible. Moreover, though the Calcutta, Bombay and Allahabad Judges have substantially agreed in the interpretation of section 124A, their decisions are not technically binding on other High Courts. Having regard to these considerations we think it is desirable to amend and redraft section 124A so as to bring it clearly into accord with English law. In England, words spoken or written with seditious intent constitute a criminal offence, and the intent is presumed from the natural meaning of the words themselves, without reference to the actual feelings of the person who used them. In other words, the law applies a purely objective test. A seditious intention is thus defined in Stephen's Digest of the Criminal Law (Ed. 5, Art. 98, pages 70-71). It is 'an intention to bring into hatred or contempt, or to excite disaffection against the person of, Her Majesty, Her heirs or successors, or the Government of the United Kingdom as by law established, or either House of Parliament, or the administration of justice, or to excite Her Majesty's subjects to attempt otherwise than by lawful means the alteration of any matter in Church or State, or to raise discontent or disaffection amongst Her Majesty's subjects, or to promote feelings of hostility or ill-will between different classes of such subjects.' Now, adapting that definition to the language of the Indian Penal Code and the circumstances of India, we propose that section 124A shall be repealed and that the following section shall be substituted therefor:—

Sedition.

'124A. Whoever by words, either spoken or written, or by signs, or by visible representation, or otherwise, brings or attempts to bring into hatred or contempt, or excites or attempts to excite disaffection towards, Her Majesty or the Government, or promotes or attempts to promote feelings of enmity or ill-will between different classes of Her Majesty's subjects, shall be punished with transportation for life or any shorter term, to which fine may be added, or with imprisonment which may extend to ten years, to which fine may be added, or with fine.

Explanation 1.—The expression "disaffection" includes disloyalty and all feelings of enmity or ill-will.

Explanation 2.—Comments on the measures of the Government with a view to obtain their alteration by lawful means, without exciting or attempting to excite hatred, contempt or disaffection do not constitute an offence.'

"Let me say a word or two as to the scope of the new section. There is nothing in it which in any way interferes with the fair and free discussion of public matters. People are at liberty to criticise the action and conduct of the Government in all its departments. And more than that; they are at liberty to bestir themselves to procure reforms and to obtain such alterations of the law as they may think desirable, provided they do so by lawful and constitutional means. There is nothing in the section to prohibit this, but we have added explanation 2 to the section in order to affirm this principle expressly.

"I wish further to point this out. Subject to one possible exception, our proposed new section in no wise alters the law at present in force in India. It merely affirms, in, I hope, unmistakeable terms, the consentient opinions of the various High Courts which have been called upon to interpret the existing section 124A. The possible exception, consists in the provision that it amounts to sedition to promote or attempt to promote feelings of enmity or ill-will between different classes of Her Majesty's subjects. The question has not been raised or decided whether such conduct amounts to an offence under the present section 124A. But the proposed addition is law in England, and if such a rule be required in England, with its practically homogeneous population, it is still more requisite in India, where different races and religions are in continual contact. For the most part under British rule our Muhammadan and Hindu fellow-subjects live together in peace and amity, but recent agitations in various parts of India have shown how dangerous to the public tranquillity is any agitation which seeks to fan into flame those feelings of racial and religious antagonism which still smoulder beneath the surface.

"I now come to our second proposal. Section 505 of the Penal Code deals with a cognate class of offences. It punishes the dissemination of certain false statements and rumours which are conducive to public mischief. The section runs as follows :—

Circulating false report with intent to cause mutiny or an offence against the State, etc.

'505. Whoever circulates or publishes any statement, rumour or report which he knows to be false, with intent to cause any officer, soldier or sailor in the army or navy of the Queen to mutiny, or with intent to cause fear or alarm to the public, and thereby to induce any person to commit an offence against the State or against the public tranquillity, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.'

"In its present form this provision is unworkable. It is impossible for the prosecution to shew that the person who circulated the false statement knew it to be false. We propose therefore to repeal and re-enact this section in more precise terms, making the publication of these obnoxious statements punishable, but allowing the accused to show that the mischievous statement or rumour was true in fact, and was not published or circulated with a criminal intent. The proposed new section runs as follows :—

Statements conducing to public mischief.

'505. Whoever makes, publishes or circulates any statement, rumour or report,—

(a) with intent to cause, or which is likely to cause, any officer, soldier or sailor in the army or navy of Her Majesty or in the Royal Indian Marine or in the Imperial Service Troops to mutiny or otherwise disregard or fail in his duty as such; or

(b) with intent to cause, or which is likely to cause, fear or alarm to the public, or to any section of the public whereby they may be induced to commit an offence against the State or against the public tranquillity; or shall be punished with imprisonment of either description which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

Exception.—It does not amount to an offence within the meaning of this section to make, publish or circulate any such statement, rumour or report, as aforesaid, when such statement, rumour or report is true, and is made, published or circulated without such intent as aforesaid.'

"It may be said, and indeed it has been urged upon us, that this is not going far enough. If a man chooses to publish statements which are likely to incite our soldiers to mutiny or to cause people to commit offences against the law, he ought to be punished, whether his statements are true or false, and without regard to his private intentions. There is much force in this argument, but we should be unwilling to punish a man under this section for making a statement which is true when he publishes or circulates that statement without any criminal intent. The universal presumption of law is that a man is deemed to intend a result which is the ordinary and natural consequence of his act. When, then, a man chooses to publish a statement, or circulate a rumour, which on the face of it is directly conducive to grave public mischief, he cannot complain if he is called upon to shew that his intentions were not criminal.

"For the present, at any rate, we have no further amendments to suggest in the substantive law, and I now wish to refer to two amendments which the Government propose to move in the Select Committee on the Code of Criminal Procedure Bill. Section 109 of that Code provides that in certain cases people who misbehave themselves may be bound over and required to find sureties to be of good behaviour for a term not exceeding twelve months. We propose to apply a similar procedure to the case of people who either orally or in writing disseminate, or attempt to disseminate, obscene, seditious or defamatory matter. A man who disseminates, that is to say, who sows broadcast or scatters abroad, such matter is obviously a dangerous public nuisance. It is immaterial whether he chooses, as his means of dissemination, an oral address, or a book or a pamphlet, or a newspaper. We are bound to check such obnoxious conduct. But as a rule the persons who are guilty of it are small and insignificant individuals. They may do enormous mischief among uneducated, foolish and ignorant people, but in themselves they are deserving of very little notice. It is absurd to deal with them by an elaborate State prosecution. We think that in most cases no prosecution at all will be required. It will be sufficient to give them an effective warning to discontinue their evil practices, and we think that the machinery we have devised will operate as an effective warning. The general power of revision possessed by the High Courts will secure that that machinery will not be used in any way oppressively; and we further propose that this new power should only be exercised by Presidency or District Magistrates, or specially empowered Magistrates of the first class.

"The last amendment that I have to refer to is an amendment of the second schedule to the Code of Criminal Procedure. The eighth column of that schedule declares by what Court or Courts the offences contained in the Indian Penal Code shall be triable. At present sedition under section 124A is triable only by a Court of Session or a High Court. We intend to propose that offences under section 124A shall be triable also by Presidency Magistrates and Magistrates of the first class. This amendment will, in the matter of jurisdiction, bring section 124A into line with sections 326, 372, 392 and many other provisions of the Penal Code where one and the same offence is of varying degrees of gravity. It is obvious that a malicious and seditious utterance which in one place and set of circumstances is of small importance, and would be adequately punished by a very light sentence, might in another place and under other circumstances be a direct incitement to rebellion and bloodshed, and merit the severest penalties. As I have said, there are many cases where an elaborate State trial is out of place, and where the merits of the case will be adequately met by a small punishment, within the competence of a Magistrate of the first class. Of course, there may be cases of graver importance. In such cases the Magistrate will, as heretofore, commit to the higher Court which is competent to inflict a severer sentence. In either event there will be this safeguard. No prosecution under section 124A can be commenced without the previous sanction of the Local Government or the Governor General in Council. Proceedings can only be initiated under the sanction of the authorities who are responsible for the peace and good government of the country. This was the law under the Code of 1882 and we have no intention of changing it. Of course too any sentence passed by a Magistrate will be subject to revision or appeal, as the case may be, in accordance with the general law.

"I have now detailed the amendments* we propose to make in the existing law. They are few and simple, but I trust they will effect our purpose. We have no desire to interfere with the full and free discussion of all public matters. We have no desire that the Press, whether Vernacular or English, should be subject to our license and control. But the Press, like everybody else, must be subject to the law of the land. No man is bound to preach or teach or write sedition. If he chooses to do so, he must do so at his own peril and take the consequences."

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS then moved that the Bill to amend the Indian Penal Code in relation to Extra-territorial offences be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Rivaz, the Hon'ble Mr. Stevens, the Hon'ble Mr. James, the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur Ananda Charlu, the Hon'ble Sir Griffith Evans, the Hon'ble Maharaja Bahadur of Durbhanga and the mover.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. CHALMERS also moved that the Bill to amend the law relating to Criminal Procedure be referred to a Select Committee consisting of the Hon'ble Mr. Rivaz, the Hon'ble Mr. Sayani, the Hon'ble Pandit Bishambar Nath, the Hon'ble Mr. Stevens, the Hon'ble Sir Henry Prinsep, the Hon'ble Mr. LaTouche and the mover.

The Hon'ble JOY GOBIND LAW said:—"My Lord, I should like to make one or two observations.

"There is a general feeling that sufficient opportunity has not been given for obtaining the opinion of the non-official community on the present Bill. It is true the Bill was introduced at Simla in October, but it has hitherto been the invariable practice to refer all Bills of any importance for the opinions of representative bodies and associations. In the present case, however, no such reference has been made; at all events I know that the Chamber of Commerce and the British Indian Association have not been favoured with any such reference. I understand some three years ago Local Governments were asked for suggestions and recommendations with a view to the amendment of the existing law, but that is quite a different matter to obtaining the opinions of the non-official community on the amendments as formulated in the present Bill, which of course had no existence three years ago. The Select Committee will no doubt have the benefit of the opinion of the Hon'ble Sir Henry Prinsep, who from his long and varied experience in the administration of the law would be fully competent to represent the views of a Judge and dispenser of the law; but it is equally necessary that the Select Committee should make its recommendations in view of the opinion of those who will be affected by the proposed amendments in the law. On these grounds I venture to ask Your Excellency and the Hon'ble Council to allow some time in order that the opinions of the community might be obtained. I have no desire, even if I had the power, to unnecessarily delay the proceedings of the Council, and it is only because I consider it extremely desirable that the Council should legislate after a full consideration of the views and opinions of the public that I have ventured to address these remarks to Your Excellency and the Council. There is certainly no reason for a departure from the established practice."

The Hon'ble PANDIT BISHAMBAR NATH said:—"I would crave permission to say a word or two. Certainly I do not mean to demur to the motion. What I beg to suggest is that the Bill in question may not be taken up for consideration by the Select Committee before all the expected opinions are duly received. Only a few communications, including those from the Governments of the Punjab and Burma respectively, have been circulated yet.

"The awaited minutes by the several Chartered and other High Courts of Judicature, Heads of Administrations and Authorities, when received, would, I think, equally prove highly useful in materially assisting the Select Committee in dealing with the various crucial provisions of the Bill.

"I must confess I have not been able yet to study the draft Bill with that care and attention which the importance of the measure demands; but I believe I am bound to bring to the notice of the Council that, rightly or wrongly, a rather vague impression is gaining ground upon the minds of the people in some parts of the Empire that certain provisions of the proposed legislation are not calculated to afford comparatively such facilities for conducting the defence of accused persons as would be eminently desirable in the interests of justice.

"Amongst other matters, the distinction as regards the exercise and application of the powers of the jury system is certainly a matter of grave importance that will, I hope, receive the attention of both the Select Committee and the Council, besides many other provisions which it would be quite unnecessary and out of place to mention here."

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said:—"It is unnecessary for me to remind Hon'ble Members, who have been nominated for the Select Committee on this and on the preceding Bill, of the great importance of the work which they are undertaking. One of the Bills is of great length and detail, so great that it would have been difficult indeed for the Government to present it to this Council had they not been able to call in the assistance of the unrivalled experience of Sir H. Prinsep, who has, as is well known, made the subject his study for many years. The revision of a Code can never be a light piece of work, but as my Hon'ble Colleague explained when he introduced this Bill, it must from time to time be undertaken, not from any intention of radically altering the law, but to remedy defects which have been proved to exist, and to incorporate the results of accumulated experience, and thereby to make the law of the land clear, easily understood, and easily applied. No one will deny that this is an object of supreme importance, not only to those whose duty it is to administer the law, but to the people at large whose lives are regulated by its provisions.

"Hon'ble Members will find that the amendments now laid upon the table are governed by the same principle. Their necessity has been brought to light by recent events and by controversy on a special subject, but they themselves, as my Hon'ble Colleague has explained, are not directed against any special class or section of the community. They are designed to make the general law, which all must obey, efficient. I feel that I can add nothing to the admirably clear and precise explanation by my Hon'ble friend of the scope and intention of these amendments. But I desire in a word to express my entire and cordial concurrence in what he has said of the reasons for rejecting the enactment of a Vernacular Press Act. Personally, I am most strongly of opinion that an Act of that nature is obnoxious in principle, uncertain in operation, and not necessary under present circumstances. It seems to me that it would be the natural impulse of any honourable mind, when men 'disclaim all sympathy with writings which are calculated to create disaffection towards British rule,' to believe, if possible, in their sincerity; and, though I could wish that the general tone of the criticism we read in papers in India was not so often unduly coloured by prejudice, I for one am not disposed on that account to acquiesce in any general imputation of disloyalty. At all events, I associate myself absolutely with the reply lately given to an appeal in the words I have just quoted by the Hon'ble Member, Mr. Stevens, who for the last six months has administered the Government of Bengal in a manner that has elicited the applause of the entire community, European and Native. Mr. Stevens welcomed the co-operation of the Press in securing fair and honest criticism, of which, as my Hon'ble Colleague has said, we deny the right to no one, but at the same time pointed out that the Government cannot divest itself of its responsibility in this matter any more than in any other of which the law takes cognisance. I, too, welcome co-operation, while recognising my responsibility. It must never be forgotten that in interposing to prevent sedition we act not for the protection of our personal interests—with my Hon'ble friend I think that if that was all we might willingly stand the buffets—but on behalf of the public whose interests suffer if the passions of the ignorant are excited, and the peace of the country is imperilled; a danger none the less present, though the action to be guarded against be the action of a comparatively small number of individuals out of touch with the sentiments which animate their fellows.

"I have more than once on behalf of the Government of India declared that its aim was an administration of the law, sympathetic and impartial, but at the same time prompt and firm. It is because in my judgment these amendments will enable us to perform our duty more satisfactorily in both of these directions that I commend them to the Council.

"With regard to the observations which have been made by the two Hon'ble Members who have just spoken, I should like, in the first place, to point out to the Hon'ble Joy Gobind Law that he is not correct in saying that the ordinary procedure in this matter has not been observed. The Bill for the amendment of the Criminal Procedure Code was introduced on the 14th October. It was then at once sent in the ordinary course to Local Governments for opinion and for publication, and it is from the Local Governments, as has always been the practice, that such public bodies as it is necessary to consult should receive copies of the measures introduced by the Government. As regards the general public, the Bill was, immediately after its introduction, published in the Gazette of India, and was therefore open to every individual who could read. At the same time we have called this early meeting of Council in order that we might, as soon as possible, appoint the Committees, and bring before the notice of the Council the fact that these Bills were to be proceeded with. The intention is that the Committees should not meet till after the 1st January, on which date all the opinions are due from the Local Governments and others. The proceedings of the Committees will no doubt consume a considerable time, and the Government will give every facility to any public body or individual who has suggestions to make to lay those suggestions before the Committees and the Council for their consideration. But I have to say very distinctly on behalf of the Government of India that this measure, which has been under consideration for many years, to which, as I have said, my Hon'ble friend Sir Henry Prinsep has specially devoted a large portion of his time, and which is now brought forward in the ordinary course for the consideration of the Council—I say that it is the deliberate intention of the Government of India to ask this Council, before the termination of this session, for their judgment on this measure."

The motion was put and agreed to.

DAY FOR MEETING OF COUNCIL.

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT said:—"Before the Council adjourns I should like to say that, in consequence of the alteration in the arrangements for the English mail, the day, Thursday, on which we have been accustomed to meet, will no longer prove convenient. We have considered, therefore, what day it would be better to substitute. I believe that Thursday was adopted in order to meet the views of the Legislative Department, in substitution for Friday, and, on the whole, considering, as far as I can, the opinions I have been able to collect, I believe it would be better to revert to Friday in future. An earlier day in the week might cause some inconvenience to Hon'ble Members in the submission of amendments, owing to the interposition of Sunday.

"We propose, therefore, unless we receive any representation to the contrary, to fix Friday as the ordinary meeting day of the Council, and the Council will now adjourn until the first Friday in January."

CALCUTTA;
The 22nd December, 1897.

J. M. MACPHERSON,
Secretary to the Government of India,
Legislative Department.

APPENDIX.

Substitution of new section for section 124A, Act XLV of 1860.

'124A. Whoever by words either spoken or written, or by signs, or by visible representation, or otherwise, brings or attempts to bring into hatred or contempt, or excites attempts to excite disaffection towards, Her Majesty or the Government, or promotes or attempts to promote feelings of enmity or ill-will between different classes of Her Majesty's subjects, shall be punished with transportation for life or any shorter term, to which fine may be added, or with imprisonment, which may extend to ten years, to which fine may be added, or with fine.

Sedition.

Explanation 1.—The expression "disaffection" includes disloyalty and all feelings of enmity or ill-will.

Explanation 2.—Comments on the measures of the Government with a view to obtain their alteration by lawful means, without exciting or attempting to excite hatred, contempt or disaffection, do not constitute an offence.'

II. Section 505 of the Indian Penal Code is hereby repealed and the following section is substituted therefor, namely:—

Statements conducing to public mischief.

505. Whoever makes, publishes or circulates any statement, rumour or report,—

(a) with intent to cause, or which is likely to cause, any officer, soldier or sailor in the army or navy of Her Majesty or in the Royal Indian Marine or in the Imperial Service Troops to mutiny or otherwise disregard or fail in his duty as such; or

(b) with intent to cause, or which is likely to cause, fear or alarm to the public, or to any section of the public whereby they may be induced to commit an offence against the State or against the public tranquillity; or shall be punished with imprisonment of either description which may extend to two years, or with fine, or with both.

Exception.—It does not amount to an offence, within the meaning of this section, to make, publish or circulate any such statement, rumour or report, as aforesaid, when such statement, rumour or report is true, and is made, published or circulated without such intent as aforesaid.'

CRIMINAL PROCEDURE BILL.

Amendments to be proposed for consideration of the Select Committee.

I. New clause to be inserted after clause 108 as follows:—

'Whenever a Presidency or District Magistrate, or a Magistrate of the first class specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, has information that there is within the limits of his jurisdiction any person who, either orally or in writing, disseminates or attempts to disseminate, or in anywise abets the dissemination of, any obscene, seditious or defamatory matter, such Magistrate may (in manner hereinafter provided) require such person to shew cause why he should not be ordered to execute a bond, with sureties, for his good behaviour for such period, not exceeding twelve months, as the Magistrate thinks fit to fix.'

Security for good behaviour from persons disseminating obscene, seditious or defamatory matter.

II. In Schedule II, column 8, in the entry relating to section 124A, after the words "Court of Session" insert the words "Presidency Magistrate or Magistrate of the first class."

[The arrangements hereinafter described are subject to revision under the orders of the Secretary of State for India.]

1. The Royal Indian Engineering College is primarily maintained, under the orders of the Secretary of State for India in Council, for the education of candidates for the service of Government in the India Public Works, Telegraph, and Forest Departments; but it is open, to the extent of the accommodation available, to all persons desirous of following the course of study pursued in it.

India Forest Department Appointments.

2. The examination, which will be conducted by the Civil Service Commissioners, will be simultaneous with, and (except that German must be taken as an obligatory subject) in the same subjects and papers as, the examination for the Indian Police Department,† which is usually held in June.

Candidates may undergo the written part of their examination in London, Edinburgh, or Dublin, or at any of the provincial centres at which the simultaneous examination of candidates for admission to the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, is to be held. A list of the probable centres may be obtained from the Civil Service Commissioners at any time after March 1898. The oral and practical parts of the examination will be held in London only.

A fee of 2*l.* is required from candidates examined in London, but when the written examination is conducted elsewhere than in London the fee is 3*l.* Candidates examined at a college or school will probably be required to pay a local fee in addition to the fee of 3*l.* (in order to defray the expenses of superintendence), as to which they should obtain early information from the college or school authorities. The fee payable to the Civil Service Commissioners must be paid by means of stamps of the specified amount. Instructions on this point will be issued to candidates about 10 days before the examination.

3. The number of candidates to be selected annually varies according to the requirements of the Forest Service in India; the figures as regards each particular year will be advertised from time to time. In 1898 there will be six appointments offered for competition.

4. Candidates for the Indian Forest Department are selected under the following arrangements:—

(1) An applicant must be a natural-born British subject, and must be above 17 and under 20 years of age on the 1st June of the year in which he competes for an appointment. He must be unmarried, and if he marries before reaching India he will forfeit his appointment.

(2) An applicant must send* to the Revenue Department of the India Office, on or before the 1st day of May of the year in which he proposes to compete:—

(a) His name and parentage, a certificate or other satisfactory evidence of the date of his birth, and the written consent of parent or guardian that his name should be recorded as a candidate.

(b) A statement of the places of education at which he may have been, accompanied by testimonials of good conduct, during the last four years.

† Candidates may, if qualified, enter for both the Police and the Forest Department. They will, in such case, have to pay the fee due in respect of each examination.

* There is no form of application; the documents specified in paragraph 4 (2), clauses (a) and (b), should be enclosed in a covering letter addressed to the Secretary, Revenue Department, India Office, London.

(3) Applicants will have to appear before a Medical Board† at the India Office, particular stress being laid upon good vision and hearing.

A physical test will also be imposed, so as to ensure the selection of persons of active habits and powers of endurance.

(4) Applicants who have passed the medical examination and the physical test will be permitted to undergo an examination before the Civil Service Commissioners in the following subjects‡ (Classes I to III), marks being assigned as follows:—

CLASS I.—OBLIGATORY SUBJECTS.§

Botany, viz., the elementary parts of vegetable morphology, histology, and physiology, and the principles of a natural system of classification as illustrated by the more important British natural orders. Candidates will be required to describe plants in technical language. Questions will not be set on vegetable palæontology or on the geographical distribution of plants	2,000
10. Chemistry, viz., the elements of Inorganic Chemistry	2,000
11. Physics. Elementary properties of Electricity, Magnetism, Heat, Light and Sound	2,000

(5) The Secretary of State will nominate as probationers such competitors as attain the highest aggregate of marks (provided they obtain the minimum in the obligatory subjects and satisfy the requisite conditions in other respects). These probationers will then enter the College, where they will be further trained for the Forest Service of India.

(6) If the full number of competent probationers required in any year cannot be obtained from the persons so examined, the Secretary of State reserves a discretion to fill up the deficiency by selecting any other person or persons whom, after consulting the authorities of the College, he may consider properly qualified to become probationers for the Forest Service.

5. The course of study for candidates for the India Forest Service extends over about three years. For about seven terms the candidates will prosecute their studies mainly at the College, and during the period of foreign study, which will occupy the remainder of the course, they will visit, under suitable supervision, such Continental forests as may be selected for the purpose. Excursions may also be made for purposes of instruction, both during term time and during part of the vacations.

† With a view to prevent parents and guardians from incurring the inconvenience and expense of preparing candidates who may be physically unfit for the Forest Service, it is suggested that, before any such preparation is begun, candidates be submitted to examination by the medical adviser of the family, or any other qualified medical practitioner, with regard to the following points:—

1. A weak constitution.
2. Defective vision.
3. Impaired hearing.
4. The existence of any congenital defect.
5. The condition of teeth.

It is to be understood that this private examination is merely suggested to lessen the chances of disappointment, and that it is by no means intended to take the place of, or to influence in any way, the official examination, which is obligatory on all candidates.

On the subject of the standard of eyesight required for the Indian services, a pamphlet has been published, under the authority of the Secretary of State in Council, by Messrs. Churchill and Sons, 11, New Burlington Street.

‡ Reprints of the papers set at previous examinations, together with tables of the marks assigned to the candidates, are published by the Civil Service Commissioners, and can be obtained through any bookseller. The price of each reprint is one shilling.

§ Attention is invited to the appended Syllabus, giving further details regarding the extent and character of the examination.

¶ No special text-books are prescribed.

6. Each annual session begins in September, and is divided into three terms, with vacations of about four weeks at Christmas, two weeks at Easter, and eight weeks in the summer.

7. A charge of 61*l.* is made for each of the seven terms spent at the College; for the period of foreign study the charge is 150*l.*: the amounts must be paid terminally in advance to the Bank of England for the first seven terms, and the amount due for the period of foreign study must be paid before the period begins. Receivable orders, with full directions as to the mode of payment, will be forwarded from the India Office to the parents or guardians shortly before the fees fall due. A student will not be allowed to come into residence or to start for his study of foreign forests until his fee has been paid.

8. A deposit of 5*l.* is required to be paid by each student on admission to the College, as caution money, to cover charges incurred by him for damage to books, instruments, etc., or any College bills outstanding on leaving the College. Any balance over and above such charges will be repaid. This deposit is to be paid with the fee for the first term, making the total payment on that occasion 66*l.*

9. The foregoing payments cover all charges for tuition, board according to the College tariff, lodging, with washing, up to a cost of 2*s.* a week, and ordinary medical attendance while in residence at the College. When students are on tour, and during the course of practical instruction, whether in Great Britain or on the Continent, the Secretary of State will defray the expenses of (1) board, lodging, and washing (the aggregate maximum expenditure under these heads being 10*s.* per diem), (2) travelling expenses, and (3) fees to local Forest officers, etc.

Students are required to provide their own class books and drawing instruments. Drawing paper, drawing boards, and surveying instruments are provided by the College.

10. The prescribed course of study comprises the following subjects:—

I.—Auxiliary Subjects.

1. Geometrical Drawing.
2. Freehand Drawing.
3. Surveying.
4. Forest Engineering.
5. Accounts.
6. German.
7. Mechanics.
8. Physics.
9. Chemistry.
10. Geology and Mineralogy.
11. Entomology.
12. Botany.
13. Drill and Gymnastics.

II.—Forestry, theoretical and practical, in all its branches.

11. Every student is required to conform to the College rules, to exhibit due diligence in his studies throughout the course, and to give evidence of satisfactory progress in such manner as may be required; failing which, or in the event of serious misconduct, he will be liable to be removed from the College, or to be sent back from the foreign study, which may entail the loss of his appointment.

12. During the course of study, the proficiency of the students will be tested by periodical examinations, and on the termination of their studies there will be a final examination. Each student may also, at the discretion of the Secretary of State for India, be required from time to time to appear before the Medical Board, and should the result be unsatisfactory he cannot claim to be allowed to complete the course.

13. The subjects enumerated in paragraph 10 are grouped in certain main branches of study,* and a fixed minimum of qualification is required in each branch and in the subjects taught during the forest tours, as well as a certain minimum for all branches taken together. Students who obtain these minima will receive the College diploma in Forestry.

14. Candidates who have obtained this diploma and are found to be of sound constitution and free from physical defects which would render them unsuitable for employment in the Forest Department (the final decision on which points will rest with the Secretary of State for India), will be appointed Assistant Conservators in the Forest Department of India in the order of their standing at the end of the final examination. They will be allowed, before leaving the College, to state their preference in respect to the Provinces to which they desire to be allotted; but the distribution will be made to the several Provinces according to the needs of the public service, at the discretion of the Secretary of State for India after consulting the President of the College. Officers are, however, at all times liable to be transferred from one Province to another at the pleasure of the Government of India.

15. Within a month of his nomination as Assistant Conservator, each nominee must sign articles of agreement describing the terms and conditions of his appointment; he must embark for India when required to do so by the Secretary of State, and will be provided with a free passage. Failure to embark at the stated time will, in the absence of satisfactory explanation, lead to forfeiture of appointment.

16. The pay of an Assistant Conservator of Forests will begin from the date of reporting arrival in India. Probationers who acquit themselves creditably during their course at Cooper's Hill College will begin on a salary of R350 a month. It will, however, rest with the President of the College to decide whether any of the probationers, though they have obtained the College diploma in Forestry, have failed to deserve that rate of initial salary. Such probationers, if any, will begin on a salary of R250 a month; and this difference of salary will continue until the first departmental examination is passed in India. Officers entering the Forest Service will be required to contribute a subscription, ranging from a compulsory minimum of 5 per cent. up to a voluntary maximum of 10 per cent. of their salary, to the Forest Officers' Provident Fund. Such contributions, with compound interest, will accumulate till the date of retirement, when the total sum will be paid to the contributor, or, in the event of death before retirement to his legal representative.

17. Promotion, leave, and pension will be governed by the regulations laid down by the Government of India and made applicable to Forest officers, such regulations being subject to any modifications or alterations which may be made in them from time to time by the Government of India, and their interpretation in case of any doubt arising being left to that Government. The pension rules applicable to Public Works and Telegraph officers appointed from Cooper's Hill College have been extended to Forest officers appointed from England; and the Inspector-General of Forests and Conservators of the 1st grade are now eligible for the extra pension of Rl,000 per annum admissible to an officer after at least three years of approved service as head of a department in any Province, if considered deserving of the special concession. A copy of the Regulations relative to these matters can be seen on application either at the Library or the Record Department of the India Office; the principal rules are contained in the Abstract of the Civil Service Regulations, as given in the "India List and India Office List" published by Messrs. Harrison and Sons, 59, Pall Mall, London, which can be procured through any bookseller.

18. Every candidate, before proceeding to India, will be required to furnish to the President of the College satisfactory evidence of his competency in riding.

General Rules.

19. Chemical, physical, and botanical laboratories, a forestry museum, a forest nursery, a library, and gymnasium are attached to the College. Means are also provided for the practice of photography. Students making use of the laboratories are supplied with the needful apparatus.

20. The responsibility for the discipline and management of the College and for the superintendence of the studies is vested in the President, under the control of the Secretary of State for India.

21. The students are distributed in divisions, under personal charge of one of the Professors or Instructors selected by the President; such tutor being responsible for exercising the proper degree of personal supervision over each student in his division, and for conducting necessary correspondence with the student's parents or guardians.

22. Each student residing in the College is provided with a separate room, and with fuel and light, also with the necessary attendance. Furniture and bedding are supplied by the College, but students are required to provide their own towels and bed linen. Meals are taken in hall. Wine and beer are not included in the ordinary fare, but can be obtained from the College cellar at fixed prices.

23. A chapel is attached to the College, which the students residing in the College are expected to attend, unless specially exempted.

24. Every student will be required to go through a course of gymnastics and also of military exercises, including the use of the rifle.

25. Students are required to wear academical dress, under such regulations as may be prescribed from time to time.

Students not nominated for the Indian Forest Service, but desirous of obtaining a Diploma in Forestry from Cooper's Hill College.

26. Students not nominated for the Indian Forest Service may be received into the College, as far as the available accommodation permits. Such students may pass through the course of instruction prescribed for the nominees of the Indian Forest Service, as detailed above, or they may be permitted to participate in the instruction given in certain subjects only. On attaining the prescribed minima of marks in the several branches of study and in totals as laid down above, they will receive, as the case may require, either the College Diploma in Forestry or special certificates showing in what subjects they have followed the instruction and with what result.

27. Candidates who desire to be admitted under paragraph 26 may submit the necessary application at any time, but not later than the 15th day of June of the year named for admission, except with the special permission of the President. The application must be made on the prescribed forms, which can be obtained from the Secretary of the College.

28. Candidates whose applications are found satisfactory as to character and in other respects will be required to undergo an examination, to be held at the College, about the last week in June of the year for admission. The object of the examination will be to ascertain whether the candidate is qualified to follow the course of instruction with advantage (or certain parts of it, as the case may be). Candidates who do not come up to the required standard will not be admitted to the College.

The President may dispense with the whole or any portion of this examination in the case of a candidate who produces an University diploma, or other similar certificate granted by a recognized examining body.

29. Candidates admitted to the College under paragraph 26, who propose to pass through the full prescribed course of study, will be required to pay the same fees in every respect as those paid by the nominees for the India Forest Service. Candidates who do not become resident, and are admitted only to certain subjects of study, will be required to pay the fees which may be fixed in each special case in consideration of the extent of their studies. The candidates of both classes will be required to abide by the general rules of the College.

India Office, October 1897.

FOREST EXAMINATION.

SYLLABUS.

CLASS I.

Mathematics.—The extent of the Examination will be as follows:—

(a) Algebra, up to and including the binomial theorem; the theory and use of Logarithms.

(b) Euclid, Books I. to IV. and VI.

(c) Plane Trigonometry, up to and including solution of triangles, and Mensuration.

English Composition.—The standard of positive merit will be looked for in logical arrangement of thought, and in accuracy and propriety of expression, but large deductions of marks will be made for faults of writing and spelling.

Candidates are also warned that, for similar faults in the use of the English language, similar deductions will be made from the marks obtained in the German papers in Class I.

German.—There will be translations of unseen passages from German into English, and from English into German; the passages for translation will be taken, mainly, from standard authors, and a few simple questions may be asked, on the passages set, as to the structure and character of the language and allusions of obvious and general interest. The viva voce Examination will include Dictation.

CLASS II.

Any two Subjects may be taken up.

Higher Mathematics.—

 In all the following subjects great importance will attached to accuracy in numerical results.

Further questions and problems on the subjects of the Examination in Mathematics, Class I.

And in addition:—

Statics: The equilibrium of forces acting in one plane and of parallel forces, the centre of gravity, the mechanical powers, and friction. (The graphical or geometrical method of treating such problems should be studied as well as the analytical. No application of the differential calculus to Statics will be required.)

Dynamics: Uniform, uniformly accelerated, and uniform circular motion, falling bodies and projectiles in vacuo, collisions and work. (Analytical methods of solution, but not the use of the differential calculus, will be involved.)

Analytical Geometry: Problems on straight line and circle.

Conic Sections: Elementary properties, with easy problems both on the analytical and geometrical methods.

French.—The passages for translation will be taken mainly from standard authors, and in other respects the Examination will proceed on the same lines as in German.

Latin.—Passages selected from the authors usually read in schools will be set for translation into English. Passages from English authors will be given for translation into Latin prose and verse; but candidates will be allowed, in the place of verse composition, to answer questions of a simple character which will test whether they possess a fundamental knowledge of the grammar of the language, and such an elementary acquaintance with Roman History as is required for the intelligent study of the books they have read.

Greek.—Passages will be set for translation into English from the authors usually read in schools, and in other respects the Examination will proceed on the same lines as in Latin.

English History.—The General Paper in this subject will test whether the candidates are accurately acquainted with the facts of English History, and also possess an intelligent knowledge of the meaning of the facts. The paper on the fixed period will, of course, require from the candidates more minute knowledge than the General Paper.

Botany, Chemistry, Physics, Physical Geography, and Geology.—The standard of Examination in these subjects will be such as may be reasonably expected from the education given at schools possessing appliances for practical instruction, such as a laboratory, etc. A considerable portion of the marks will be allotted for the proficiency shown in the practical part of the Examination.

Chemistry will be limited to elements of inorganic chemistry.

Physics will include elementary properties of electricity, magnetism, heat, light, and sound.

Geology, chiefly economic, including the recognition of the more familiar minerals and rocks, and their properties and uses.

CLASS III.

Both subjects may be taken up.

Drawing, Freehand.

Drawing, Geometrical.

GENERAL.

Handwriting.—In estimating the papers of candidates, a limited number of marks, namely, 100 out of the maximum allotted to each subject, is assigned for handwriting.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, December 11th, 1897.

The quiet settled weather, which has prevailed throughout the Indian region during the past few weeks, was maintained until the middle of the week under review, when a change set in in the north-west, and the type of unsettled conditions, which is associated with the cold weather rainfall, was established. From Sunday to Tuesday pressure was high and uniform over Northern and Central India and low over the south of the Bay, while dry northerly winds prevailed over the Bay area, dry easterly winds over the west of the Peninsula, and light variable airs over Northern and Central India. During this period the weather was practically rainless throughout India. These general conditions continued over the greater part of India until the close of the week, but, in the north-west, an interesting series of changes set, which, although confined to the north-west, materially modified the weather in that region. On Monday, the 6th December, a shower was reported from Teheran and on the 7th from Jask, while cloudy weather appeared at the stations on the north-west frontier of India. These unsettled conditions were ushered by the appearance of a slight depression over Sind and by showers at Quetta, Chaman, Cherat and Dera Ismail Khan and subsequently at Lahore, Sialkote and on the North-West Himalayas. On the 9th a fresh and brisk fall of the barometer was reported from Persia, and, on the 10th, the observations showed that a much more considerable area of unsettled weather was approaching North-West India, which by the morning of the 11th had given snow to Kashmir and Baluchistan and rain to several places in the Punjab and Upper Sind. With the approach of this disturbed area the wind changed in the north-west and strong squally easterly and south-easterly winds replaced the light variable breezes which had previously prevailed. The weather has been steadily cooler than usual over the Peninsula, Burma and parts of the Central Provinces and of Bengal, while it has been steadily warmer elsewhere. As a consequence, the mean temperature of the whole country, both for each day of the week and for the whole week, has been very nearly normal.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, 5th December.—The barometer had risen everywhere. Pressure was high in the north and centre and low in the south and exceeded the normal average throughout the whole country. Calms and variable breezes prevailed within the high-pressure area in the north and centre, northerly winds over the Bay area and easterly winds over the centre and west of the Peninsula. The mean temperature was high over North-West India and over Assam and Upper Burma, and was low elsewhere. Light showers had been received at Darjeeling and Trincomalee, but elsewhere the weather had been dry.

Monday, 6th December.—The barometer had again risen everywhere. Gradients had slightly increased in steepness, but otherwise the general conditions of pressure were unchanged. The winds were likewise practically unaltered. The mean temperature was higher than usual over North-West India and lower than usual elsewhere. The excess was over 4° at Karrachi and Hyderabad and the defect over 4° at Akyab. There had been no rainfall over India and Burma, but Teheran reported about ½" and Trincomalee 1·35".

Tuesday, 7th December.—Pressure had given way almost everywhere, the fall having been brisk to rapid in the north-west. Pressure remained high and uniform over the northern and central parts of India and low in the extreme south, but, owing to the excess of fall in the north, the pressure difference had considerably diminished. Calms and light airs were reported from the north and centre, and elsewhere the winds were practically unchanged. The distribution of the mean temperature with respect to the average was the same as on the preceding day. The weather had again been rainless over India and Burma, but Jask (Persian Gulf) and the Ceylon stations reported showers.

Wednesday, 8th December.—Pressure had continued to decrease. The fall had been rapid in Sind, and a shallow-depression had appeared over that Province. Elsewhere the distribution of pressure was generally unchanged. The barometer read below the normal average over the extreme north-west and south-west, and above elsewhere—most so in Madras. The winds had shifted to south-east at several places in the Peninsula and the central parts of the country; but were otherwise little changed. The mean temperature was high over the greater part of Northern India and low over the Peninsula and Burma. Light showers had been received over Baluchistan and the West Punjab, but elsewhere over India and Burma the weather remained dry.

Thursday, 9th December.—Pressure had recovered slightly to rapidly over the extreme north-west of India and had given way briskly in Burma. Elsewhere the changes were unimportant. The Sind depression had filled up and a large high-pressure area covered North-Western and Central India. Pressure remained lowest in the extreme south and gradients were increasing. Some westerly winds had appeared down the Gangetic plain, but in general the winds were little changed. The temperature had fallen fast, and to below the normal average over Baluchistan and the West Punjab, but in general the temperature remained excessive over Northern India and in defect over the Peninsula and Burma. Light snow had been received in Kashmir and light rain over the North-West Himalayas and at some Punjab plains stations.

Friday, 10th December.—The barometer had fallen briskly to rapidly over Baluchistan, but had changed very slightly over India. The general distribution of pressure was unaltered and the barometer ranged from 30·14″ at Ajmere to 29·82″ at Colombo. The winds had shifted to south-east over Baluchistan and the North-West Himalayas and the westerly wind down the Gangetic plain had become more marked, but otherwise the winds were little changed. The mean temperature remained high over Northern India and low over the Peninsula and Burma. Light snow had again fallen over Kashmir, while rain had been received at Ispahan and at one or two places in the extreme south.

Saturday, 11th December.—The barometer had been steady over North-East India and Burma, but had fallen elsewhere. Over North-West India the fall had been brisk to very rapid. A shallow depression was shown over the western desert, while a deepish storm was appearing over the North Punjab. Strong squally south-east winds were reported from Baluchistan and the North-West Himalayas, while elsewhere the winds remained little altered either in direction or force. The mean temperature remained high over Northern India with the exception of the West Punjab and lower than usual over the Peninsula and Burma. The weather was very disturbed in the north-west. Snow had fallen over Kashmir and Baluchistan, and rain at several places in the Punjab and Upper Sind.

Temperature.—Over the greater part of the country the temperature distribution relatively to the normal has been very steady. On nearly all days of the week the mean temperature has been higher than usual over the greater part of Northern India and lower than usual over the greater part of the Peninsula and of Burma. These variations from the average, though not large, have been very steady, except in one region, viz., the west of the Punjab and Baluchistan. In this region at the commencement of the week the heat was greater than usual, but, with the approach of the unsettled weather there occurred a sudden fall of temperature to below the normal.

The daily variations of temperature for the whole country exhibit very small departures from the normal average, and the mean temperature of the whole country for the week is only 0·2° above the normal. The provincial variations, however, show larger departures, thus in Burma and Madras the mean has been about 1½° below the normal, while in the Punjab, Gujarat and Central India it has been about 1½° and in Sind and Rajputana nearly 3° above the normal.

Rain.—The rainfall during the week under review has been as light if not lighter than that reported during the past few weeks, but a large and [illegible] reported from Burma and the south of the Peninsula, the present week Burma parts of the Indian region having been dry, but during has been wholly without rain and the south of the Peninsula practically without rain, while the area of unsettled and showery conditions has been transferred suddenly to the north-west frontier. This change in the position of the area of showery weather was attributable to the approach of a depression or depressions from the westward through Persia. The first indication of this approach was afforded by the message from Teheran on December the 6th, which reported that half an inch of rain had been received at that station. On the following day Jask, on the Persian Gulf, reported showers which, by the morning of the 8th, had extended to Quetta, Chaman, Dera Ismail Khan and Cherat, and by the 9th to Kashmir, Murree, Lahore and Sialkot. From that day till the close of the week light snow continued to be received over the mountain regions surrounding the north-west frontier of India and light rain at several of the plains stations in the Punjab and Upper Sind. Practically the whole of the rainfall of the week was due to the approach of this area of disturbed weather, but in the extreme south of the Peninsula there occurred a few local showers.

The rainfall table at the close of the summary shows that six of the rainfall divisions, viz., the Central Punjab, the North Punjab, the West Punjab, Baluchistan, Sind and Malabar received effective rain, while four other divisions, viz., the South Punjab, the submontane Punjab, the Punjab Hills and South Madras received rain, the average amount of which was, however, less than one-tenth of an inch. The largest amount reported was 0·40″ in Baluchistan followed by 0·26″ in the West Punjab and in the Central Punjab. In most of the Punjab divisions as well as in Sind and Baluchistan the small anticipated fall of the week was slightly exceeded.

This fall of rain in the north-west has slightly diminished the amount of the seasonal deficiency in that region and, in the case of the West Punjab and of Sind, has turned it into an excess, but in other respects the situation as regards the seasonal rainfall is very similar to that which was recorded during the past few weeks. The most serious deficiency is in the Madras coast districts.

There have been no large totals during the week under review, but the following are worth recording:—Chunian (Lahore) 0·86″; Hafizabad (Gujranwalla) 1·65″; Ajnala (Amritsar) 0·65″; Naushera (Peshawar) 0·56″; Bannu 0·63″; Bhera (Shahpur) 1·49″; Sheikbuddin (Dera Ismail Khan) 0·72″; Shikarpur 0·53″; and Cochin 3·65″.

W. L. DALLAS,
Asst. Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

SIMLA, the 16th December 1897.

DENZIL IBBETSON,
Secretary to the Government of India.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 18th December.—The rainfall during the week was fair to good along the coast of Tanjore and Madura; elsewhere it was very slight or nil. The water-supply is generally insufficient for irrigation except in Ganjam, Vizagapatam, Godavari, Bellary, Anantapur and Cuddapah. More rain is required everywhere. Agricultural operations are general, but are retarded in parts by the want of rain. The wet crops are generally in good condition, but the dry crops generally and the wet crops in parts are suffering for want of rain. The outturn of crops is generally middling to fair. Pasture is generally sufficient, and fodder is available. The condition of cattle is normal. Prices are fluctuating with a slight tendency to fall. On the Nellore test works there were 1,000 workers and 40 persons gratuitously relieved. There is no improvement in prospects.

Bombay.—For week ending 20th December.—Rain is urgently wanted for the late crops which are withering in parts of Sholapur, Ahmednagar, and Bijapur. Jowari (Sorghum vulgare) in the greater part of Ahmednagar and the late crops in five talukas of Poona have been blighted. Crops have also been injured by locusts or other insects in one taluka of Dharwar and in one of Shikarpur. The harvesting of the early crops is progressing in five and the sowing of late crops in three districts. Preparations for the next season are [illegible] in parts of Kolaba. Agricultural stock is scanty. Prices have fallen in nine districts; elsewhere they are almost stationary. Prices in affected districts were:—Belgaum 19½, Bijapur 15$\frac{1}{16}$, Sholapur 9$\frac{1}{8}$, and Poona 12, seers per rupee. The average number on relief works, including dependants, was—Bijapur 989, Sholapur 9,530, Poona 5,275, Belgaum 903; total 16,697, of whom 15,949 are relief workers and 758 dependants. Of relief workers—5,445 are men, 7,643 women, and 2,851 children. Of dependants—19 are men, 57 women, and 692 children. On gratuitous relief—Sholapur 2,113, including 59 in poor-houses, Poona 2,838; total 4,951, of whom 1,692 are men, 1,844 women, and 1,415 children. Total number on relief, 21,648.

Bengal.—For week ending 20th December.—There was no rain during the week. The general prospects of the crops continue favourable, except, as previously reported, in the flooded tracts of Chittagong. The harvesting of winter rice is everywhere progressing. All spring crops, sugarcane, poppy and indigo are doing well. Locusts appeared in parts of the 24-Parganas, Jessore and Khulna, and did slight damage to the mustard crop and in the 24-Parganas to the cereals also. There was a fall in the price of new rice in some districts. The fodder-supply is reported to be sufficient except at Kurigram in Rangpur.

North-Western Provinces and Oudh.—For week ending 22nd December.—The weather is clear and cold. Slight showers are reported from three districts, but rain is needed generally throughout the provinces. The irrigation of crops is in active progress. So far prospects continue favourable. Supplies and fodder are sufficient. Prices show a slight rise in six districts and a fall in eight districts; otherwise they are fairly stationary.

Punjab.—For week ending 20th December.—Rain has fallen in Ferozepur, Mooltan, Sialkot, Rawalpindi, and Dera Ismail Khan. The harvesting of the autumn crops is nearly over. Pressing of sugarcane and picking of cotton continue. Sowings of spring crops are in progress. The condition and prospects of the standing crops are generally reported good. The recent rain has benefited the crops, but more is still required. The outturn of cotton is said to be below the average in Lahore and Dera Ismail Khan. The stocks of food-grain are reported scarce in parts of Amritsar. Grain is still being exported from Hissar. Locusts passed over the three tahsils of Rawalpindi, but did no damage. Cattle are generally in good state; they are losing condition in Sialkot only, owing to overwork and want of sufficient fodder. Fodder is sufficient in all districts except in Sialkot and in parts of Dera Ismail Khan. Prices are generally falling slightly; they are rising in Peshawar and are unchanged in Delhi, Ferozepur, Mooltan, Shahpur, Rawalpindi and Dera Ismail Khan. Wheat is selling from 10$\frac{9}{16}$ to 13, gram 11 to 12, barley 14, bulrush millet 14 to 22, maize 15$\frac{1}{2}$ to 21$\frac{1}{2}$, great millet 15, and rice 9 to 9$\frac{1}{2}$, seers per rupee.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 20th December.—The weather is generally clear and cold with slight clouds in Damoh and Nagpur. The harvesting of the autumn crops is almost completed, and threshing and winnowing are in progress. Picking of cotton continues. The outturns of the former are reported to be in Mandla 16 and in Narsinghpur 14 to 16 annas; in Bhandara the estimate for rice is 16 to 18 annas; for cotton it is 12 annas in Hoshangabad and ranges from 14 to 17 annas in other districts. Sugarcane-pressing continues; the estimated yield in Bhandara is 12 annas. The standing winter crops are generally in good condition, but are reported to be suffering somewhat from insufficiency of moisture and absence of dew in Hoshangabad, the Katol tahsil of Nagpur and the Harsud tahsil of Nimar; and rain would now be beneficial in all districts. Slight damage to linseed from cloudy weather is reported in the Drug tahsil of Raipur and to pulses and til from frost and extreme cold in Mandla, Narsinghpur, Betul, and Balaghat. Prices—wheat has fallen somewhat in Saugor, Seoni, Wardha and Raipur; rice and juar (Sorghum vulgare) are generally easy; the price of rice has fallen in Balaghat and Raipur since last week, but it is still comparatively high. The numbers on relief have now fallen below 25,000. The numbers on relief works were—Balaghat 2,654 and Bilaspur 48; total 2,702. The numbers on gratuitous relief were—Saugor 360, Damoh 339, Jubbulpore 1,177, Mandla 470, Seoni 229, Narsinghpur 415, Hoshangabad 344, Betul 596, Chhindwara 1,461, Wardha 31, Bhandara 1,512, Balaghat 4,159, Raipur 4,421, and Bilaspur 5,145; total 20,859. The crop prospects are excellent. In Upper Burma the reaping of the wet-weather paddy is in progress and cultivation of the dry-weather paddy and island crops is progressing. No rain has fallen during the week and prospects in Pakokku and Yamethin have not improved; in Minbu most of the millet crop on high lands in the Kyabin township has failed owing to cessation of rain. The price of paddy has risen considerably in Upper Chindwin; slightly in Rangoon and Thayetmyo; and has fallen in Mandalay.

Assam.—For week ending 21st December.—The weather is seasonable. The harvesting of the late rice is in progress. Prospects are generally good. Sowing of mustard and pulses is nearly finished. GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

APPOINTMENT OF A FAMINE COMMISSION TO FORMULATE FOR FUTURE GUIDANCE THE EXPERIENCES OF THE FAMINE OF 1896-97.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Department of Revenue and Agriculture,—No. 55—245-26 (Famine), dated the 23rd December 1897.

READ—

(1) Despatch to Her Majesty's Secretary of State, No. 86, dated 25th November 1897.

(2) Telegram from Her Majesty's Secretary of State, dated 22nd December 1897.

RESOLUTION.

It has been decided, with the approval of Her Majesty's Secretary of State, to appoint a small Commission to formulate for future guidance the lessons which the famine experience of 1897 has to teach. The Governor General in Council will take another opportunity of publicly expressing his appreciation of the manner in which the operations for the relief of distress have been conducted; while any complete review of them must await the receipt of the Provincial reports. But the information already at his disposal warrants him in believing that, regarded with reference to their object, which was to prevent the loss of human life from starvation at the smallest expense to the tax-paying community, those operations have on the whole been conspicuously successful.

2. As was to be expected, however, the methods by which that object [illegible] in the various provinces. The organisation for the relief of distress which has been elaborated in each province on the lines laid down by the Famine Commission of 1878, and embodied in the Provincial Famine Codes, has now, for the first time in most of the affected provinces, been practically tested on a large scale; and on the whole it has stood the trial well. But while the experience of the past year has suggested no alterations in the main lines which were prescribed as the basis for the administration of relief, it has been found necessary, in almost every province, to depart in some not unimportant respects from the detailed provisions of the local Code in order to meet the differing conditions of distress. And the direction which these departures have taken has varied from province to province.

3. The experience thus gained will be of incalculable value when India is next face to face with famine. But in order to render it available for future guidance, it is essential to collect and collate it while the facts are fresh, and to embody it in amended Famine Codes. It is no doubt the case that, while the broad lines upon which relief is to be administered may properly be prescribed for the whole of India, variations in detail will be necessary under the varying conditions to be found in the several provinces, and that each province must retain its individual Code. But it is certain that almost every province will have something to learn from the experience of others, and it will be advisable to take special measures to collate that experience; and especially, where the cost of relief and the numbers relieved have been larger than elsewhere in proportion to the acuteness of the distress and the population affected by it, to enquire to what causes the excess was due, and whether an adherence to the lines followed in other provinces might not, on a future occasion, reduce the cost without diminishing the efficacy of the measures to be adopted.

4. The inquiry will be far narrower in scope than that entrusted to the larger Famine Commission, which was appointed with such signal advantage in 1878. Twenty years ago no general famine policy had been enunciated by Government, the experience gained in Behar in 1873 and in Southern India [illegible]
